LAFAYETTE — Purdue University agricultural economists and federal farm statisticians reported today that the number of clothes dryers on Indiana farms has increased 46 per cent during the past year.

In a survey of household and farm equipment just completed, the statisticians learned that more than seven per cent of Indiana farm homes are now equipped with electric or gas heated dryers.

Television sets are found on 54 per cent of the farms in the state. The 20 per cent increase during the past year is somewhat less than the previous year. The greatest increases have been in the northeast and southwest districts where new stations have brought better reception.

Electric sweepers were found in 52 per cent of the farm homes for an increase of eight per cent.

About 9 per cent of farms have water softeners while 54 per cent have electric water pressure systems. Septic tanks or cess pools for sewage disposal were tallied for 41 per cent of the farms.

Statisticians found home freezers on 40 per cent of the farms - an increase of six per cent.

Power lawn mowers showed an increase of 21 per cent and are now found on 29 per cent of the farms in Indiana.

Field forage choppers, while reported on 3 per cent of the farms, showed a year's increase of 23 per cent. Manure loaders, now on 13 per cent of farms, show an 11 per cent increase over the past year.

Portable grain elevators were counted on 23 per cent of the farms for an increase of 10 per cent. Only an additional 2 per cent of the state's farmers bought chick brooders to make a total of 23 per cent.

Researchers Claim Key To Wipe Out Scourge Of TB

CHICAGO (UP)—Four Minnesota researchers said today they have the key to wiping out the scourge of tuberculosis.

They reported that a new test and new drugs raise the possibility of eradicating TB down to the "last tubercule bacilli."

They said that a 28-year study shows that the new tuberculin test can detect tuberculosis "with uncanny accuracy" earlier than chest X-rays or any other test.

With such a head start, they said, new antimicrobial drugs just coming into use have a chance to destroy all the tuberculosis germs. If the new drugs work, the doctors said, TB may be whipped for the first time in history.

A mass testing program with the new technique, the group predicted, may mean "tracking down and destroying the last tubercule bacilli."

According to their account in the Journal of the Americal Medical Assn., "the tuberculin test has become the master key to the tuberculosis problem."

The researchers are Drs. J. Arthur Myers and Frederick G. Gunlaugson of Minneapolis and Edward A. Meyerding of St. Paul, and Miss Jean Roberts of Minneapolis.

The report said that the tuberculin test finds tuberculosis within a few weeks after infection. In this early stage, antimicrobial drugs may destroy all the bacilli, it said. By the time the disease shows up in a chest X-ray, chances for wiping out all of the germs have diminished.

A mass testing program—such as has been carried out in 24 Minneapolis parochial schools since 1926—can pick out infected persons, the report said. Eventually, the researchers said, there is "no alternative" but routine, regular tests with tuberculin for everyone, preferably starting in childhood.

Periodic examinations, they said, can catch "95 per cent of developing lesions while they still can be kept — by present treatment methods—from becoming contagious."

The tuberculin test also will aid in tracking down the "unknown contagious cases" who may be spreading the infection. The test also checks on whether adequate treatment for TB has been given, they added.

Purdue Suggests Purchase And Market Guides

Expect Strong Demand For Farm Products

LAFAYETTE — Personal income in July was $305 billion annually, up one per cent from the June rate and almost six per cent from a year ago, say agricultural economists at Purdue University in the current issue of Economic and Marketing information.

In discussing the general situation further, the economists stated that employment in August for the first time exceeded 65 million while jobless, at 2.2 million, dropped to the lowest level since November 1953.

The demand for farm commodities is expected to continue strong. However, heavy marketings will cause some further decline in farm prices during the next few months.

Prices of feed grains in the year ahead will be slightly lower than last year, and protein feed supplies will be abundant with prices slightly below this past year.

In the case of hogs, further seasonal decline in the price of hogs this fall is still ahead. However, with slightly lower feed-grain prices, somewhat below average hog-corn ratios and profits are in prospect for the next feeding year.

Cattle Feeding Prospects

Agricultural economists predict that cattle feeding in the year ahead will probably be as high as during the past year, with little change in the price of fed cattle. Relatively favorable range conditions have delayed feeder marketings. Reduction in feed prospects in important corn-belt cattle feeding areas will dampen feeder cattle demand. Such a situation is expected to result in some weakening in feeder cattle prices as the season progresses.

Dairy products are currently about two per cent above a year ago, and have improved relative to other livestock and feed prices. The milk feed ratio is about 10 per cent above a year ago and is above the long time average for the first time since 1952.

Egg Pri̇ces

Economists point out that lighter culling and high rate of lay have maintained egg supplies at slightly above year ago levels. However, the potential laying flock in early 1956 should be at least seven per cent smaller than early 1955. Even with high rates of lay, prices during the first half of 1956 probably will be at least 15 per cent above the 31c avêrage of a like period this year.

Wholesale prices of fencing, metal roofing, other steel building materials, and most farm machinery have risen five to ten per cent in the past several months, but retailers in some localities still have inventories of these items which were purchased before the price increased. It is suggested that, with careful buying, substantial savings may result from immediate purchase of these items in anticipation of winter and early spring needs.

Bulganin

there would be no comment from administration sources on the Bulganin letter until President Eisenhower had sent his reply to the Soviet leader, and there was no indication when this would be.

One encouraging note sounded in Bulganin's letter was the flat statement that "my remarks do not all mean that we cannot achieve an agreement on important aspects of the disarmament problem."

The premier, in regard to the exchange of military information, pointed out the President's proposal did not include the main point of disarmament—control of atomic and hydrogen weapons, which he said the Big Four powers must agree to outlaw.

Agrees In Principle

He said the Soviet Union "in principle," had no objection to Mr. Eisenhower's "blueprint proposal." But the premier's letter went on to say that "I think that at a definite sage an exchange of such definite information between states is necessary. It would be better, however, if such information concerning armaments were submitted by all states, and not only by the United States and the U.S.S.R. . . . it is self-evident that information of all kinds of armaments, conventional as well as nuclear, must be submitted in order to avoid misunderstanding"

Concerning the second main point of Mr. Eisenhower's proposal —mutual aerial reconnaissance, Bulganin said:

"Under present international conditions both our countries are not acting singly . . . it is impossible not to see that the proposal introduced by you completely omits from consideration armed forces and military installations which are outside the area of the United States and the Soviet Union."

Health Authorities Watching For Signs Of Sleeping Sickness Outbreaks In Other Areas

FORT BRANCH, Ind. (UP)—Indiana health authorities watched closely today for signs of "sleeping sickness" outbreaks in other areas besides this community where six died and six became ill.

A wave of the disease, known scientifically as encephalitis, swept the Fort Branch area during the past month but was believed under control, since no new cases were reported during the last week.

Four engineers sent by the Indiana State Board of Health sprayed the area to kill droves of mosquitoes which an expert blamed for transmission of the deadly virus. An August-September drought drying up streams and ponds was credited with furnishing breeding grounds for a record crop of insects.

Dr. Albert R. Marshall, head of the board's communicable disease division, revealed the effects of the outbreak Friday at Fort Branch and nearby Princeton.

Three men and three women died in hospitals at Princeton and Evansville a few days after they were stricken with an ailment which at first resembled influenza but developed into a deadly chronology of high fever, stupor, irrationality and coma.

The disease was fatal only to the aged. The victims were Maggie Singleton, 64, Miss Ollie Spore, 75, William Wilhite, 69, Ruben Shannon, 72, Mrs. Fanny Robinson and Louis Onyett.

Dr. Raymond C. Geick, who treated most of the victims, said the town of Fort Branch, a community of 2,000 residents, was not panicked by the outbreak.

"There have been all kinds of rumors but the people have taken this pretty well in stride," Geick said. "There has been no curtailment of activity whatever, and I see no necessity for it since our mosquito control program is underway."

You Wouldn't Believe How Lightly Income Tax Flicked Pocketbook In Good Old Days

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — You wouldn't believe how lightly the income tax flicked the pocketbook in the first years after William Howard Taft successfully proposed it (1909) and Woodrow Wilson began to collect it (1913).

From 1909 to 1913, Congress submitted and the states completed ratification of the 16th or income tax amendment, the first time the Constitution had been changed in 43 years.

President Eisenhower is the eighth in that office to be confronted with the riddle of the income tax. The correct answer is a distribution of the tax burden or of tax cuts satisfactory to all hands. It can't be done.

In 1913 a married person with two dependents and a $5,000 net income paid $10. At $8000 the bit was $40, rising to $60 on the $10,000 family; $260 on $25,000; $2,510 on $100,000; $25,010 on $500,000.

Times have changed. Just 40 years later, the $5,000 family was paying $577. It was $1,282 on an $8,000 income; $1,744 on $10,000; $7,004 on $25,000; $56,032 on $100,000; $411,224 on $500,000.

The family man with $5,000 net who paid Democrat Woodrow Wilson's treasury $1 back there in 1913 paid in only $3 to Herbert Hoover's Republican treasury in 1929. The 1913 $40 tax on $8000 had been reduced to $14. But the $100,000 a year family which paid $2,510 in 1913 was hit for $14,846 on 1929 income. The $500,000 family paid $110,846.

The Hoover administration's 1932 revenue act started taxes up again. But it remained for another war, FDR and former President Truman to show what really could be done in the field of individual income taxation.

Taxes Hiked In 1942

FDR's 1942 revenue act took $730 from the $5,000 family which used to pay $10 and the 1944 act hiked it to $755. The $500,000 family paid $439,931 and $442,985, respectively.

The revenue service estimates that the effective rate on a $5,000 net ncom eunder the 1931 act was two-tenths of one percent, ranging up to one percent on $25,000 and five percent on $500,000. Forty years later the comparable effective rates were 11.5 percent, 28 percent and 82.2 percent.

The Red Cross said all the returnees had been arrested and sentenced by the Soviets for war crimes allegedly committed while they were associated with the German army in World War II.

AAA Wheels Argue Over What Power Means To Machine

WASHINGTON (UP) — The wheels in the American Automobile Assn. got to arguing over whether the horsepower race in modern machines means more death traps.

At the auto folks annual national convention, nothing actually came of the argument.

Lou E. Holland, president of the AAA safety council, allowed that the power business amounts to a lot of misery for men and machines.

E. Roy Cory, chairman of the organization's traffic dsafetya organization's traffic and safety committee and the AAA executive vice president, Russell Singer, countered that the more the power the more the "agility" on the road

Nobody asked my opinion, but I would like to put in a good word for Lizzie, the Model T of long ago.

Never Complained Too Much

In my day, horsepower meant nothing more than what old dobbin could pull, in single or double hitch.

I doubt if the late Henry Ford, who invented the Model T, ever bothered to drop his mechanicing to try to balance the strength of the horse against the power generated by four little sparkplugs.

The Lizzie would do what you asked her to, and if she groaned a little she never complained too much.

She would pull you up a hill. And going 20 or so miles an hour was all that was needed, there wasn't a race on, anyhow.

And what if you went asleep at the controls? With the fenders old Henry produced, a culvert did not present too much of a challenge. A sledge hammer always was at hand. If a spark plug balked, a boy-scout knife could scrape off the carbon in a nonce.

Liz had a few faults. She had a habit of coming down with flat tires. Those tire irons, with which you dismantled tire from wheel, were tricky little things.

But before the tire irons came the jack, which wouldn't stand light enough for a few young men still on a hill. Liz, though, was to hoist, if there were enough young men about. Generally there were.

A lot of the repair jobs could be done with baling, or hay, wire. If a door came loose, a fellow had a couple of choices. You could unhinge the door and sell the remains for junk. Or you could wire it up and crawl over the side. Either was nice in the cool of the evening.

Point is, though, that Lizzie never went around the country roads hurting very many people.

3 Nations Review The Threat Of Red Aggression

And Subversion In Southeast Asia

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Diplomatic and defense chiefs of the United States, Australia and New Zealand today reviewed the continuing threat of Communist aggression and subversion in Southeast Asia.

Sources said the three nations would agree to keep their defense guards high because "none of the causes of tension in the Far East have been removed" despite Communist "good will" gestures elsewhere.

Today's meeting was a gathering of members of the Australian-New Zealand-U.S. (ANZUS) Treaty Council, top-ranking body of the defense pact signed by the three nations in 1951.

Dulles At Meeting

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Adm. Felix Stump, commander of all U.S. forces in the Pacific, represented the United States at the day-long conference. Australian Foreign Affairs Minister Richard G. Casey and Gen. Henry (Bomber) Wells, Australian chief of general staff represented their government. New Zealand was represented by T. L. MacDonald, minister for defense and external affairs, and Brig. W. S. McKinnon, embassy armed forces attache.

Diplomats said there was no immediate crisis which prompted the ANZUS meeting. It was scheduled at this time to take advantage of the presence in this country of Casey and MacDonald for the United Nations meeting.

The three powers also are members of the eight nation Southeast Asian treaty, signed at Manila last year, which covers territory where Red threats of aggression and subversion are most active.

Close Watch Kept

Close watch is being kept on all phases of Communist activity, ranging from Korea through Japan, Red China, and around Southeast Asia. For the moment, Red dangers seem greatest in free Viet Nam, Cambodia, and Laos.

Strategists reported that Red-backed rebels still hold two northern provinces in Laos, occasionally make raids into Cambodia, and continue extensive subversion in free Viet Nam.

The United States has been encouraged by Australian and New Zealand moves against Communism in the troubled Southeast Asia area. Australian for example, is dispatching naval, military and air forces to Malaya for "security work."

exile.

Lonardi made it crystal clear that he intends to dismantle the Peronist machine in its entirety. He announced that the rights of assembly and freedom of press and speech would be restored immediately.

He noted that the nation "has been subjected to a procedure of extreme violence" by the Peron regime battle against the Catholic Church and said he would be "very happy" to resolve the state-church dispute by means of a concordat with the Vatican.

Minced No Words

The 59-year-old president, a longtime foe of Peron, minced no words in his inauguration address from the balcony of Casa Rosada, the government house.

He branded Peron a dictator and said his social justice movement was a "stupid caricature of justice."

Lonardi assured organized labor that its "legitimate conquests would be maintained and expanded." He asked for the workers support and promised they could have the same confidence in the new government as they did in the Peron administration.

Four more nations announced decisions to continue diplomatic relations with Argentina. Spain, Peru, Chile and Ecuador joined Uruguay in granting recognition of the Lonardi government.

1955 Best Ever For Business Say Officials

Of U. S. Chamber Of Commerce

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U.S. Chamber of Commerce predicts this year will be the best ever for business, and will be topped with the biggest Christmas buying spree in history.

Only the farmer will not share proportionately in the boom, the chamber said.

"Practically all business barometers," the chamber said, "agriculture excepted, are at new highs ...and the economy is operating close to capacity. For this reason ...the rate of business expansion probably will become more moderate from now on"

The chamber said the increase in consumer credit and mortgage debt, next year's elections and the upward pressure on prices were "less serious doubtful spots" in the economy than the drop in farm income.

The chamber praised the various government moves to check credit "without attempting to discourage legitimate loans."

"A general tightening now," the chamber said, "may check excessive upward price pressures and would allow elbow room to loosen credit next year to buoy up the economy, if necessary."

Nixon Schedules Special Meeting With Officials

To Plan For Carrying On Government Functions

WASHINGTON UP — Vice President Richard M. Nixon today scheduled a White House meeting with administration officials to make plans for carrying on government functions during President Eisenhower's illness.

Nixon scheduled a lunch conference with Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, and Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, deputy assistant to the President.

The officials were expected to discuss constitutional problems involved in delegating to Nixon some or all of th eexecutive powers which the stricken President may not be able to exercise.

Nixon told reporters before the meeting that "there are many legal problems involved" and a ruling from the attorney general is needed.

The Constitution provides that the powers of the Presdent "shall devolve on the vice preisdent" in case of the President's "inability" to discharge them. However, there are no historical precedents for a vice president actually taking over as "acting President."

One question is what kind of proclamations or other legal steps might be necessary to give Nixon authority to relieve Mr. Eisenhower of some of the tedious routine of signing official papers which is vested by law in the president.

Adams returned from Europe by plane today, in accordance with a schedule set before the President was stricken by a heart attack Saturday. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. was expected to return to the capital Tuesday from a European trip.

Rogers had been asked for a ruling on the leagl aspects of delegating the President's powers.

The Justice Department said a formal legal opinion will be transmitted to the summer White House at Denver as soon as possible. Officials said it will be up to the summer White House to make the ruling public.

Nixon sai dthe whole government will operate on a "business as usual" basis while the President is ill.

President Eisenhower's Top Heart Specialist Says Prospect Reasonably Good For Complete Recovery

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER, Colo. (UP) — President Eisenhower's top heart specialist said today prospects are "reasonably good" for the President's complete recovery and that barring unforeseen complications he should be able to run for his second term.

Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston said the President's condition is so satisfactory that he flew back to Boston today.

For the first time since he entered Fitzsimons Army Hospital Saturday afternoon, the President was removed from an oxygen tent for brief intervals today.

White told newsmen that as o' 10:10 a.m. MST (11:10 a.m. CST), "the President's condition continues to be satisfactory without complications."

An "Average Case"

White's bulletin said the President "enjoyed a breakfast (of) fruit, oatmeal, a soft boiled egg toast and milk."

It was the most the President had eaten since he was stricken early Saturday morning. The heart specialist told newsmen the President will not be able to engage in any strenuous activity for two months and probably should remain in a hospital for at least two weeks and possibly a month to insure complete rest.

Mr. Eisenhower, it was disclosed had a slight fever late Sunday, but White said this is "according t Hoyle" for that stage of a heart attack.

White, who flew here Sunday, described the President's attack as an "average case" of coronary thrombosis. Mr. Eisenhower's morale is "excellent," White said.

The bulletin continued to say:

"The President had a slight fever late yesterday afternoon, as is usual in such cases, but his temperature is normal this morning.

"The oxygen tent will be omitted at intervals today. The electrocardiogram this morning shows the usual evolution produced by an anterior heart wall infarct (damaged heart muscle tissue)."

Under intense questioning, White said that if Mr. Eisenhower "has a good recovery, as we hope, and is able to resume his normal type of life," he would not rule out a possibility of Mr. Eisenhower being able to run for a second term.

Could Resume Golf

The doctor carefully refused to say whether he thinks Mr. Eisenhower should run again or whether he would advise him to.

If he recovers satisfactorily, the Boston specialist said, the President should be able to resume his beloved golf.

Meanwhile, administration officials sought a formal decision on a possible delegation of powers by President Eisenhower in the event his heart attack makes it necessary.

The President has been at Fitzsimons since he was admitted 12 hours after he suffered the attack at the home of his mother-in-law early Saturday morning.

The attack was described by specialists attending the President Sunday as "moderate"—neither mild nor serious. Shortly after Mr. Eisenhower was admitted to the hospital Snyder said his chances for recovery were good. This apparently still held true.

Whitley County Girl Crushed By Gravel Truck

State Weekend Traffic Toll At Least Seven

By UNITED PRESS

A 3-year-old Whitley County girl was crushed by a gravel truck Sunday to boost Indiana's weekend traffic toll to at least seven dead.

Debra Wolf, daughter of the James Wolfs of Blue Lake, was riding her tricycle in a Fort Wayne filling station when a truck driven by Sylvester Salisbury, 60, Fort Wayne, backed up over her.

Authorities state the accident happened about 5:00 p.m. as Mr. Salisbury was backing his truck into a parking space he used at the station. Salisbury is reported to have just filled his truck with gas and had checked the area behind the truck before putting it in motion.

The report states an unidentified boy saw the danger but could not reach the child in time, and his yells for the truck driver to stop were not heard by Mr. Salisbury.

The child died about 10 minutes after arriving at the Lutheran Hospital emergency room where she was taken in a police ambulance. Her death was attributed to brain and abdominal hemorrhages.

The child's parents were visiting at the home of a relative, John Finton. Mr. Finton related that not more than five minutes before the fatal accident, the girl's father had cautioned her to play in the back yard, and he had gone back into the house. Shortly afterward a girls burst into the Finton home and asked if anybody there had "a little blond-haired girl." She

Five Americans In Hong Kong From Red China

Aboard Freighters Which Ran Blockade

HONG KONG (UP)—Five Americans arrived in Hong Kong today from Red China aboard two British freighters which had run the Chinese Nationalist blockade from Shanghai.

One American, a Catholic nun, was so weak she had to be carried ashore. Another, a young Houston, Tex., cotton broker, was reported in serious physical condition.

The five civilians, detained in Red China for many years, were released under terms of a Geneva agreement between Communist China and the United States.

Those reaching the Free World today:

Eva Stella Dugay, Sister Theresa, 62, a native of New York who was a nun at the Roman Catholic Carmelite Convent in Shanghai. She had been seriously ill in Shanghai but the Communists refused her an exit permit. She had to be carried ashore.

T. Kanady, 36, Houston, Tex. who is the last of the 10 Americans charged with "crimes" by the Chinese Communists and sentenced to "expulsion." He was reported in poor physical condition but declined hospital treatment on arrival.

Negroes Rally To Protest The Acquittals

Of White Men In Till Murder

GREENWOOD, Miss. (UP) — Thousands of Negroes at rallies in New York, Chicago and Detroit Sunday protested the acquittals of two white men in the Emmett Till "wolf whistle" murder case.

Half-brothers Roy Bryant and J. W. Milam, found innocent of murder last Friday, were held here pending a bond hearing, probably Friday, on an additional charge of kidnaping the 14-year-old Negro boy.

Freed of possible death sentences, the men faced maximum 10-year sentences if convicted of kidnaping the boy visitor from Chicago in reprisal for his alleged insult of Bryant's young wife.

Special Session Asked

At the New York rally an estimated 10,000 Negroes approved a resolution asking for a special session of Congress to enact stiffer measures to stamp out so-called "lynch" incidents in the South.

At Detroit, more than 6,000 persons cheered Rep. Charles Diggs Jr. (D-Mich), who attacked "sheer perjury and fantastic twisting of facts" at the murder trial last week.

An estimated 2,000 persons gathered in Chicago's Metropolitan Community Church to listen to Willie Reed, 18, a witness in the trial. The gathering, sponsored by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, called on the White House to halt "the wave of terror against Negro citizens of Mississippi."

Immediate inquiry asked

In Washington, Rep. Victor L Anfuso (D-NY) wired Atty. Gen Herbert Brownell Jr. asking an "immediate investigation" of the "miscarriage of justice" at the trial.

Anfuso said he otherwise will ask Congress "to undertake a probe" when it reconvenes in January.

Bryant and Milam were held at the Leflore County Jail where they had been protected by National Guardsmen during early days of tension prior to their trial last week in adjoining Tallahatchie County.

Judge Charles Pollard said the preliminary hearing to determine whether to free the men on bond pending indictments on kidnaping charges may be held before Friday if transcripts of the trial arrive early enough.

H. Hendrickson Dies Of Injuries Early Sunday

Accident Happened Near Greenville, O.

Horace Hendrickson

Horace Hendrickson, 47, Columbia City Joint high school debate coach and speech instructor and dramatic art and English teacher, was killed in a two-car crash five miles north of Greenville, Ohio, on Highway 127 at 2:00 a.m. Sunday.

Details of the accident were unobtainable, but Ohio authorities did report that Mr. Hendrickson's death was due to a fractured skull. He also received a bruised chest. The driver of the other car, Galen Dunn of Greenville, Ohio, suffered serious internal injuries, a broken leg and arm and was taken to the Good Samaritan Hospital in Dayton.

Mr. Hendrickson, who had only begun teaching here at the beginning of the current school year, had been called to his home town, Lancaster, Kentucky, on business and was to arrive there by early Saturday morning. He had asked to be relieved of his duties at the Friday evening football game to make the trip to Kentucky, according to Principal Max Gandy.

Wore Hunting Clothes

As near as could be determined by Superintendent Edward Glenn, the crash victim was returning to Columbia City. Mr. Glenn stated that Hendrickson was a great man for hunting and fishing, and that he was wearing his hunting clothes when killed. It was assumed that he had hunted until late Saturday afternoon and then started his return trip here immediately in order to rest up for school today.

The body was taken to the Miller Funeral Home in Greenville and later transferred to the Miller & Cox Funeral in Lancaster, Kentucky. Lancaster was Mr. Hendrickson's native town.

The local teacher was graduated

President's Illness Raises Ancient Question, Who Runs Government When President Ill

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower's illness has raised an ancient question: Who runs the government when the President is ill.

The Constitution provides that the powers of the presidency "shall devolve" on the vice president in case of the chief executive's death, resignation, or "inability to discharge" the powers and duties of his office.

But no legal body ever has decided what constitutes "inability" to handle the presidency. Nor who shall decide when a president is in such a state.

Problem under Study

It was disclosed Sunday by White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty that the problem of finding someone to make decisions for the President, if it becomes necessary, is under consideration. Hagerty has asked Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers for an opinion on "any action that might be necessary at any time for any delegation of powers" by the President and "if any are permitted."

Hagerty disclosed his action when asked what would happen if Mr. Eisenhower was not able to sign necessary official documents, or if his physicians refused to let him sign them.

Thus far in American history, only two presidents—James A. Garfield and Woodrow Wilson—have been unable to discharge their official duties for considerable periods of time.

Garfield was disable July 2, 1898, when he was shot by an assassin. He died the following Sept. 19.

Wilson collapsed Sept. 26, 1919, while on a speaking tour defending the Versailles Treaty. He did not recover sufficiently to call his Cabinet until the following April.

No Action Taken

The historian Edward S. Corwin, in his volume "The president, Office & Powers," records that in both cases no action was taken to create an "acting president".

"In both cases alike," Corwin' writes, "the official powers and duties of the disabled President

Americans Pray For Their Leader

Americans turned to God today and rightly so, with prayers for the recovery of President Eisenhower.

Prayers were in the hearts of millions of citizens, in the big cities, the quiet farm towns and the many farm homes. Messages were sent by political and religious leaders throughout the world.

A prayer offered by Dr. Harold Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston, Illinois, aptly expresses the feelings of most Americans:

"May the benediction of Thy healing power be upon the President in his illness and grant him strength to bear the burden of the day."

Kraft Theatre Will Mark Its 500th Performance

NEW YORK (UP)—Kraft Television Theatre, the longest running show in the land of the magic lantern, notches an elegant mark this Wednesday night — its 500th performance.

It was back on May 7, 1947, that Kraft uncorked the series with an hour-long drama, "Double Door." Since that time, the stanza has piled up more "firsts" than George Washington—it was the first dramatic show, the first program to be carried on anything resembling a network, the first drama segment to be colorcast, the first to use trick camera work for dramatic effect, the first drama show to be carried by two networks at the same time.

If any one man could be singled out as an authority on the show, it would be Ed Rice, who has acted as script editor since its beginnings. Rice stamped his okay on all 500 of the scripts which have gone through the mill—225 of them Broadway dramas; 73 plays from London; 141 original TV plays; the remaining 61, unproduced and classical dramas.

"There's only one test for a Kraft script as far as I'm concerned—how well it reads," said Rice, who pours over up to 20 entries a week. "If I find it holds my attention, I don't worry about any mechcnical problems it might present. We've never had to discard a good script because of technical difficulties."

Kraft, a happy hunting ground for comparatively unknown thespians, has used more than 3,500 different actors and actresses during its life span. Some, like Rod Steiger, Jack Lemmon and Anne Francis, were boosted to stardom by the show.

"We're not interested in big name stars as such," said Rice. "We would rather have the public watch the show week after week because of its dramatic quality than just tune in occasionally because a Hollywood star happens to be on."

Because of the emphasis the Kraft staff places on the vehicle, many of the productions have proved sturdy enough for Broadway or Hollywood treatment. Two recent plays, "The Worried Songbirds" and "Nothing Personal," now are being kicked around as possible plays for Broadway. "A Sound Of Hunting," which did not do well on Broadway, was reconverted into the movie, "Seven Iron Men," after it appeared on Kraft.

But perhaps its most successful production was Rod Serling's "Patterns," a widely acclaimed work which recently was made into a movie.

Fine Old Art Of Camouflage Always In Style

NEW YORK (UP)—The fine old art of camouflage, a female science long before modern warfare caused males to study its possibilities, is always in style.

Design a dress that cleverly conceals a pudgy waistline or creates the illusion of curves where there are none—and you can stitch yourself right into financial security.

This philosophy has served designer Rosalie Macrini very nicely for the past 25 years. She has become the master of the broken cummerbund, the wizard of the concealing scarf and the artful inventor of canvas underpinnings.

Miss Macrini is not a name widely known among women shoppers. But she has been designing nothing but $100-plus cocktail dresses and evening gowns for the past 25 years for the Barbara Costume Co. Now she owns the company.

She has proven her point—which is that "no matter how fabulous the dress, if it doesn't make a woman look slim and pretty it is a failure."

Miss Macrini revealed some of the most common figure faults she tried to correct with her dresses, which certainly look anything but corrective, incidentally. They're strictly glamour jobs of chiffon, marquisette, lace and taffeta.

"I don't see eye to eye with women who think they must have a lot of flesh showing in an evening dress," Miss Macrini said. "Think the subtle, sexy look of a high neck and long sleeves can be one of the most flattering fashions we have."

The petite designer, who seemed to have a perfect figure in her snugly fitted black wool dress, said she never wears low cut evening dresses herself because "my shoulders aren't attractive."

Most of her strapless dresses have a filmy panel attached at one side in back. It can be left to float from the shoulder, can be looped around the shoulders and tucked into a special loop on one side to give a portrait collar effect, or even can be wrapped around the neck with the end trailing behind.

"There are two unattractive places that some women should cover up in low-cut dresses," she explained. "The backs of the upper arms and the hollows just under the arms."

She cuts her strapless dresses to fit as close to the arm as possible in front, then dips them in the back. Her cummerbunds are usually "broken" — cleverly stitched on the dress with waistline slits or points to minimize the size.

And all the dress bodices are sewed onto canvas foundations with boned fronts, so the sturdy canvas can hold in or build up the figure.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Lesson for October 9, 1955

IT IS hard to say what is the most important doctrine of the Christian religion. Probably you would get more votes for the doctrine we call the Incarnation than for any other; because so many other doctrines hinge on this one. If you do not believe in the Incarnation you haven't much left of the Atonement, and (if you really face it) you have lost what is most valuable in your doctrine of God. Be that as it may, if you asked for a vote among people who have given this some serious thought, as to what is the most distinctive Christian doctrine, you would have a practically unanimous answer: The Incarnation. This is expressed in various ways both in the Bible and in Christian theology. About the simplest way of putting it in Bible language is that "God was in Christ" (II Corinthians 5:19). The simplest way of putting it in theological language may be that Christ was both human and divine.

Dr. Foreman

Jesus Was a Real Person

You wouldn't think it necessary to hammer on the point that Jesus was a real person, that is to say that he really was, and didn't just seem to be, a child and a boy and a grown man. Yet the church has often had to call a halt to men and movements that explained-away the real humanity of Jesus till there was really nothing left of it. The great church council held at Chalcedon (the Evanston of that era) in 451 A. D. found it necessary to say—in their own way of course—that Christ is as much divine as God is divine, and as much human as you and I are human. For some strange reason, however, the reality of Jesus as a human person is forgotten or denied by men. Again and again we have to be brought up with a start by the gospel story, the story of a real man. Like all real men, Jesus grew from a real boy. The modern interest in childhood and the realization that "the child is father of the man."

The Child Grew

Legends, tales without foundation, have made the boy Jesus into a smaller-sized adult. According to some of these legends, when Jesus went to school, the very first day, he not only knew the alphabet already but he delivered a philosophical discourse that astonished the teacher. Luke does not give us any such picture of an already-grown mind in a tiny body. He gives us a glimpse of a real child really growing. At first he grew without trying, of course, as every one does. What he ate and drank made him taller and stronger. He learned the Aramaic language, spoken in his village and in his family, just as children learn their mother-tongue everywhere in the world, just by hearing it and trying to speak it, till it becomes as natural as breathing. His mind grew by what was put into it, because it was a really human mind. Dolls are all the same no matter what goes on around them; human beings on the contrary grow or shrink, depending on their surroundings. It is not too much to say that if (for instance) Jesus' mother Mary had been a different kind of person, he would have been different too. To think otherwise is to fancy Jesus a kind of doll.

The Boy Moved Forward

As has been often noted, Luke uses a different word for Jesus after his twelfth year. Before that, he "grew,"—the same word used for flowers and buildings, elsewhere in the Bible. After that, he "increased"—and the word always implies will, effort. Up to a certain age a child can't help growing; he doesn't even give it a thought. But after a certain age, not the same in every one to be sure, if a person grows he has to put his mind on it; and he can choose the direction in which he will grow. Jesus could choose his friends; he could do what he would with his spare time. He grew by his work in the carpenter shop, we may be certain; but what about the hours when he was not working? When Jesus was fully grown, we know how familiar he was with the Scriptures. We know how well he understood people. Could he have achieved any of this without trying, without growing?

A total of 128 boys and girls in the county participated in the bicycle safety event. A majority of them, 114 represented Columbia City, while the other 14 were residents of rural areas. The total compared with the 69 which entered the event last year when it was limited to city children.

Every bicycle owner who sought to enter the rodeo had his bicycle approved for safety by members of the Whitley County Association of Insurance Agents. When defects were found, the owner was advised to have them fixed before returning to enter the rodeo. Members of the association placed a strip of Scotch Lite tape on the rear fender of each bicycle approved in the rodeo.

After a contestant had completed the six skill tests of the rodeo, he was given a card enrolling him in the Columbia City "Bicycle Safety Club" by Lee Gross, chief of police. The card pledged the bicycle owner to traffic safety and indentified the make, color and serial number of the bicycle.

A number of visiting police officials from other towns and cities in the area were present to view the rodeo. They were interested in starting a similar event in their communities.

The visitors were from Shelbyville: Lt. Dallas Phillips, chief of police; from Pierceton: Paul Sherwood, chief, and Eldon Werstler; Seymour: Robert Gill, chief of police, and Trooper Bert J. Reed safety education director of Seymour District, Indiana State Police, stationed at Columbus; and from Franklin: Sgt. Glenn Rund, safety education officer with the police department; and from Auburn: Trooper Bill Hunter, safety education director, Ligonier District, Indiana State Police.

Deubner-Bowlby Nuptials Occur Saturday In The Evangelical United Brethren Church

Mrs. Dick Deubner

The Rev. P. F. Young received the marriage vows of Miss Mildred Bowlby and Dick Deubner, Saturday evening at 7:30, in the Evangelical United Brethren church.

White gladiolus and gladiolus in various hues decorated the church altar.

Miss Beverly Hile, church organist, and James Forst, soloist, presented a short musical program before the ceremony. Mr. Forst sang "The Lord's Prayer" at the close of the ceremony. The musical program included the following numbers "Because" "Melody of Love" and "I Love You Truly."

Mrs. Robert Dempsey came from Coldwater, Mich., to serve her sister as matron of honor and Russel Wolfe, Jr., of this city attended Mr. Deubner as groomsman. Ushers were Mr. Dempsey, Dloyd Deubner, brother of the bridegroom, and Kenneth Kerch.

An afternoon dress styled of a brocaded material in a lilac shade, was worn by the bride given in marriage by her uncle, Ralph Barrett of Wabash. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Dempsey wore a white carnation corsage with her afternoon dress styled of brown satin and lace.

Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations. The bride's mother wore a dress fashioned of charcoal and pink faille, and her accessories were white. The bridegroom's mother wore red accessories with her black afternoon dress.

Reception In Social Room

One hundred and fifty guests were received in the church social room after the ceremony. Assistants at the reception were the Misses Delee Duebner, sister of the bridegroom, Lou Ann Ewigleben, Mary Jo Fisher, Marietta Miller.

For her wedding trip the bride wore a red linen suit with white accessories and a white carnation corsage. The couple will reside south of Columbia City.

The couple are graduates of Columbia City high school. The bridegroom is associated with Tenney Motor Sales. He is the son of Mrs. Remonda Deubner of Road 205 and Clarence Deubner of Greenville, O., and his bride is the daughter of Mrs. Bonnie Bowlby of 301½ West Market street and the late Homer Bowlby.

Guests From Out-of-Town

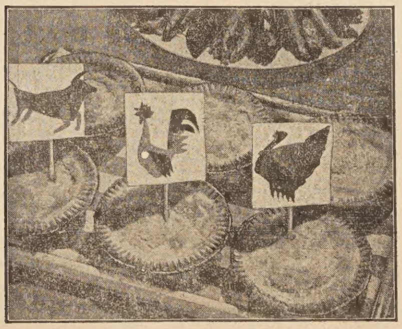
Frozen Meat Pies Delight Hostess



A hostess "with the mostest" these days has latched on to a new way to entertain from the freezer. Next time it's your turn to serve a club luncheon, try this fun way. Plan everything around a main course of meat pies . . . Chicken, Beef, and Turkey Pies. They are ready-made and as convenient as a trip to the nearest food store.

Serve a variety. Then each guest will have a chance to choose her favorite. You may want to mark the pies so you can remember which is which. Once they are baked, their flaky tender crusts all look alike. You might like to mark them with a party air. Mount little cut-outs of chickens, turkeys, and steers on paper drinking straws. Then "post" each atop the appropriate pie. If you are in a hurry and time doesn't allow for the cut-out identifications, use colored tooth picks . . . a different color for each pie variety!

Try one of these menus next time you have a luncheon. Then take the laurels for being the most relaxed hostess in your group.

Most High School Football Frontrunners Have Very Little To Worry About This Week

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
United Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Most Indiana high school football frontrunners have little to worry about this week, but there's little doubt the ax will continue to cut down the perfect record crews at a rapid rate.

No less than 10 major outfits were tumbled from the unbeaten and untied ranks last week, leaving only 15 unscathed squads today.

Here's the "honor roll:"

Four wins—Plymouth, Seymour, Kokomo, New Haven, Sullivan.

Three wins—Anderson, South Bend Adams and city foe Washington, East Chicago Roosevelt, Gary Wallace, Terre Haute Wiley, Evansville Reitz, Boonville, Indianapolis Lowe, Fort Wayne Concordia.

Danville's Warriors, with 15 strikes in the win column without a miss, lead the entire pack.

East Chicago Roosevelt, tops in last week's first United Press Coaches Poll, is idle and Kokomo and South Bend Adams won't risk their lofty conference standings this week.

Plymouth's Central Conference pace-setters seek their fifth straight loop win at Wabash, 1-4, Friday. Southport, which has split even in two games, is given only a slim chance to derail high-flying Seymour in this weekend's top South Central Conference tussle.

In the North Central, top games include Marion at Anderson while last year's co-champs—Indianapolis Tech and Muncie Central—also tangle. Tech hasn't won a game yet and Muncie, second in last week's U.P. elite, was knocked off at Evansville Reitz Saturday, 14-6. The Panthers' "insurance" play was a 15-yard touchdown pitch from Harry Gonterman to Billy Coleman.

Gary Wallace can tie Roosevelt's idle Rough Riders for the West NIHSC lead by taking city foe Emerson Thursday. Top games in the East NIHSC are Mishawaka at South Bend Riley Friday and South Bend Central versus crosstown rival Washington the next night.

Riley snapped a two-game losing streak Saturday at the expense of highly-rated south Bend Central, the No. 4 club state-wide, 6-0, on Ron Spychalski's nine-yard dash following a Central fumble.

Sullivan and Terre Haute Wiley, the Western Conference leaders, are heavy favorites. Sullivan goes to Brazil Friday and Wiley hosts Linton Thursday. Boonville was a solid choice to remain in front in the Southern Conference title chase by smacking Bicknell Friday

Major non-league games include Fort Wayne Central-North and Reitz at Terre Haute Gerstmeyer Friday, Hammond Noll at Fort Wayne Catholic Saturday.

J. C. Caroline Released From Canadian Team

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UP) — J.C. Caroline, former Illinois All-America halfback, picked up his walking papers from a Canadian football team today and headed back to the United States, hoping to try his hand at U.S.-style pro football.

Just three weeks ago, Caroline signed a $15,000 contract with the Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four conference. Last weekend, the club released him, it was learned here.

Coach Bill Swiacki said J.C. hadn't come up to expectations on defense or as a pass receiver.

But Caroline disagreed. He said "I got a very bad deal from Toronto and its owner Mr. Sonshine."

"It wasn't my defense work that brought my release," Caroline said. "If ever I thought I had a ball club made it was Toronto. But after three defeats in a row Sonshine wanted to bring in players for smaller contracts and he apparently decided to slice me to save money."

Visiting Team 3 Men Short

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP)—The visiting team from Michigan City, Ind., was three men short when it trotted onto the field Sunday. Police were as alarmed as the fans because the Michigan City players were all Indiana State Prison convicts.

The prison team's right fielder, first baseman, and center fielder had decided to pass up the game with a South Bend independent team in preference for a break for freedom.

The missing players were a robber, a burglar, and a murderer.

Robber Harlan Reed, 32, and burglar John (Whitey) Mitchele, 31, had come prepared for the break. They were wearing sweatshirts and blue jeans under their bright red and white uniforms when they slipped out of a dressing room window.

Murderer Harold LLoyd, 30, hadn't known of the escape attempt and therefore had no clothes to substitute for his uniform. But he went through the window, anyway.

Reed and Mitchele didn't welcome Lloyd. They insisted he stay away from them because he was still dressed like a baseball player.

As it turned out, Lloyd had the longest taste of freedom. Reed and Mitchele were captured four hours later in a woods near Mishawaka, Ind. Lloyd roamed about for six hours and was finally caught because Mishawaka residents were puzzled to see a man dressed in a baseball uniform hiding in a tomato patch.

The ball game? It was called off.

John L. Lewis In Hospital

WASHINGTON (UP)— John L. Lewis' physician said the 75-year-old United Mine Workers leader is in hospital because he "needed a rest."

Dr. John Minor, chief of medical service at Emergency Hospital, said Lewis probably would remain in the hospital for "a few days more." He entered Friday.

He said Lewis is "pretty tired" and was hospitalized "for a check-up to see what's wrong and what isn't wrong."

Scientists Say Some Good Even In Fallout, Evil By-Product Of Nuclear Explosions

WASHINGTON (UP)—There is some good even in fallout, the evil by-product of nuclear explosions.

It has given science a new tool, in the form of airborne radioactive "tracer atoms," for mapping atmospheric movements which are the basic arbiters of weather.

The new tool already has been used in the United States. It will be used again during the 1957-58 International Geophysical Year (IGY) to help determine the role, still a mystery, which frozen Antarctica plays in generating the world's weather.

It will help settle among other things a scientific controversy over whether the Antarctic air is an atmospheric island, sealed off from the rest of the world, or whether it is a vital part of a grand circulation system affecting the entire planet.

When nuclear weapons go off, they spew into the air vast swarms of radioactive atoms whose course can be followed by ray detecting instruments. Such atoms, released during this year's tests in Nevada and monitored by specially equipped aircraft, have given meteorologists new information about trajectories of the winds which blow across the continent from west to east.

According to Dr. Harry Wexler, chief of the Weather Bureau's scientific services division, precise knowledge of such air movements at various altitudes is essential to understanding and predicting weather.

Both Great Britain and the United States are expected to stage H-Bomb tests, the British in Australia and the Americans in the Pacific's Marshall Islands, before or during the IGY which starts in mid-1957.

If they do, fine for the weather scientists in Antarctica. By tracing "hot atoms" whose geographical to learn much about movement of source is known they will be able continent.

But even if there should be no further nuclear tests, it still would be possible to settle the argument over whether the Antarctic atmos- air into and away from the frozen phere is an island unto itself.

According to J. Glenn Dyer, chief of Arctic operations for the Weather Bureau, radioactive debris from past tests still is circulating thinly around the world. The great bulk of such fallout descends soon after an explosion, but the smaller particles tossed in the high atmosphere still are raining down in minute amounts wherever they have been carried by planetary air currents.

Any "above background" radiation in the Antarctic ice or air, Dyer said, would prove conclusively that atomospheric currents from other parts of the world had penetrated over the south polar continent.

It also would support what Dyer and Wexler already believe—that both polar regions play a dynamic part in a massive worldwide circulation of air that posses a moment-to-moment sum of energy equal to nearly seven million Hiroshima A-bombs.

Purdue Hopes For Full Strength This Saturday

INDIANAPOLIS UP — Purdue, 14-7 victor over College of Pacific, hopes to be at full strength Saturday when the Boilermakers launch their Big 10 campaign at Minnesota.

The Riveters shaded Pacific without the services of Len Dawson, whose only appearance was to kick an extra point, two other ball carriers and center Neil Habig, all hurt in pre-season drills.

A 53-yard pass play in the final period, from John Brideweser to Tommy Fletcher, won for Purdue

Indiana, which never got started in a 20-13 setback to Michigan State, resumes its rivalry with Notre Dame after a three-year lapse, at South Bend Saturday.

The Irish were impressive in a 17-0 triumph over Souther Methodist, Paul Hornung crashing for one touchdown and kicking a field-goal.

Meanwhile, only five Hoosier clubs still had perfect records after only two weeks of play. Ball State, Evansville and Wabash have won twice, Notre Dame and Purdue once.

Evansville's Indiana Collegiate Conference leaders host Eastern Illinois in a non-loop game Saturday, while Ball State is at DePauw, Butler at Indiana State, and Valparaiso at St. Joseph's in ICC tilts.

Evansville, with three backs tallying twice apiece, outclassed Butler, 45-14; St. Joseph's dumped DePauw, 27-13, while Valpo opened defense of its ICC crown with a 27-9 decision over Indana State.

In the Hoosier College Conference, Indiana Central seeks its second victory at the expense of Earlham, Taylor is at Anderson and Hanover at Franklin .

Central's Greyhounds, with Dick Nyers and Dick Schrier doing all the scoring, dropped Franklin, 20-13; Earlham beat Manchester, 21-13, and Hanover routed Anderson, 32-6.

Elsewhere Saturday, Manchester hosts Grand Rapids, Rose Poly is at Georgetown, Ky., and Wabash at Washington of St. Louis.

Also last Saturday, Ball State turned a fumble into the winning touchdown against Indiana Teachers of Pennsylvania, 13-7; Vic Lodovisi's pair of touchdown passes gave Wabash a 13-7 win over Albion, and Taylor blasted Rose Poly, 32-0.

Tomorrow's Drivers May Surprise You

By Betty Skelton, Dodge Test Driver

Your teen-ager may well be a better driver than you—if he has had a high-school driver training course. He knows more about cars is more alert, and is less nervous at the wheel.

And here is a fact that will jolt a young man's pride:—Your Junior Miss is an even better driver than Junior. If you don't believe it, check the insurance rates.

When you first learned to drive, your father or a friend probably took you out on a wide thoroughfare and showed you how to shift gears. After a few stops and starts, you were "graduated" from your driving course. To state it more accurately, you were turned loose.

Miss Skelton

But not Junior. In his high school driver training course he is taught by a thoroughly trained instructor. He learns how his car operates, and how to take proper care of it. Experts teach him driving skills and traffic rules and regulations.

Learns Properly

He avoids developing those bad driving habits you probably aren't aware you practice, because he learns proper methods from the start.

There's a big difference between your driving attitude, and Junior's. While you drive to work, you may plan your schedule for the day. You may decide what to buy Aunt Middy for her birthday while you drive to a shopping center. Your mind is on everything but driving. To you driving has become an automatic chore.

But for Junior driving is a real thrill. He concentrates on the exciting experience of cruising "his" mechanical marvel.

As a typical American youngster, Junior loves cars. He understands what makes his car tick, because he has grown up in a mechanical age where automobiles are a necessity. He has been taught to respect the horsepower under the hood, and he's a better natural driver than you were when you were a kid.

Over-Confidence Dangerous

Drivers in that age group up to 25 have more accidents than they should, and pay higher auto insurance rates because of it. But their accidents happen when they reach the over-confident stage where driving has become automatic to them—as it is to most adults. (Only 3 per cent of last year's accidents were caused by motorists with a year or less of driving experience!)

The high accident rate for under-25's is being whittled down. Every year more high schools throughout the nation are adopting driver training courses, whose skilled young graduates have 50 per cent fewer accidents than untrained drivers.

So, have a little faith in our new generation of drivers. Help them. Use your influence to establish a driver training class in your community. If your school already has a training course, make sure it is the best.

America's most famous woman driver, Miss Skelton holds the woman's automotive speed record of 143.44 mph, and is the only woman test driver in the automotive industry. Address any questions or suggestions about cars, safety, and driving problems to her in care of this newspaper.

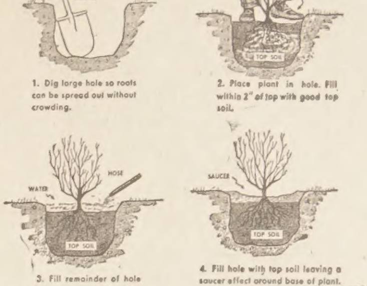
Lightweight Power House

Weighing less than 150 pounds, one of the world's smallest gas turbines delivers 84 horsepower. It's a lightweight wonder when compared with a 25 H.P. outboard motor which weighs over 95 pounds. Used as the source to provide self-starting power for jet aircraft engines, it operates a pneumatic system on the same plane as well. To produce this power from such a small unit, its rotor must turn at a speed of 40,000 revolutions-per-minute and withstand temperatures up to 1609° Fahrenheit.

How Does Your Garden Grow?

PLANNING AND PATIENCE really pay off in planting. Ask any successful gardener. He knows that careful preparation is the secret of gardening success. Take Nursery Stock, for example. Simply follow the easy-to-understand directions from The Gardening Council and you'll find the results bloom for themselves.



1. Dig large hole so roots can be spread out without crowding.
2. Place plant in hole. Fill within 2" of top with good top soil.
3. Fill remainder of hole with water and let settle.
4. Fill hole with top soil leaving a saucer effect around base of plant. This is used to catch rainfall.

A word of advice: Prune the plant unless the instructions tag tells you that the plant has been pruned for planting before shipment; and remember to stake all trees to prevent the soil loosening at the base and around the roots.

BACK IN SHAPE — A new steeple gleams on the Boston, Mass., skyline where only a year ago Hurricane Carol toppled the graceful top of historic Old North Church. It was restored through contributions of patriotic Americans.

Why Your Child Should Get Polio Vaccination

By Hart E. Van Riper, M.D., Medical Director National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis

(Editor's note: This is the second of a series of five articles on what parents should know about the Salk polio vaccine. Under Dr. Van Riper's direction the National Foundation sponsored the research development of the vaccine and he is in charge of the Foundation's program for vaccinating children in the first and second grades of school.

"Why did my child get polio? None of his playmates had it."

Many a parent, suddenly confronted with the dreaded diagnosis of paralytic polio, has asked this.

The answer is that one of the child's playmates, or some other person who was not ill himself, did indeed have the polio virus and did communicate it. The unwitting carrier was protected from paralysis by polio antibodies in his blood. The child who came down with paralytic polio was not.

Had that child been given the vaccine that Dr. Jonas E. Salk developed with support from the March of Dimes, he might have been spared paralysis. His parents could not have been sure of this—no vaccine protects everybody—but the chances would have been somewhere between 60 and 90 per cent that the child would have been brought through his infection with, at worst, a brief illness, and more likely with no illness at all.

Your doctor cannot tell you whether your child has been immunized naturally to paralytic polio through previous "silent infections." There is no simple, practical test he can make in his office. That is why every child should have the protection of the Salk vaccine — and for that matter why every young adult should have it too as soon as enough vaccine is available.

The vaccine achieves pretty much the same preventive effect, artificially, that an actual polio infection does naturally; that is, it sets in motion the human chemistry which produces protective antibodies Unlike gamma globulin, it does not introduce antibodies, ready-made, into the blood stream in given limited supply. Rather, it is a miniature Point 4 Program—helping the body to help itself.

The only way science has found to trigger this latent self-defense when nature has failed to do it is through the use of the virus itself—by introducing inactivated virus directly into the body. In a small minority of instances nothing happens; in most people the reaction to the presence of the virus is a quick emergency output of antibodies.

It would be easy enough to do this dangerously. Dr. Salk's job was to find a way to do it safely. It was complicated, moreover, by the fact that there are three types of polio virus, any one of which can cause paralysis. Hence all three types had to be embodied in the vaccine.

Dr. Salk rendered the virus harmless to human beings by "killing" it with a solution of formaldehyde. By the Salk method it is inactivated so that it cannot cause paralysis, yet not so completely "dead" that it loses its effect on antibody production.

Thus what happens in a Salk vaccination may be described as in the nature of a sham battle, in which the human system is conditioned to defend itself against a harmless facsimile of the polio virus, and after which it remains armed and ready in case the real thing comes along.

As soon as Dr. Salk and his colleagues learn how long the effect of one course of Salk vaccine shots lasts, and when, if ever, further booster shots are needed, immunity to paralytic polio can be made lifelong. When the day of universal vaccination comes, at least three out of four of those persons who are now susceptible to paralysis will be forever safe from it. This means that almost all of America's children will be free of the threat, and their parents free of the fear.

Hoosier State Press Advertising Meet Adopts Standards

Approximately 150 advertising personnel from Indiana newspapers attended the Hoosier State Press Association advertising conference held Saturday at Butler University in Indianapolis.

Chief outcome of the business session was the adoption of a "Standards of Advertising Practice" by the daily newspapers.

Louis Young, Indianapolis Times, served as chairman of the committee which prepared the standards with other members of the committee being Norman Wernet, Vincennes; William Bailey, New Castle; Wood H. Gageby, Terre Haute, and Dale Gillespie, Columbia City.

Also in the afternoon session an interesting panel discussion was presented on various newspaper advertising promotions, giving case histories.

Following the luncheon, an address was given by Harry Gwaltney, assistant advertising manager of the Milwaukee Journal. The Journal carries more advertising linage than any other newspaper in the world.

Gwaltney saw a continued business prosperity and predicted that by 1965 most businesses could nearly double their present gross if they set their goal and went after it. He pointed out how much had been done in the past ten years.

G. Earl Moss, LaPorte, was chosen chairman for the daily session next year and J. Butler, Portland, chairman for the weeklies.

Two Of Crewmen Are En Route To Honolulu

Were Rescued After Flying Tiger Plane Crash-Landed

HONOLULU (UP)—Two of five crewmen who crash-landed their Flying Tiger cargo plane in mid-Pacific Friday were en route to Honolulu today aboard the freighter that rescued them after they had been in the water more than 43 hours.

The Coast Guard said the other three crewmen were dead. None of the bodies was recovered.

Flying Tigers headquarters in Burbank, Calif., identified the two survivors as Tony Machado, Hollywood, the pilot, and Robert C. Hightower, Vallejo, Calif., the copilot.

A radio report from the Coast Guard cutter Kukui at the rescue scene said the two survivors suffered broken bones and shark bies, but their condition was "not too serious."

The freighter Steel Advocate pulled the two men from the Pacific waters at 11:04 p.m. EDT Sunday after they were spotted floating in life-jackets less than 10 miles from the plane's last reported position.

The Steel Advocate found the bodies of two other crewmembers floating face down in life jackets, but while they were being pulled into a rescue boat, the bodies slipped out of the jackets and disappeared beneath the surface.

The Coast Guard said the fifth man of the crew apparently never got out of the plan.

He taught six years in Lancaster, Kentucky, which is located almost directly south of Cincinnati about halfway across Kentucky. Before entering the Army in 1941 for four years, he had taught two years at Dry Ridge, Kentucky. From 1945 until he was contracted to teach in the local schools last spring, he had taught at Mt. MONORAIL BEING INTRODUCED TO U.S.—Jerrie Dell Davis, 9, uses a bottle of milk to "launch" a model of a monorail car planned for Houston, Tex. Designed for mass transportation, the car will run suspended from a single rail 20 feet above the ground, carrying 51 passengers at an average speed of 60 m.p.h. Track will be supported by a system of slender towers. An 830-foot test line, first such line in the United States, is being built in Houston by Monorail, Inc., to demonstrate the idea, which is supposed to cope successfully with heavy metropolitan traffic. Wuppertal, Germany, has had a monorail system in operation for over 50 years. It has been used there by 850 million persons without a single fatality, according to Monorail. The company estimates cost of the transportation system will be $500,000 a mile, which compares with the four to six-million-dollar cost for each mile of a freeway highway.

Wayne Harold Crouse, 29, of Center Line, Mich., was assessed a fine of $50 and costs and sentenced to 20 days in the Whitley county Jail Monday morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating beverage. The jail sentence was ordered when a six-month sentence to the Indiana State Farm was suspended. Crouse's drivers' license was also ordered suspended for a period of one year.

The charges of public intoxication contained in the first count of the affidavit filed Saturday were ordered continued indefinitely.

The two counts were placed against Crouse in the affidavit filed by William Bauman, South Whitley town marshal. Bauman charged that Crouse committed the offenses while driving Sunday on State Roads 5 and 14.

The court also ordered Crouse to advise his parents at Muncie to take possession of the car which has been stored in a garage at South Whitley.

Masked Bandits Rob Indiana Bank Of $15,940

Hold Family Of Women Prisoners Throughout Night

CARMEL, Ind. UP —Two bandits held a family of three women as prisoners throughout the night and robbed a bank of $15,940 today.

The masked gunmen waited 11 hours—first with three prisoners and later with six—until the time vault at Union State Bank clicked open. Then they scooped up the money and fled.

The key to their well-plotted holdup was Miss Thyrza Peters, a bank cashier.

The bandits went to her home at Whitestown, about 18 miles away, at 10 p.m. Sunday and herded Miss Peters, her elderly mother and her sister into a bedroom.

Before dawn, at 4 a.m., they drove the women to the bank, forced Miss Peters to unlock the door, and shoved the three into the basement. As three other employes showed up for work, one by one, they were forced to join the three women in the basement.

Shortly before 9 a.m., when the bank opens, the time mechanism on the vault unlocked it. The bandits grabbed all the cash in sight, ran to the Peters car, and sped away.

All this tme, they wore silk stockings over their heads to distort their features and make identification difficult.

Americans Have Record Income

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government reported today that Americans earned a record $285,368,000,000 in income in 1954.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell meanwhile predicted that 1955 would be even more prosperous year and 1956 equally good.

Personal income in 1954, the Commerce Department said, showed a 1 per cent increase over 1953. The department said personal income declined in 16 states but rose or remained close to 1953 totals in all the other states.

Mitchell said all economic signs indicate 1955 will be "a record year in our history." He added that business has confidence in the Eisenhower administration.

Wilson's disability raised great political bitterness. It was reported at the time that one delegation of Republican senators actually went to the White House and insisted on looking at the President in his sickroom.

Wilson's administration meanwhile "went to pieces" according to the historian David S. Muzzey.

"There were rumors that private secretary Tumulty and Mrs. Wilson were running the government," Muzzey recorded. "congress . . . ceased to look to the White House for guidance or advice. the Cabinet disintegrated. Six of the members resigned. . ."

The Democrats Gave Downtown Area Modern Street Lighting

During the Democratic administration of 1948-52 the most modern street lighting system was installed in the downtown business area and also some arc lights were installed in some residential areas.

The difference in the lighting system is about as much as the difference between night and day.

Many compliments have come to Columbia City from out-of-town residents traveling though the city regarding this modern lighting.

Just another community betterment plan originated by a progressive Democratic Administration.

4-H Commercial Beef Project Members Sell Animals Monday

Nineteen 4-H boys from eight Northeastern Indiana counties sold their groups of commercial 4-H steers at the Producers Marketing Association stockyards at Briggs Monday afternoon.

These steers were bought, fed, and marketed by 4-H boys with the idea of gaining practical knowledge in the beef cattle business. The project is sponsored by the county extension service, Albion Production Credit, and Producers Marketing Associations.

Several of the boys financed their entire program, and by doing so, established a credit rating for themselves.

Feeding Costs

Charles Seneff, Noble county agent and chairman of the 4-H Commercial Beef Feeding Project, stated Monday afternoon that the steers sold in the auction at the local stockyards brough from $16.90 to $24.10 per hundred pounds. The animals sold graded from utility to prime. Mr. Seneff stated the cost of gains ranged from 14 cents to 26 cents per pound, depending on the program the boys used. Some of the boys fed nearly 100 per cent roughages to their steers, while others dry fed their animals all the way through the project, which began January 1, 1954. He added that the records showed that the amount of corn consumed by individual animals ranged from 10 to 60 bushels during the feeding program.

Purchase Price

The purchase price of the calves started as low as 15.5 cents per pound and one boy paid as high as 23.3 cents per pound for his animals.

Paul Mitchell, cattleman from Purdue University, conducted a session on grading during the morning, and the animals were sold in the afternoon auction.

A banquet will be held for the boys in this project on October 4 at the Methodist church in Albion. Mr. Mitchell at that time will give his summary and conclusions of the program.

Also in line with this program, a discussion of grades of feeder cattle will be given by Mr. Mitchell October 5 at 8:00 p.m. at the Producers yards south of town. Feeding methods and the beef outlook will also be discussed.

County Members

Originally there were 18 members in the project from this county, but all but one had to sell their cattle prior to the auction, because they had finished out "ahead of schedule" and it was not good business to hold them.

Jerry McCoy, of Smith township, sold a group of Angus heifers that graded choice.

Other boys participated in the project from Allen, Noble, DeKalb, Elkhart, Lagrange, Steuben, and Kosciusco counties.

Experts Agree Painting Is A Da Vinci Original

Was Purchased For $450; Worth One Million Dollars

CHICAGO (UP)—The art director of the University of Notre Dame said today a painting purchased for $450 in a New York antique shop has been identified by Europe's "four top experts" as a one-million-dollar Leonardo da Vinci original.

Dr. Maurice H. Goldblatt said the experts agreed with him that the painting, "Madonna and Chid" is the work of Da Vinci, the most brilliant figure of the Italian Renaissance.

He estimated the painting, an oil on wood measuring 25¼ by 20¼ inches, at about one million dollars.

Goldblatt said the work, ascribed to an "unknown artist," was purchased last year by Hanns R. Teichert, a Chicago art dealer, who found it while browsing in New York.

Teichert took the painting to Goldblatt, who decided there had been some restoration, but that the rest of the work was a Da Vinci original.

Convinced he was right, Goldblatt took the painting to Europe this summer, where he said all four of the "greatest scholars on the subject" agreed with him.

He identified the authorities as Dr. Giorgio Nicodemi, Milan, Italy, organizer of the "Leonardo da Vinci Exhibition of 1940" in Milan; Louis Reau, professor at the Sorbonne in Paris; Dr. Thomas M. Judson, former curator at the Vatican Art Gallery in Rome; and Dr. Max Friedlander of Amsterdam.

Nixon Moving By Force Of Circumstances Toward Role As Unofficial Acting President

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon was moving by force of circumstances today toward a new role as unofficial acting President of the United States.

It must be unofficial because there is no such office, nor any immediate need for a legalistic delegation of presidential powers to the vice president.

So Nixon's new role is informal. There were hints that it may—probably will—rest there unless President Eisenhower has a relapse or repeat heart attack. That much developed from Monday's White House lunch among Nixon, presidential chief of staff Sherman Adams, Acting Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers and other White House personnel.

They agreed to call a Friday cabinet meeting and that announcement was made by the White House, but in Nixon's name. In Denver it was not felt necessary even to advise Mr. Eisenhower of it. The point was made here and in Denver, that the role of Nixon and Adams, as chief of staff, in this situation merely follows a pattern established when the President previously has been absent or ill. Moreover, it is a personal and not a legalistic delegation of authority.

Question Under Study

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told Denver newsmen that the question of delegation of power was under study but that there was "nothing in the immediate future requiring the delegation of presidential powers or the signature of the President."

The situation in Washington was further eased by the fact that Mr. Eisenhower is reported in full possession of his faculties and may be able to receive an official visitor or two and to sign essential papers in a matter of a fortnight or less.

The new roles of Nixon and Adams are less a sign of crisis here than of an easy and temporary adjustment to meet an unusual and presumably temporary situation.

Nixon Confers Today With Top Financial Men

And GOP's Chief Political Strategist

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon, in his new role as unofficial "acting president," conferred today with the government's top financial officers and the Republican Party's chief political strategist.

The Secret Service detail guarding the vice president was expanded and put on a round-the-clock basis.

With three newly assigned bodyguards trailing him, Nixon arrived at his office at the Capitol at 8:10 a.m. CST. His first visitor was Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes, who spent half an hour briefing Nixon on budget problems that are due to come up at Friday's Cabinet meeting.

Nixon will preside over the Cabinet meeting and also over a meeting of the National Security Council Thursday.

Brownell Comes Home

Both meetings will be at the White House.

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall followed Hughes into Nixon's office.

After his political huddle with Hall, Nixon had a lunch date with Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey at Humphrey's office in the Treasury Department.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr., who was in Europe when Mr. Eisenhower was stricken Saturday returned to the capital to take up legal problems raised by the President's enforced absence.

Brownell told reporters the Justice Department will "move promptly" in deciding what can legally be done about delegating some of Mr. Eisenhower's duties and powers while he is confined to bed.

The word from Denver, however, was that there was no present plan to make any formal, legalistic delegation of presidential powers to Nixon.

Three area accidents the last three days caused damage to vehicles but only one person suffered minor injuries in the mishaps.

Joe Swartz, 75, a passenger in a car which was involved in a collision with a truck at 4:15 p.m. Monday at Van Buren and Main, suffered bruised legs. The driver of the automobile, Mrs. Bertha May Swartz, 75, his wife, was uninjured in the collision.

According to city police report, the Swartz vehicle collided with a truck and semi-trailer driven by John R. Berry, 35, of R 1, Cowpens, S.C. The report said that the driver of the truck was attempting to make a left-hand turn into Van Buren street in front of the car which was southbound on Main street.

Berry was arrested by the police following the accident on a charge of failure to yield the right of way.

An estimated $450 damage was caused to the front end and frame of the Swartz automobile and about $100 to the left front fender and headlight of the truck.

About $600 total estimated damage was caused to two vehicles involved in an accident Sunday evening on State Road 9 south.

Junior Hershberger, 36, of Middlebury, was driving a car north on the road when his vehicle collided with a car pulling onto the highway from a side road. The latter vehicle was driven by Jerry Millington, 17, of Warsaw.

The Millington car, eastbound on the side road, was attempting a left-hand turn onto the highway when the accident occurred, according to Trooper Wayne Reese of the Indiana State Police who investigated.

The right side of the Hershberger car was damaged an estimated $500 while the left front of the Millington car sustained an estimated $100 damage.

A truck and a station wagon received minor damages at 4:45 p.m. Monday when they were involved in an accident at the junction of State Roads 5 and 114 near Luther.

Hall was arrested following the accident on a charge of failure to yield the right of way.

8 Bus Drivers Serve Students Of Smith Township Schools

Eight bus drivers serve the students living in the Smith township school community this fall, according to a list released by William W. Shew, township trustee.

The number is one more than in 1954, because of a new route being added. Donald E. Brown was employed to drive the bus on the new route, which was started south of Churubusco to augment one already assigned to that area.

Other drivers with their years of service, as given by Shew, are Milo Egolf, 15-18 years; Emanuel Geiger, 12 years; Joseph Shively, 8 years; Esli Shively, six years; Ray Palmer, five years; Merrill Zumbrun, two years; and Guy Allman, who is beginning his first year after driving for about one-half of 1954.

The drivers man the buses which serve both the Churubusco and Collins schools. Two new buses were purchased by the township for use at the schools this fall, Shew announced.

Both janitors at the two schools are beginning their first year. They are Ross Phillips, who replaced Walter Phillips who had been at Collins school for about 15 years, and John Ballard, former Churubusco chief of police, who replaced Dwight Parish after the latter had held the position for 12 years.

Electric Chair Claims Lives Of Two Killers

Phantom Killer, Lovers' Lane Slayer

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (UP) — The notorious "phantom killer" of the Pennsylvania Turnpike and a youthful lovers' lane slayer went calmly to thier deaths in the electric chair Monday night, closing the books on two of the state's most bizarre murder cases.

First to enter the death chamber at Rockview Penitentiary was baby-faced George L. Capps, 23, Levittown, convicted of the fatal shooting of Marta Marie Gibbons, 15, a neighbor, in a lover's lane after she resisted his advances.

John Wesley Wable 28, maintaining to the end that "I ain't going to die. I'll be here a long time yet," followed him minutes later. Wable had been condemned to death for the saying of a Virginia truck driver who lay dozing in his parked tractor trailer on the Pennsylvania Turnpike near Irwin.

The two partners in death met for the first time Monday afternoon when they entered the penitentiary death row. They spoke casually to each other during their final meal — braised ham chunks, brown gravy, boiled potatoes, creamed peas, stewed tomatoes grape jelly, bread and cocoa—but did not mention their common fate.

Capps who was accompanied by the Rev. Richard Walsh, Catholic chaplain at Rockview, appeared unperturbed as he was strapped into the chair at 10:02 p.m. EDT. He crossed himself, glanced around the bare chamber, and waited for the end. He was pronounced dead at 10:05 p.m.

Two minutes later Wable entered the death room. He watched impassively as guards strapped him to the chair and looked once at the execution witness.

"God is our refuge and strength," chanted Protestant prison chaplain Rev. Kenneth Anderson as the current surged through the slim body at 10:08 p.m.

The new structure was started in March, 1952, and the basement was ready for use by December of the same year. The main part of the structure measures 86 x 52 feet, and will be of Indiana limestone.

Red Feather Sale To Highlight Chest Campaign

Kiwanis, Rotary Clubs To Man Downtown Booths October 7-8

The Whitley County Community Chest will highlight its publicity campaign for the 1955 collection drive with a "Red Feather Sale" October 7-8, according to Clarence Gall, Chest president.

Arrangements have been completed for members of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs to man booths in the downtown areas on those days for selling the red feathers. "The idea of such a sale will be to make persons in the community conscious of the Red Feather and its significance in the Community Chest campaign which will get underway soon," Gall said. "We hope to distribute the feathers widely enough so that anyone not wearing one that weekend will feel improperly dressed," the campaign chairman continued.

The goal in the 1955 Community Chest drive is $19,855, to be distributed among 10 agencies, campaign and administration costs, reserve for unpaid pledges and contingency fund.

The agencies and the amounts they will receive are United Service Organization $200, Anthony Wayne Council Boy Scouts $1605, Whitley County Boys Scouts $400, Whitley County Girl Scouts $600, Cancer Society $1400, Red Cross $5,415, Heart Foundation $600, Brotherhood of the Blind $50, Salvation Army $4,000 and Council for Retarded Children $2,235.

The following amounts have been ear-marked for costs and funds: Campaign expenses $300, Administration costs $800, Unpaid pledges $750, and Contingency fund $1,500.

The goal is $1,852 more than the $18,003 in 1954 which was exceeded by about $1,000. However, one new agency is represented in the drive this year. This is the Whitley County Council for Retarded Children.

The amount by which last year's goal was exceeded was almost entirely used for additional requests for funds by the various agencies, according to Gall. He said that a check for $173 was recently given to the Red Cross for use in flood disaster rehabilitation work in the East.

Jefferson Center School Employes Have 71 Years Service

The Jefferson Center school bus drivers and janitor have a combined total of 71 years of service in the school community, according to Lester Brock, township trustee.

Hobart Rhoads, bus driver for 19 years, has the longest continous period of service. He is followed closely by Roy McCoy, also a bus driver for the school, who has 16 years of service. Loren Cowan, another driver, and Paul Putman, school janitor, are tied for the third longest service tenure, each with approximately 12 years.

The other three bus drivers and their lengths of service are Lester Swing, eight years, and Wayne Rosenberger and Carl Shoda, each with two years.

Brock also revealed that the township purchased two year 54-passenger buses which were put in use at the school this fall.

Wayne Cummins Retires After 20 Years As Bus Driver

Wayne Cummins retired this fall after 20 years as a bus driver for Etna-Troy township schools. He was succeeded by Schuyler Van Voorst.

The school community will have another 20-year man after this year. James Bohnstedt, janitor, began his 20th year at the school this fall.

Other bus drivers for the school and their years of service are Lloyd Kile, 12 years; Ronald Kenner; four; Robert Stangland three. Thomas Western two; and Lester Hinen, a new driver who succeded Arthur Krider.

Mr. And Mrs. Glenn To Attend Funeral Of Local Teacher

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Glenn left this morning for Lancaster, Kentucky to attend the funeral services this afternoon of Horace Hendrickson, high school debate coach and teacher here who was killed early Sunday morning near Greenville, Ohio, in an auto crash.

Mr. Hendrickson had just begun teaching in the local high school this fall.

The city school board meeting, regularly scheduled for this evening, has been postponed until Thursday evening.

Chest Announces Drive Chairmen Monday Night

October 10 Set As Date For Opening Campaign

The organization of top chairman for the 1956 Community Chest of Whitley County was completed Monday night at a meeting of the Board of Directors.

Chairmen to spearhead the campaign in the various areas of the county were announced following the meeting. Chest President Clarence Gall also announced the opening date of October 10 for the annual campaign.

Named as chairmen in the areas of the county were J. D. Reiff, Townships; Mrs. J. L. Isay, Churubusco; William Striggle, South Whitley, and David B. Spence, Columbia City.

In addition to the October 10 date, Gall also said that preliminary steps in the campaign will be made October 7 and 8 when the Columbia City Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs will "sell" Red Feathers, symbol of united fund giving, on street corners in Columbia City.

The 1956 goal is $19,855, Gall said. Nine agencies will benefit from the Community Chest.

"The Community Chest supports these agencies for an entire year and eliminates separate drives," Gall pointed out.

The Chest president also stressed the importance of the agencies' right to re-apply to the Community Chest for additional assistance throughout the year. Included in the Chest budget is a contingency fund during 1955.

"Give Where You Live" was a suggestion which the Board of Directors made in regard to the 1956 campaign. All agencies in the Whitley County Community Chest are of local benefit whereas funds given to other united drives in other counties remain in those counties, the Board said.

Knows, Accepts Fact He Has Sick Heart

Long Time Before He Can Have Fully Active Life Again

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower felt like a well man today and looked like one, but he knew and accepted the fact that he has a sick heart and it will be a long time before he can take up a fully active life again.

The 64-year-old Chief Executive was making satisfactory progress, according to doctors, against the damage done to his heart by a thrombosis — a blood clot — early last Saturday. He drifted off to an easy sleep at Monday night, after a visit from his wife.

Mr. Eisenhower's doctors said the President's appearance is that of a healthy man and that he feels so buoyant as a result of the oxygen treatment that he would like to get out of bed and swing a golf club.

At the same time, they said, the President is fully aware of the seriousness of his condition and is following their instructions faithfully.

The 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST) bulletin on the President's condition said he had spent "a very good night." The bulletin, signed by the White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder

Communist China Is Likely To Get Some Bad News Within Next Few Days From Indonesia

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Communist China is likely to get some bad news within the next few days.

The young republic of Indonesia, the world's sixth largest nation, is to hold its first parliamentary election Thursday.

Premier Burhanuddin Harahap's Masjumi Party is expected to get enough votes to form a strong coalition government.

And that will be the bad news for the Peiping Red regime.

The Masjumi Party is based on the Moslem religion. It is utterly opposed to the anti-religious Chinese Communists, and is right wing in politics.

The Nationalist Party, which was in power until Harahap became Premier on Aug. 12, was strongly left wing. It was friendly toward Red China and depended on the 17 Communists in the Provisional Parliament to stay in office.

Predecessor A "Neutralist"

Nationalist Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo, whom Harahap succeeded, was a fellow "neutralist" of Premier Jawaharlal Nehru of India.

This so-called neutralism actually has worked in favor of the Chinese Reds and against the United States and its allies.

Harahap has announced that if his party wins the election he will keep Indonesia neutral in the Cold War.

But he is on record as being friendly to the United States. It is indicated that even if he remains neutral — and he may not — the balance of Indonesian policy will be swung from the Communist bloc to the West.

Indonesia is a big and important country. Its 3,000-odd islands and countless islets sprawl for 2,000 miles along the equator.

With 81-million people, it is outranked only by China, India, Russia, the United States and Japan in population.

2 Classes Dismissed At West Ward School Because Of Cold Rooms

The first grade and kindergarten students at West Ward school in Columbia City were dismissed from classes at noon Tuesday because of lack of heat in the rooms.

The heating lines at the school have been disconnected from the city lines and have not been connected with the new steam heating plant near the school. It was reported that all of the students were "shivering" in their rooms and that it was too cold for the younger children to attend classes the rest of the day.

According to a statement from the office of Edward Glenn, city superintendent of schools, the new heating lines were scheduled to be hooked up at the school by Tuesday afternoon.

Today's Food Builds Tomorrow's Health

LAFAYETTE — "Today's food builds tomorrow's health," says Miss Lois Oberhelman, extension foods and nutrition specialist at Purdue University. Years of production activity may be materially increased if good eating habits are begun at birth and carried through life.

America is a land of plenty, but many people are not eating the foods their bodies need for good health. Recent surveys show that 35 per cent of the American families were not getting sufficient amounts of calcium to meet their health needs; 20 per cent had less than adequate amounts of ascorbic acid (vitimin C), thiamine, riboflavin and niacin. These deficiencies can be elminated by including more milk and dairy products, citrus fruits, eggs, yellow and green leafy vegetables, whole grain cereals and meat or fish.

Another survey shows that the poorest fed member of most families is the teenage girl, and the best fed is the baby When the family budet is limited, the mother tends to skimp on her own diet.

The health and well-being of the family is largely in the mother's hands because she plans the meals, buys and prepares the foods, and trains the family in good eating habits. Since most family eating problems begin in the home, they can best be met by the homemaker giving more attention to planning and preparing the three meals a day she serves to her family. If she sees to it that three well-balanced meals of only nutritious foods go on the table every day, and the adults set a good example, few bad eating habits will develop.

The degenerative diseases of middle and older age, such as rheumatism, arthritis, gall bladder trouble, diabetes and heart condition, are American's number one health problems today. Good eating haibts and weight control are considered one of the most practical means for preventing or retarding these degenerative diseases.

Mary Wilson Requests Divorce In Circuit Court

Mary E. Wilson, R 7, filed a complaint for divorce against Phillip G. Wilson in Whitley county circuit court Saturday.

According to the complaint, the couple was married August 26, 1951, and separated September 24, 1955. Two children were born to the marriage and the plaintiff has the custody of three children of a previous marriage. She charges the defendant with cruel and inhuman treatment.

The court approved a restraining order enjoining the defendant from molesting or annoying the plaintiff pending a hearing on the divorce complaint and also to prevent Wilson from disposing of certain property owned by the parties. She also asks for custody of the two children.

Despirito's Condition Is Satisfactory

However, the Lawrence, Mass., youth will not be discharged "for some time," a hospital spokesman said.

Esther Williams Makes Television Debut Tonight

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Esther Williams, complete with waterproof hair, makes her television debut tonight on TV's first underwater musical show — providing her special swimming pool doesn't spring another leak.

The willow mermaid of the movies will strip to a swim suit and dive into a pond constructed for "The Milton Berle Show" on NBC-TV, Berle's first program of the season and the beginning of his new variety series originating in Hollywood.

Getting a tank of waves for Esther to plow through proved to be the biggest production headache of the year.

At last inspection, the NBC stage was flooded with two inches of water. The special tank built for Esther turned out not to be waterproof.

Wouldn't Let Her

"I think by now they wished they'd never met me," sighed Esther while workmen mopped up the rising tide on the floor.

"The only solution may be to move the tank to another stage. If it keeps leaking during the show, Milton will be doing the sketches with water up to his ankles."

Esther has been interviewed on "Toast of the Town" and 'Person to Person," but she's never performed on television because MGM wouldn't let her. This year she won permission for TV. Then the networks frowned that her swimming act couldn't be done on a live show.

"Milton thought it could," she said. "He wants everything to be spectacular on his shows this season because they're all in color. He wanted to get people like me who haven't appeared on television. Well, he's really starting off with a splash."

Is Much Harder

NBC sent two engineers to huddle with Esther on how to get her under the whitecaps. A 40-by-15-by-10-foot tank was built. But the 18,000 gallons of water weighed 126,000 pounds, and the stage floor couldn't take the weight.

The tank finally was rebuilt in a V-shape to lighten the load. Four cameras were planted around the tank—two next to hue plexiglass windows to show Esther undulating under water in her apricot-colored swim suit.

"This is much harder than swimming for the movies," she said. "I had to have a dress designed that can change into a bathing suit. And I have to wear waterproofing on my hair and make-up during the entire show because I won't have time to run out and change after I dance.

"I'll swim for five minutes—while in pictures we do it in a minute at a time. NBC says they've never attempted anything quite so ambitious. But I hope the tank doesn't fall apart during the show. We'd drown the audience!"

The Falcons

DENVER (UP) — All athletic teams representing the new U. S. Air Force will carry the nickname of the "The Falcons." The storied bird was chosen as the symbol of the academy Monday by an almost unanimous vote of the 296 cadets in the first class.

Eddie Fisher And Debbie Reynolds On Honeymoon

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (UP) — Singer Eddie Fisher, despite all the reports he wouldn't, married actress Debbie Reynolds and they were honeymooning today at an undisclosed spot.

The year-old romance between the bobby-sox idol and the young actress reached its climax Monday night at this Catskill Mountain resort where Fisher began his meteoric rise to fame a decade ago—at $30 a week.

It was a simple, but double-ring ceremony that lasted three minutes. At the end, the diminutive Fisher kissed his petite bride lustily, and she breathed a sigh that was plainly audible to the three dozen persons who witnessed the marriage.

For Fisher, 27, and his 23-year-old bride, it was their first marriage. And for the honey-blonde actress, she said she hoped it would be her last. Asked if she planned to raise a family Debbie replied demurely:

"Doesn't everyone plan to have a family eventually."

The civil ceremony was performed by Sullivan County Judge Lawrence Cook, arrayed in his judicial robes. He and the happy couple stood in front of a flower-banked fireplace in the living room of Dr. and Mrs. David Etess. Their home is a part of the resort area.

Actually, the wedding was delayed almost an hour because Fisher's mother, Mrs. Kate Stupp, enroute here from Pennsylvania for the nuptials, was delayed by heavy traffic in Philadelphia.

Debbie is a Protestant and Fisher is of the Jewish faith. In concluding his remarks, Cook told them, referring to the Jewish holy days which ended a few hours before the wedding:

"I know this ceremony originally was planned for Sunday. I admire you, Mr. Fisher, for keeping the preceipts of your religion and you, Mrs. Fisher, for respecting your husband's beliefs"

The newlyweds declined to say where they would spend their wedding night. But for the time after that — as in the life of all people in show business — their whereabouts will be no secret.

Wednesday they will be in Washington where Eddie will appear at a convention of the people who sponsors ihis TV and radio shows. Then he and his bride will see a World Series game in New York. And on Friday they will go to South Bend Ind., where Eddie's TV show will originate from the Notre Dame campus.

1. We would like to show you some of the things that make the new 1956 Ford one of America's finest cars—despite the fact it is one of America's lowest-priced cars. Let's start with these long, low lines. Looks like it hates to stand still, doesn't it?

Let's take a walk around the NEW '56 FORD!

2. Here, on your left, is the inspiration for the styling of the '56 Ford—the famous Ford Thunderbird. You can see the similarity from any angle. Look at those broad, flat hoods, those visored headlights, for example. Here is styling that will stay in style.

It's the fine car at half the fine car price!

3. Here's what you ride on. This frame has five cross-members including a K-bar member up front. It can take it! And Ford's Ball-Joint Front Suspension really blots out bumps.

4. Here's the new 202-h.p. Thunderbird Y-8 and we assure you, it will give you new driving enjoyment. It's available in Fordomatic Fairlane and Station Wagon models . . . the 176-h.p. Y-8 in Fordomatic Mainline and Customline models . . . the 137-h.p. Six in all models.

7. Here's Ford's new Lifeguard door latch. A double-grip locking engagement reduces the chance of doors springing open under impact. Chances of serious injury in accidents are less when passengers remain in the car.

5. Note the deep-center design of this new Lifeguard steering wheel. The wheel rim is over three inches above the post to help cushion the driver in case of an accident.

6. This Lifeguard cushioning for instrument panel and sun visors is optional. It gives you extra protection against serious injuries when thrown forward in an accident. You may also have optional seat belts to help keep occupants securely in their seats.

Well, that covers the important points. But there's a lot more. So we'd like to invite you to come in and see the new '56 Ford for yourself. Then you'll see the colorful new exteriors and interiors, the quality workmanship that is evident everywhere. Then you'll learn the full story. You'll know that Ford is the fine car at half the fine car price.

Mr. And Mrs. Asa White Have Returned From Ten Day Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Asa White of Elm street have returned from a 10-day trip through Canada and a number of Eastern states. Going by way of Detroit, the Whites visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Osborn, residents of that city, who lived in Whitley county for a number of years.

They drove to Niagara Falls through Canada along Lake Erie, visited Buffalo, then crossed New York state to Olean and across the state of Pennsylvania to Youngstown, Ohio. They visited relatives of Mr. White at Bucyrus, Kenton, Ridgeway and West Mansfield, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. White report that the mountains along the Alleghany River have taken on a fall coloring.

Eisenhower

and Col. George Powell, chief of medical services at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, said Mr. Eisenhower slept almost continuously from 8 o'clock Monday night until 6:15 a.m. today.

The text of the brief bulletin:

"The President had a very good night. He slept almost continuously from 8 o'clock last night until 6:15 this morning."

His physicians took away his oxygen tent for three, 30-minute periods Monday, and they were expected possibly to let him remain from under it even more today. They let him sleep under it Monday night, to maintain his feeling of well-being.

According to Dr. Paul Dudley White, a world famous heart specialist who examined the President twice, reassured him and returned to his home in Boston in a special military plane Monday, the President's appearance is deceiving.

Barring an unforeseen complication, White expects the President to recover so completely he can run for a second term if he wants to. But he said, after he returned to Boston, that though the President "feels well and looks well," he is still "quite sick."

"Every day counts in his favor, the first week being the most important," White said. Today will make half a week the President has been a cardiac patient.

The President was on a relatively light diet and at meal hours he was permitted to leave the oxygen tent for as much as 30 minutes. The attending physicians were happy about his morale, but their advice was that the Chief Executive should remain in the hospital for about a month.

Mrs. Eisenhower, living in a hospital room across the hall from the President, was able to see her husband several times a day, talking with him for brief periods through the glassine walls of the oxygen apparatus, and while he was not under the tent.

The Eisenhowers' son, John, an Army major stationed at Ft. Belvoir, Va., felt that his father's condition was sufficiently stable to permit him to fly back to Washington today.

The President's staff followed a policy of keeping from him any details of official business. The doctors hoped however, that by late next week the President would be able to consider official documents and hold a limited number of conferences.

One of his first meetings may be with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. From such a meeting might come a statement to assure the world that the President's illness will not lead to any basic change in American foreign policy.

The White House seemed much less concerned than some areas in Washington about the possible delegation of presidential powers to Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said a study of possible legal involvements was being made back at the White House and the Justice Department. But Hagerty added:

"There is nothing in the immediate future that requires delegation of powers or the signature of the President."

Rumors that the President might entertain the idea of resignation washed up against the Summer White House, but responsible officials scoffed at them.

After the president completes about a month in the hospital here, he was expected to return fairly soon to the East. Until he has completed a safe period of recuperation, he was expected to spend most of his time on his farm at Gettysburg, Pa.

Vice President Nixon called meetings of the cabinet and the National Security Council for later this week at the White House, but the President was not told about this.

Stengel Juggles Starting Lineup Of Favored Yankees, With Mantle, Rizzuto Problems

NEW YORK (UP) — Manager Casey Stengel was juggling the starting lineup of the favored New York Yankees today, with Mickey Mantle and Phil Rizzuto his big problems on the eve of the first game of the World Series against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Stengel's worries, chiefly about Mantle's injured leg, were responsible for a slight reduction in the odds favoring the Yanks to win the opening game from 13-10 down to 6-5. But New York remained a 13-10 choice to win the world championship for the sixth time in seven years.

"I don't know who's in the outfield and I don't know who's in the infield," Stengel admitted. "But I do know I got two pitchers ready — Whitey Ford and Tommy Byrne."

Pint-sized Ford, a southpaw who won 18 games and lost seven and has "a lot of nerve," according to Stengel, is certain to start Wednesday's game at Yankee Stadium. He will be opposed by huge Don Newcombe, Brooklyn's blaze-balling righthander with the best won - lost record in the major leagues — 20 victories against only five defeats.

Mantle injured a thigh muscle on Sept. 23 and hasn't played since although he has taken batting practice. Stengel said the final decision on the star center fielder may not be made until just a few minutes before Wednesday's 1 p.m. EDT game time.

Rizzuto, who will be playing in his ninth World Series, is an uncertain starter at shortstop for the Yankees simply because of weariness. If Stengel doesn't think tiny Phil is ready, skinny Jerry Coleman will start at short. If Mantle isn't ready, then Irv Noren could get the call in center field — or perhaps it might be Bob Cerv.

By contrast, Manager Walter Alston — making his first appearance as a series pilot — has the Dodgers' opening game lineup all set. It features seven right-handed hitters to face the southpaw slants of Ford, with only big Duke Snider and Newcombe batting left-handed. Alston is expected to keep the same lineup for the second game when Byrne, another southpaw, is the probable Yankee hurler.

The rivals both had workouts scheduled today — but at each other's ballpark. The switch was made by mutual agreement to enable the players to become more familiar with the strange territory.

That means the Dodgers cavort today in spacious Yankee Stadium, scene of the first two games. The famed Brooklyn right-handed sluggers — Roy Campanella, Gil Hodges and Carl Furilo — will be testing their aim at the distant left-field seats.

Meanwhile, the Yankees will be drilling in cramped Ebbets Field, where the series shifts on Friday for the third, fourth, and fifth games. They'll find out just how much closer those walls in Brooklyn are.

Manager Alston, anxious to lead the Dodgers to their first Wrold Series championship in eight tries and to end the "spell" of five World Series losses to the Yankees, is also beset with health problems.

Right-fielder Furillo, the "hottest" Dodger hitter in the final month of the season, had to remain in bed all day Monday with sinus attack, but Alston said, "I'm pretty sure he'll be ready." And Clem Labine, ace of Brooklyn's relief pitching staff, reported he was feeling "punk." The Dodger trainers were watching crew-cut Clem closely to see if he was coming down with a virus.

Indications are that Stengel plans to follow Ford and Byrne by using righthander Bob Turley, his strikeout ace, in the third game of the series — the first to be played in Brooklyn. Don Larsen, who missed Monday's Yankee drill because of a cold, seems headed for the start in the fourth game.

Alston has more trouble than Stengel in lining up a pitching order. He says that "right now" righthander Billy Loes, a 10-game winner, figures as his starting pitcher for the second game with righthander Carl Erskine, an 11-game winner, going in the third. Erskine set a series record during the 1953 classic by striking out 14 Yankees in one game, but has been plagued with arm trouble this year and hasn't pitched in peak form for months.

As for the fourth game, Alston's pitching plans seem to depend on how the series stands then. If Brooklyn is leading, the assignment could go to either of two lefthanders, sore-ribbed Johnny Podres or Rookie Karl Spooner. But if the Dodgers are losing, it's almost imperative that Alston call on Newcombe to pitch again with only two days rest to save things.

Rivers Wins Decision Over Bobby Dawson

NEW YORK (UP)—Slugger Neal Rivers, who jerked the welcome-home mat from beneath Bobby Dawson's feet Monday night, will get another middleweight TV fight at St. Nicholas Arena on Nov. 7.

Stocky Rivers of Niagara Falls, N.Y., won a unanimous 10-round decision over lanky, Georgia-born Dawson, who was making his first American appearance after five years in European rings. He now lives in New York.

Each suffered 10-stitch cuts about the brows.

As a reward for his ninth straight victory, 21-year-old Neal will be matched for Nov. 7 with the winner of the Milo Savage-Artie Towne fight at St. Nick's, Oct. 17.

Rivers had a hard fight with Dawson but his left hooks spoiled Bobby's homecoming just as they did the return of Dawson's pal, Jimmy King, on Aug. 15. King had been in Europe nearly four years.

Neal scaled 155¾ pounds to Dawson's 153½, and he carried more explosives in his fists.

It was Rivers' 25th victory in 30 fights, and Dawson's seventh defeat in 51.

Jefferson Center Wins Cross Country Meet At Elmhurst

Jefferson Center won a cross country meet from the Elmhurst Trojans Monday after school, held at Elmhurst, by the score of 25-30.

Cross country running is not too well known locally, and it should be pointed out that the team with the least number of points wins the race. A school may enter as many as seven runners in a race, but only the placings of the first five gets one point, while the runner placing tenth gets 10 points - works something like the Harts, the card game.

The winner of the two-mile run Monday was Phil Miller, Jefferson Center senior, and his time was 10:18.0 Other places won by Jefferson Center runners were: David Phillips, second; Don Shaw, fifth; Richard Shaffmaster, seventh; and Dean Phillips, tenth.

Coach Tony Newell entered five Jefferson Center runners, and all placed.

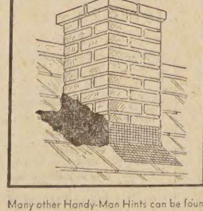
YOUR HANDY HELPFUL HARDWARE MAN

Your Handy Helpful Hardware Man suggests:

HOW TO CAULK AROUND A CHIMNEY



Homeowners know the kind of damage a leaky roof causes. By proper care, especially around the chimney, this troublesome condition can be eliminated. When caulking around a chimney use screen wire reinforcement under the caulking. This will prevent caulking from pulling away from bricks to cause a leak. Screen wire is tacked directly to chimney and to roof and caulking compound is applied over it. Compound should be forced into the mesh of the screen. Hardware cloth may be used in place of screen wire.

Many other Handy-Man Hints can be found in Popular Mechanics' "DO IT YOURSELF" books available at this store.

Financial Experts Describe The Market Break As Emotional Spasm

NEW WYORK (UP) — Financial experts today described the stock market break as an "emotional spasm" and insisted the nation's economy is basically sound.

Government officials and Wall Street financiers pointed out that there has been no overnight change in business conditions and predicted it would continue at high levels of activity throughout the year.

The break which began with the opening of the market Monday was the most severe for any single day since Oct. 28, 1929. The values of all shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange dropped by approximately 11 billion dollars.

The Dow-Jones industrial average skipped 32 points, a record drop for any singe day with the exception of Oct. 28, 1929, when the average fell 38.33 points.

Percentage declines were wide—6.79 in the rails; 6.54 in the industrials and 3.75 in the utilities.

Individual losses in the leading shares ran high. Bethlehem fell $14; Kennecott Copper, $12.50; Du Pont, $15.88; Texas Co., $10; Union Pacific Railroad, $13; Anaconda Copper, $8.25; General Motors, $8.88; Chrysler, $8.25; Standard Oil (NJ) $8.63; Union Carbide $8.88, and United States Steel, $5.13.

All financial sources agreed that the decline was triggered by President Eisenhower's illness, the conviction in some circles that he would not be available for a second term, and that any other Republican candidate for president would be much less likely to win in 1956.

A Democratic administration, some quarters reasoned, would be much less sympathetic to business.

Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey issued a statement saying the President's illness is a "cause for sadness but not of alarm."

"There is no reason to anticipate an change in the Eisenhower administration," he said.

Financial sources agreed that the "emotional spasm" which brought on the wave of selling probably was overdone. But they admitted that a wide decline often brings further selling in its wake—some of it of the distress variety.

Give A Packed Lunch Variety

LAFAYETTE — Now that Tom and Jane have gone back to school, Mother is once again faced with the problem of what to put in their daily lunch boxes. It's not easy to satisfy the appetites of growing children, but Miss Lois Oberhelman, Purdue University extension nutritionist, offers mothers some advice in Purdue Mimeo HE-221 on "Packed Lunches for Pep."

Give a packed lunch variety says this specialist. Offer something crisp, something sweet and something filling. And don't always use sandwiches. Try corn bread, muffins or graham crackers. Or, use variety in sandwich filling. Delicious treats include ground meat mixed with egg and pickle, chopped egg with cheese and bacon, or peanut butter with apple sauce or fruit butters.

For crispness in the lunch, try lettuce, carrots, radishes, or celery. And for the sweet tooth, custards and puddings are easy to carry in glass jars. Cookies and cake, and occasionally, pieces of candy or candied fruit are popular.

Since lunch should supply one-third of all the food needed for the day, Miss Oberhelman emphasized the need for well-balanced lunches, prepared with a plan. She says a lunch box meal should include milk, as a beverage, or in cream soups, custards and pudding.

Try Miss Oberhelman's score card for a Grade A lunch, in Mimeo HE-219, "Packed Lunches Can Do Their Bit for Health," or enjoy Mimeo HE-221, "Packed Lunches for Pep."

The mimeos can be obtained at county extension offices or from the office of agricultural publications at Purdue University.

Delegates Return From National Meet Of War Mothers

Mrs. Roy Hawn, president, and Mrs. Monna Firestone, corresponding secretary of the local chapter of the American War Mothers, have returned from a weeks trip to Rochester, New York where the 20th Biennial National convention was held.

More than 500 mothers attended the convention and Indiana led with 48 voting delegates besides many non-voting members. At the memorial services Monday evening, Indiana again sadly led with the largest number of mothers, who had died in the past two years and white carnations were placed on the memorial cross by the State President, Mrs. Ruth Wagner, of Lafayette, for the 98 deceased members.

The Indiana candidate for National President, Mrs. Thelma Prather of Indianapolis, was unanimously elected to that office and at the installation ceremonies Thursday night, the more than 50 Indiana mothers formed a guard of honor for the newly elected officers to march through.

On Tuesday afternoon an American War Mother Memory tree was planted at the new War Memorial building in Rochester. The Pennslyvania Mothers Rythm Kitchen Band, long a favorite, played many numbers to entertain the delegates.

At the formal banquet preceding the installation ceremonies, Frank J. Julian, Past County Commander of the American Legion was the main speaker and it was voted that his address be printed in its entirety in the National War Mother Magazine. His speech covered four points: To fight the enemy of Freedom; To teach appreciation of our blessings; To build solidly for America, and To serve our Country, our community and our fellowman.

National awards for hospital work in the many veteran hospitals were given to Pennsylvania, Colorado, California, Indiana, Kentucky, New York and Missouri.

One of the highlights of the convention week was a conducted tour of the city of Rochester on Sunday afternoon when the delegates saw many beautiful parks, buildings and homes; visited the Rochester College, and Lake Ontario, where some of the mothers waded, and an interesting trip through the Eastman Kodak museum. The tour was concluded by a tea for the visiting delegates held at the Powers Hotel, National Headquarters.

En route home, the Indiana delegates had a six hour stop-over at Niagara Falls where they enjoyed another conducted tour in spite of a pouring rain, and they all ate supper on the Canadian side of the falls.

The local women left here last Saturday a week ago when they went to Indianapolis via bus to join the other Indiana delegates and to go by New York Central train to Rochester. On their return they were met by Mrs. Robert Firestone at Huntington, Saturday evening.

Western Big Three Ministers Meet Today

NEW YORK (UP)—Foreign ministers of the Western Big Three powers meet today to lay plans for next month's conference with Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov at Geneva.

They will be joined Wednesday by West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano who was due here from Bonn today.

Two secret sessions were scheduled at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as host.

Dulles planned a diplomatic dinner tonight for British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay. Molotov, who will not take part in the secret talks, will attend the dinner.

The July "Summit Conference" at Geneva including President Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, British Prime Minister Anthony Eden and French Premier Edgar Faure prepared a three-point agenda for the Big Four foreign chiefs to work on at a subsequent meeting.

The agenda included:

1. Reunification of Germany and European security, to be discussed simultaneously.
2. Disarmament.
3. Removal of barriers between East and West.

Major discussion of the Big Three was expected to be given the offer made in the U.N. General Assembly by Dulles last week when he suggested "an overall plan of European security" in exchange for Soviet agreement on German reunification.

In essence, the West was understood to be prepared to offer Russia a mutual defense pact, with the United States as a party to it, against a resurgence of German militarism in an attack against Russia.

Nixon

Contined from page one

The subject will be explored further at Thursday's National Security Council meeting at which Nixon will preside by designation of the President. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. is not a council member, but he will arrive today from an interrupted vacation in Spain to attend the council and cabinet meetings.

There was a tendency here today to soft pedal the idea. Rogers said it may not be necessary to take any formal action. A Justice Department source said the importance of delegation of power was being over-emphasized at the moment in public discussion.

It is the technicality of presidential signatures on official papers which may press Mr. Eisenhower, Brownell and their associates for a decision on an official delegation of presidential powers. But the presidential signature business is in a slump right now with Congress in recess.

A Normal Recovery Seen

No such informal disposition of the question of who actually is exercising presidential powers could long prevail. It must be determined one way or the other before Congress meets in January and, perhaps, well before that. But the physicians in Denver are saying now that Mr. Eisenhower is headed toward a normal recovery which suggests that he will be able to dispose of routine White House business well before Congress comes back.

Nixon's unofficial role as administration front man would be in partnership with the White House staff organization of which Adams is the executive officer. So far as actual power in the administration of government is concerned, Adams would be the key man through whom policy decisions cleared whereas Nixon would speak publicly for the administration and preside in the President's stead at official meetings.

The Constitution provides that the powers of the President devolve on the vice president if the President dies, resigns or is unable to discharge the duties of his office. The Constitution does not [illegible] who shall decide when a president is unable to do a president's work.

Diplomats See Peril In Russian, Czech Offer To Sell Egypt Arms

WASHINGTON (UP)—Diplomats feared today that Russian and Czech offers to sell arms to Egypt are aimed at stirring up new trouble in the strife-ridden Middle East.

Diplomats said the offer thus seems to expose as two-faced the Soviet's post-Geneva policy of seeking to relax world tensions.

The United States and Britain have set out to correct the impression that the United States plans to supply weapons to Egypt to forestall the Communist offers.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan issued a joint statement in New York that both governments want "to avoid any arms race which inevitably would increase tension in that area."

The impression that the United States itself would supply weapons for Egypt started over the weekend with a report the United States had offered arms to Egypt. Informed sources said later the United States seeking arms.

Jerusalem dispatches quoting Israeli sources made it evident Israel believed the reports and that the United States had made such an offer through fears Egypt might be drawn into the Soviet orbit.

The British Foreign Office said Tuesday the Egyptian government had accepted a Soviet offer to sell arms. Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser said in a speech Tuesday night Czechoslovakia had agreed to supply arms in return for cotton and rice, but he did not clarify whether Russia would supply arms.

There also were reports other Arab nations were willing to buy arms from the Soviet Union.

Installment Buying In 1954 Drops, $260 Million Financed

One out of every 13 Hoosiers planning to buy a car or household appliance by time payments to Indiana sales finance companies, put off that decision last year.

The hesitating Hoosier postponed his decision as car and appliance sales slowed down in 1954 for the first time since World War II.

But the 12 other Hoosiers didn't hesitate and they wheeled sleeker cars into their garages and installed new appliances in their homes, to enjoy their use as they paid for them.

This 1954 pattern of installment buying was reflected in financial reports to the Department of Financial Institutions of the 295 licensed sales finance companies operating in Indiana.

It meant a total business of $260,975,729.14 in 1954, or a 10.5 per cent drop in dollar volume as compared to the record-breaking year of 1953. On the basis of the number of contracts purchased by the companies from dealers, it represented a decrease of 8 per cent from the record year.

A total of 345,351 time payment contracts were purchased by the finance companies from dealers in 1954. During the previous year, 375,569 contracts were purchased for a total business of $291,702,557.17.

There were 122,198 contracts for time-payment purchases of used motor vehicles. These totaled $114,009,136.90 and averaged $932.98 per contract. New motor vehicle sales accounted for 62,243 contracts, totaling $104,958,163.11, or an average of $1,686.24 per contract.

Other consumers goods, mainly household appliances, accounted for 160,910 contracts totaling $42,008,429.13, or an average contract of $261.06.

"Popular use of time-payment financing by Hoosier families is part and parcel of a high standard of living that wasn't dreamed of 45 or 50 years ago," Loren H. Brewer, supervisor of comsumer credit in the Department of Financial Institutions, observed.

"An automobile cost the equivalent of three full years' income for a skilled worker in America in 1910," Brewer said. "But today it costs less than half of one year's income for an average family earning about $4,400 yearly."

2 Suffer Minor Injuries In 1 Of 3 Accidents

2 Churubusco Persons Hurt Slightly

Two persons suffered minor injuries in one of three accidents Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning in the area.

Mildred Leazier, 54, of R 1, Churubusco, the driver of a car involved in an accident at 5:45 a.m. Wednesday, suffered a laceration of the forehead and leg abrasions. She was treated at a physician's office and released. The driver of the other car, Clement Howard Bloom, 33, of R 2, Churubusco, suffered chest injuries in the accident. He also received treatment by the doctor and his injury was not considered serious.

The accident happened after the Leazier car had stopped on the pavement on State Road 205, one-half mile east of Churubusco, to pick up another woman. The Bloom car came over the crest of a hill in the rear and struck the rear of the Leazier car before swerving across the road to the left.

According to Trooper James Lewinski of the Indiana State Police who investigated the accident, Bloom's vision was obscured by fog and he failed to realize the

The Job Of President Of United States Is As Hazardous As Any Occupation On Earth

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — On the record of the past 55 years, the presidency of the United States is as hazardous as any occupation on earth.

Five of 10 presidents since the turn of the century have died or been cruelly stricken in office. William McKinley was assassinated in 1901. Warren Gamaliel Harding and Frankin D. Roosevelt died in office, both of cerebral hemorrhage, although Harding also was suffering from pneumonia. Woodrow Wilsn was partially paralyzed during the latter months of his second term and for long was unable to discharge the duties of his office. President Eisennower was struck down by a heart attack last Saturday, but is making good recovery progress.

Theodore Roosevelt had some illness but vigorously survived almost two White House terms only to be pinked by an assassin's bullet when he sought re-election as the Bull Moose candidate in 1912.

An assassin shot at President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933, the bullet killing Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago. They occupied an open automobie in Miami, Fla.

Two Puerto Ricans stormed Blair House while President and Mrs. Truman were in residence there, but were unable to reach Mr. Truman.

The record of the past 55 years, is impressive. Dr. Karl C. Wold had that in mind when he wrote a book called, "Mr. President—How Is Your Health?"

Beginning with George Washington, Dr. Wold reported that presidents more often than not have suffered severe and often protracted illness while in the White House. Washington was seized with severe pains in his thigh shortly after his first inauguration. Pain, chills and high fever finally required surgery, minus an anesthetic to remove a carbuncle.

The illnesses of presidents folowed the patterns of the medical history of thei rtimes, Wold worte. The earlier presidents were more often afflicted with intestinal infections. Heart disease is a more

Council Awards City Hall Heat Plant Contract

Fort Wayne Firm Submits 2nd Low Bid

The contract for construction of the City Hall steam heating plant was awarded to Shambaugh and Son, Fort Wayne, at the City Council meeting Tuesday night. The firm's bid of $10,625 was the second lowest, the low bid being submitted by Harry Schaper, of 408 North Chauncey street.

However, Schaper's bid of $9,593.13 was rejected because it failed to comply with requirements for submission of bids.

Other bidders were Fort Wayne firms: Theodore Buesching Construction Company $12,897, A. Hattersley and Sons, $13,748, William B. McDonald, $12,580, Pearson and Henn, Inc. $11,946, and United Plumbing and Heating Company, $12,895; and W. E. Lancaster, South Whitley $13,748.

The contract calls for installation of a boiler and oil-fired heating plant, revamping of lines and valves and insulation of the attic area.

In other business, the Council approved the adoption of an ordinance annexing to the city three-fourths of an acre of property behind the Jim Gallagher residence near West Park Addition. A petition for the annexation was presented by Jack and Esther Gates, owners, who are building a home there.

The Council approved a resolution transferring $20,000 to the Water Improvement Fund from the Water Fund. The amount was previously paid into the Water Fund by the Utility Improvement Fund, which had borrowed the money for improvements at the Light Plant. The Utility Improvement was set up in 1943 and the Water Department had paid $20,000 into it by 1947 when $100,000 in the fund was used for light plant improvement.

The Water Improvement Fund was reimbursed for the $20,000, which will be used in the financing of construction of the water tower in the north of town.

At the meeting, the Council also declared into effect the ordinance approving the purchase of the property for the water tower.

Bandit Robs Westport Union Trust Company

Indiana's Second Bank Holdup In 48 Hours

WESTPORT, Ind. (UP)—A bandit held up the Westport Union Trust Co. today, locked five employes and customers in a vault and escaped with an undetermined amount of money.

It was Indiana's second bank holdup in 48 hours. The first occurred at Carmel Monday when two men fled with $15,940 after holding three women, one of them a cashier, as prisoners for 11 hours.

The Westport robber walked in and drew a gun a few minutes after the bank opened for business about 8:45 a.m. CDT.

He forced Mrs. Effie Denham, an assistant cashier, and Rogers Meadows, a bookkeeper, into a vault and herded three women customers in the vault with them.

The customers were identified by cashier Ivan Weinmann as Mrs. John Combs, Mrs. Ray Sutton, and Mrs. Delane Bruce.

The robber took money from the vault and cash drawers and ran out the front door. Authorities believed he drove away in a maroon-colored automobile.

Weinmann entered the bank soon after the holdup and freed the victims from the locked vault.

Indiana State Police immediately established highway blockades, searching for a man dressed in light tan work clothes, a tan jacket, a long-billed cap and dark glasses.

The search centered around Ind. 3, the only state highway running through this small Decatur County town of 700 population.

Weinmann said two other women employes were in a back room when the bandit entered. The cashiers said the gunman did not approach them, although he seemed to realize at least one person was in the rear room.

Mrs. Grace Hause and Mrs. Lila Ponsler, who were in the back room, remained there until the holdup was over. They were "scared to death," Weinmann said.

Weinmann said shortly after the holdup he had no idea how much loot the bandit got.

"We're not touching anything and not trying to count up the loss until the authorities check for fingerprints," he said.

Weinmann said it was the first time the bank ever was held up.

Name Master Of Ceremonies For Etna Festival

"Klink" Fuller, a student in Grace Seminary at Winona Lake and known in the Etna community as a member of the Etna Methodist church basketball team which won the Whitley County Church league basketball tournament last winter, will act as master of ceremonies at the Etna Lord's Acre Festival Saturday.

Plans have been made to hold much of the annual Lord's Acre Festival program under a tent in Etna if the weather is unfavorable, festival officials report.

One of the items that always draws interest is the Lord's Acre Festival Cake. The sale of the cake is one of the highlights of the event. This year's cake will be a huge four-tier cake topped with a miniature church. Last year's cake sold for $150 dollars at the auction.

Officials of the festival report that one-tenth of the proceeds this year have been pledged to the local Opportunity School.

Juan Peron's Flight Into Exile Delayed

By Argentine Demands For Restrictions On His Freedom

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—Deposed President Juan D. Peron's journey into exile is delayed by Argentine demands for restrictions on his freedom once he reaches refuge in Paraguay, semi-official sources reported today.

Peron remained aboard a crippled Paraguayan gunboat for the ninth straight day while Paraguayan and Argentine diplomats sought to hammer out an acceptable solution on the future of the overthrown dictator. Argentine naval and air craft maintained a close watch over the gunboat Paraguay anchored in Buenos Aires harbor.

Provisional President Eduardo Lonardi promised to render Peron harmless. Diplomatic sources said the delay in granting Peron a safe conduct pass stemmed from negotiations over the details of his residence in exile in neighboring Paraguay.

The informants said the Lonardi government is demanding that Peron be confined to the Paraguayan city in which he is interned. The demand was said to be based on fears that if Peron is permitted to move freely through Paraguay he could institute a plot to regain his lost power and prestige.

Foreign Minister Mario Amadeo conferred with Ambassador Juan Chavez of Paraguay Tuesday. Amadeo told newsmen later that the "Negotiations for Peron's safe conduct continue favorably and I am confident they will have a happy conclusion."

When and if the negotiations are concluded, Peron is expected to sail into exile aboard the Paraguay or its sistership, the Humaita. The Paraguay is so badly in need of repairs that it may not be able to make the 900-mile upriver trip to the Paraguayn capital of Asuncion.

Lonardi announced he was preparing a general amnesty decree that will permit many anti-Peronists to return from exile and wipe out political convictions and charges against others.

The country's return to normalcy after the fateful past week was underlined by the ending of the curfew in Buenos Aires Tuesday night. Rosario, Argentine's second city, scene of die-hard Peronista demonstrations also was reported quiet.

Walter Hartwick Retires Friday With Long Service

Walter Hartwick, R 4, a veteran employe in the meter department of Indiana & Michigan Electric Company in Fort Wayne, will retire Friday after nearly 37 years of service with the utility and its predecessor companies.

Hartwick, whose service dates back to October, 1918, has tested the accuracy of thousands of meters used at homes and in industry during his long utility career in Fort Wayne.

Next summer he will make his annual trip to his favorite fishing site at Cullen Lake at Nisswa, Minnesota, approximately 150 miles northwest of Minneapolis.

Hartwick is a member of Masonic Lodge 189 and Moose Lodge 1372, both of Columbia City.

Ministers Agree On Major Points Of Procedure

For Geneva Meeting With Molotov

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) — Foreign ministers of the Western Big Three reached agreement with their Soviet counterpart on Foreign ministers with their Soviet counterpart on procedures for their Geneva meeting and today called West German foreign chief Heinrich von Brentano into their secret strategy talks.

Brentano flew here from Bonn especially for the consultations with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay.

He was expected to give them a first-hand report on the Moscow visit of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and negotiations which led to establishment of diplomatic relations between the two governments.

The three Western ministers, in two secret meetings Tuesday, reached agreement on all major points of procedure for the Oct. 27 Geneva meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov.

Then, at a banquet given Tuesday night by Dulles, the proposals were presented to Molotov. He agreed to all of them, incuding an informal three-week time limit on the Geneva meeting.

The Western ministers also proposed that the Soviet Union provide a secretary-general for the conference. Molotov said he would be glad to do this.

During the dinner, given by Dulles at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel the secretary of state informed Molotov he had talked with President Eisenhower on Friday and that the President had planned to send an interim reply to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's letter concerning disarmament.

He said Mr. Eisenhower probably would have done so on Saturday if he had not suffered a heart attack. Dulles emphasized that no discourtesy was intended and asked Molotov to explain the situation to Bulganin. Molotov agreed to do so.

Dulles was to return to Washington by plane following this morning's Big Three session.

Brentano also was to spend a few days in the capital and sail for home Saturday aboard the Queen Mary. According to present plans, Molotov will be aboard the same ship.

Agriculture Outlook Meeting For County Will Be October 20

It's outlook time again in Indiana and Purdue University agricultural economists are scheduled to present farming prospects for 1955-56 at 90 county and district meetings.

The annual Whitley county outlook meeting, designed to help local farmers plan ahead for next year, will be held October 20, at 7:45 p.m. (CST), at the 4-H Center. Speaker will be Lester L. Arnold, agricultural economist at Purdue University.

According to county agent B. V. Widney, the local meeting is one of a state-wide series being conducted between October 10-27.

Topics to be discussed include the effects of the overall economic situation on prices of items that farmers buy and sell.

Arnold will consider prospective supply and demand for various agricultural commodities and expected prices for corn, soybeans, hogs, cattle, milk, eggs, poultry, and sheep in 1956. He will also discuss production costs such as machinery, labor, fertilizer, and similar items.

Supply of feed grains in relation to livestock numbers, the probable corn-hog and other feeding ratios will be given particular attention. Prospective developments in farm real estate prices for next year and for several years ahead will also be appraised.

The county agent explained that the meeting is open to all farmers and other interested persons.

Jaycees Will Begin Work On Improving Park

James Biddle Resigns From District Post

James Biddle, attorney here and District II vice-president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, announced his resignation from that office to the local Jaycees at their regular meeting Tuesday night. He officially announced his resignation at a district meeting earlier this month, after assuming the office July 1. A successor to him will be elected at the governmental affairs school in Indianapolis early in October.

Action On Park

The Jaycee park committee chairman, Keith Dowell, reported at the meeting last night that the city council approved plans made by the committee to begin work on improving the Morsches Park area. Dowell reported that an extension forester and a landscape specialist from Purdue will come here in the near future to assist in planning the 90-acre plot for a city park. The Jaycees voted to specify a day on which they would gather at the park area and begin clearing off a picnic area. A couple of years ago, the Jaycees planted a few hundred trees on the land donated to the city by the late Fred Morsches, and it was decided that weeds should be cleaned away from these remaining trees. Attempts will also be made to get that work done.

Funds are available to drill a well at the proposed park, and that will be done as soon as it is needed.

As a community project for raising funds, the Junior Chamber of Commerce voted to again this year sponsor a Halloween gum ball selling project, which will begin immediately.

Nine young men from this community, who are prospective members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, were guests at the meeting.

Will Donate

The Junior Chamber of Commerce voted to donate $50 to the Whitley County Community Chest current fund drive.

Yankees Beat Dodgers 6-5 In Homer Slugfest

Furillo, Howard, Snider Hit Homers, Collins 2 Home Runs

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — The New York Yankees, crippled by the loss of centerfielder Mickey Mantle, met the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first game of the World Series today under clearing skies.

The rain which fell Tuesday night and early this morning had stopped and the playing field, which had been covered, was in good shape.

Big Don Newcombe, Brooklyn's 20-game winner, and Whitey Ford, the Yankees' star southpaw who won 18 games, were the opposing pitchers.

The sun broke through the clouds intermittently as the two clubs held their batting and fielding workouts and the forecast called for good weather the rest of the day.

Manager Casey Stengel, after watching Mantle try to run, decided not to start his leading bater and the American League home run champion in the open-

Truman, In Second Installment Of Memoirs, Seeks To Correct Misinformation About Him

WASHINGTON (UP)—Ex-President Truman in the second installment of his memoirs today sought to correct "misinformation" about his early political life, including the idea that he was the product of a corrupt Missouri machine.

Unfolding for Life Magazine the story of his rocky road to the White House, the former Chief Executive told of an obstacle thrown in his already bumpy political path in 1940 by the late President Roosevelt. Mr. Truman said F.D.R. "encouraged" one of his chief political foes in Missouri when the Missouri senator was trying to win Democratic renomination.

Mr. Truman recited the story without recrimination and told how he sucessfully overcame the difficulty posed by Mr. Roosevelt by campaigning in behalf of New Deal policies. Later, in 1944, he and F.D.R. were running mates.

The former President acknowledged that the Kansas City Pendergast machine got him his start in politics, but said he was an independent agent thereafter. He also acknowledged that the conviction of the late "Boss Tom" Pendergast was a political liability but said it did not bother him personally because he felt he possessed an "unblemished record."

The second installment of the Truman memoirs supplied lengthy details of his childhood, his World War I service and his subsequent failure in the haberdashery business, a failure which he attributed to economic conditions brought on by the Harding administration.

Mr. Truman said F.D.R.'s attempt to curb his political future came early in 1940 when he decided to seek a second term in the Senate.

He said Mr. Roosevelt offered "in a round-about way" to put him

Parked Car Damaged By Pole-Laden Trailer Loosened From Truck

A parked car on East Swihart street was damaged an estimated $350 about noon Tuesday when a trailer loaded with electrical light poles came unhitched from a passing REMC truck and rolled forward into the automobile.

The truck was pulling the loaded two-wheeled trailer west on Swihart street when the accident happened. After becoming unhitched from the pick-up truck, the trailer continued forward and rammed into the front of the car, which was parked on the south side of the street facing east.

The driver of the truck was Judson William Taylor, 40, of 117 North Elm street. The car is owned by Kenneth Eugene Harris, 208 East Swihart street. The left front and side of the car, a 1951 Cadillac, received the damage.

State Plans Safety Program For Young Drivers

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—The Indiana Office of Traffic Safety revealed it has received a suggestion that the age limit for driver licenses be raised as a means of reducing the accident rate among teen-age motorists.

J.L. Lingo, state traffic safety director, said 24 per cent of Indiana traffic fatalities are persons under 20 years of age.

Lingo announced plans for an intensive safety program designed for young drivers. Special kits of materials for the youths have been prepared and are being distributed, calling for the organization of local Junior Driver Clubs and suggestions for teen-age traffic safety projects.

"We do not believe that young drivers are bad drivers," Lingo said, "but it appears that the teen-age group is being blamed for the actions of a thoughtless few who do drive like demons."

Lingo said the chief aim of the youth safety program was to "help our junior drivers to police their own ranks and erase the stigma from their collective driving record."

Opportunity School, Chest Agency, Teaches County Children Not Otherwise Provided For

The Opportunity School, early this month, opened its doors for another year of teaching children who may not otherwise be taught.

Eleven Whitley county children, three from Columbia City and eight residing in townships in Whitley county, have enrolled in the Opportunity School, operated by the Whitley County Council for Retarded Children, Inc.

Begun a year ago in Whitley county, the school teaches those children for which the public schools are not equipped to teach. Originally, the school began very small under extreme handicaps and operated completely on volunteer assistance. This year, however, the program has broadened with greater benefits going to the children in the school.

The Opportunity School was added this year to the list of 10 agencies which are served by the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc. The Chest budget allots $2,235 to the school during the next year.

"The nucleus of the Board of Directors of the school is composed of parents and friends of physically and mentally handicapped children," Max Holloway, Columbia City, president of the board pointed out recently.

The need for such education in this or any other community has been realized by educators and professional people, but solution to the problem has been delayed because of traditional methods of viewing the problem. The Whitley County school is open to anyone residing in the county.

The Opportunity School in Whitley county is providing a means of education for the in-between group for which the state does not provide institutions or public schools cannot accomodate.

The first year of operation, 1954-55, the school averaged 12 students per day under the supervision of Mrs. George Mason, Larwill, and the staff of volunteer workers. Ladies assisting in the school were Mrs. Martin Nelson, Mrs. LeRoy Clark, Mrs. M. H. Pangborn, Mrs. Allan Rush, Mrs. George Daily, Mrs Oscar Schinbeckler, Mrs. Ruth Marrs, Mrs. Walter Meyers, Mrs. Bessie Putman, Mrs. Richard Huffman, Mrs. John Q. Adams, mothers of the students, the Tri-Kappa Sorority, membership of the council, and others

Slightly higher goals have been set for the 1955-56 school year, Mr. Holloway said, and more permanent personnel for the teaching staff have been selected.

The school meets daily from 9 to 11 a. m. in the Sunday School building of the Grace Lutheran Church, Columbia City. Parents of students pay a tuition and furnish transportation, but the school is dependent upon the communiy for operational funds, Mr. Holloway said.

Present members of the Council's board are Mr. Holloway, President; Mrs. Marie Tom, Richland township, vice-president; Mrs. Doris Hoover, Columbia City, secretary; Delmar Auer, Columbia City, treasurer; Dr. Warren Niccum, Columbia City, medical advisor; the Rev. Graham Kleespie, Mrs. Laura Herriott, Jefferson township; Harlan Ulrich, Etna-Troy township, and Edward Meyers, Columbia City, legal advisor.

As an agency in the Community Chest, the Whitley County Red Feather united fund agency, the Opportunity School operates from the funds contributed to the Community Chest.

They visited the Isaac Boatman family, who are cousins of Mrs. Harter and stopped at interesting spots, the Lincoln Log Cabin State Park, Fox Ridge State Park, Turkey Run, and points of historical interest at Vincennes. They visited friends and relatives in Fort Wayne before returning to their respective positions of employment.

The Mesdames Holycross and Helfrick presided at the beautifully appointed table where punch and home made cookies were served. The Mesdames Glenn Holycross, Jack Zurbrich, Bruce Norris, Arthur Buntain, and Howard Reid served as hostesses.

Building Bridge Across Ohio River Gets Approval

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—The Federal Bureau of Public Roads has approved construction of a New Albany-Louisville bridge across the Ohio River under supervision of the Indiana Toll Bridge Commission.

The approval was announced late Tuesday by Harry Ice, bond counsel for Indiana, who went to the nation's capital to clear this last obstacle to a two-state agreement on the project.

Governor Craig and Kentucky's Governor Lawrence Wetherby will meet in New Albany Thursday morning to sign an agreement getting the bridge underway.

First step will be a decision on a location for the bridge and then an application for federal aid. It is hoped federal funds will be granted to pay half the estimated 12 million dolar cost for the bridge and approaches.

Initially, Indiana and Kentucky will venture $300,000 to hire an engineering firm to prepare plans for the project. The agreement also obligates Indiana to spend up to a million dollars to build a highway approach to the bridge and Kentucky to spend up to $600,000 for a similar approach.

The President Of Manchester College Resigns

Rev. V. F. Schwalm

NORTH MANCHESTER — At the annual fall meeting of the Manchester College Board of Trustees held September 23-24, President V. F. Schwalm, now in his 15th year as head of Manchester College, tendered his resignation to become effective not later than next July 31.

Members of the board accepted his resignation with deep regret.

President Schwalm received his A.B. degree from Manchester College in 1913 and later obtained both his M.A. and Ph.D degrees from the University of Chicago

Dr. Schwalm began his teaching career as a public school teacher, becoming a professor of history at Manchester in 1913. Four years later he added the deanship of the college to his duties and continued in these two capacities until 1927 when he became president of McPherson College, McPherson, Kansas. Dr. Schwalm returned to Manchester to become president of the college in 1941.

During President Schwalm's adminstration, the physical plant of Manchester College had been greatly improved and two buildings have been added - Calvin Ulrey Hall, holding 100 boys, and the Winger Memorial Arts Building, housing the music, art and home economics departments.

Truman

on the Interstate Commerce Commission, but he turned it down and said he would fight for renomination even if he received only one vote.

"The President really was encouraging Lloyd C. Stark, my opponent," said Mr. Truman who won the election.

When Mr. Truman first entered the Senate in 1935, he was nearly 51, but he said he felt "as timid as a country boy arriving on the campus of a great university for his first year."

His first term in the Senate gave him the happiest days of his life.

He found most of his Senate colleagues to be "some of the finest men I have ever known." Without naming them, he said there were "only two senators with whom I would rather not associate and whose word I did not trust."

Although beset by bad eyesight at an early age, knowing that he could not go to college because his father could not afford it, Mr. Truman remembered a decidedly happy boyhood.

From the time he entered grade school, he worked hard to learn and to please his teachers. By the time he was 14 he had read "all the books" in the Independence Library and gone through the Bible three times.

Most of Mr. Truman's experiences as a World War I artillery captain were told previously but there were numerous new personal reminiscences, one particularly revealing.

The ex-President told how on his first leave in France after the armistice, while comrades were whooping it up in the joy spots of Paris, he spent "three happy days" going to the opera.

He went to the Folies Bergere, too, but found it to be "a disgusting performance."

Salk Wasn't Guessing With Polio Vaccine

By Hart E. Van Riper, M.D.
Medical Director National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis

(Editor's note: This is the third of a series of five articles on what parents should know about the Salk polio vaccine. Under Dr. Van Riper's direction the National Foundation sponsored the research development of the vaccine and he is in charge of the Foundation's program for vaccinating children in the first and second grades of school.)

A story published the other day with the best of intentions by a great newspaper which prides itself on its accuracy began like this:

POLIO FOLLOWS SHOT

The seventh polio case in the city of a child who had received the Salk anti-polio vaccine was reported yesterday to the Board of Health.

Only toward the end of the story is the statement added: "...subsequently his case was diagnosed as non-paralytic polio."

Now, factually this tory was correct. But we are a headline-conditioned people. Did you not, in fact, from this headline and opening sentence, feel a pang of doubt about the vaccine? And yet the truth may well have been exactly the opposite to the impression you got — that is, it is quite possible paralytic polio had it not been for his Salk vaccination.

The Salk vaccine is designed to prevent not polio infection but polio paralysis. In the future there will be many cases among vaccinated children of illness that turns out to be non-paralytic polio precisely because the Salk vaccine has prevented paralysis.

No wonder, then, that at this juncture — the "beginning of the end" of polio as a major scourge — there has been public confusion.

It is true that a few cases of paralytic polio have been reported among children who have received the vaccine. In some of these the vaccine would not have helped, simply because it doesn't protect everybody. In others the virus entered the system before the vaccination or before the vaccine had time to take effect. After the first shot an interval of seven to 10 days is necessary for the stimulation of antibody production; and even if administered in time, the one shot may not be enough to stave off paralytic polio, since it functions mainly as a sensitizer, making for more positive results from the second and booster shots.

Whether a vaccine is safe depends first on the formula and then on whether it is made strictly according to that formula.

Safety of the Salk formula has been established beyond question. After exhaustive laboratory tests, Dr. Salk gave the vaccine to 9,000 children in Pittsburgh. In 1954, following approval by the Vaccine Advisory Committee of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, it was given to 440,000 children in many parts of the country. This year, some 6,500,000 American children have received at least one shot unde rthe program financed by the National Foundation.

In the manufacture of the Salk vaccine, exacting testing requirements fixed by the U.S. Public Health Service are followed from culture of the virus in final packaging of the vaccine. Finished vaccine is not released for use until it has been approved by this federal agency.

With the demonstration of mass use and with the knowledge of strictest supervision in manufacture, you may rest assured that the vaccine is safe. But this does not mean that your child should be given the shots at any time and under all circumstances. There are exceptions.

For example, the polio vaccine should not be given during the course of an acute illness of any sort. Nor should it be given to persons with certain symptoms even though the illness may be only minor. Among these "stop" signals are fever, sore throat and upset stomach.

No member of a household where a case of polio has just been diagnosed should be vaccinated, since most family contacts harbor virus at this time.

If your child needs his tonsils out, your doctor may delay the operation until after the polio vaccination — and after the polio season.

Barring special circumstances, on which you should consult your doctor, your child can be vaccinated against paralytic polio with no more risk than one assumes in a smallpox vaccination or a typhoid shot.

BULB BLUNDER

CYNTHIANA, Ky. —(UP)—Wilbur Smith likes hamburgers, but he'll be more careful in the future when he reaches for the onions. Smith was finishing up a midnight snack of hamburgers when his wife informed him the "onions" he had used were narcissus bulbs.

ROME (UP) — Italy, pledging anew its solidarity with the West, today sought the aid of its Western allies in gaining admission to the United Nations.

Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino said his government was counting on its friends to support Italy's bid for a U.N. seat and would consider it an "unfriendly act" if any nation were admitted ahead of Italy.

MOSCOW UP) — Russian and British naval squadrons made ready today for an exchange of visits agreed upon at the Geneva "Summit" Conference.

The squadrons will consist of six ships each. The Russians will visit Portsmouth and the British will visit Leningrad for five days beginning Oct. 12.

LONDON (UP)—Neville Duke, Britain's ace test pilot, was honored Tuesday by a special commendation from Queen Elizabeth II for risking his life to save an airplane.

Duke was testing a Hawker Hunter last month when the engine quit high in the air. He brought the plane in for a glide landing instead of using his parachute.

MANILA (UP)—U.S. Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La) today began a three-day survey of the progress of America's foreign aid program to the Philippines.

MARGATE, England UP)—The mayor of Margate denied Tuesday charges by a U.S. congressman that Negro American servicemen are refused service here.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-NY) made the discrimination charge on his return from a tour in England. "His complaints are a lot of nonsense," said Mayor C. S. F. Witts.

Hungry

DETROIT (UP)—Elmer Moore, 34, told a policeman who arrested him Tuesday while trying to break into an auto that he was looking for something to eat.

When the policeman, Alex Scott, arrived at headquarters with his prisoner, he found that Moore had eaten the lunch he had left in the back seat of his patrol car.

"Maybe he will pinch-hit if we need him," Stengel said. "But the outfield grass is wet and I don't want to take a chance on Mickey aggravating his injury."

Mantle pulled a thigh muscle Sept. 23 and, except for pinch-hitting roles, sat on the bench as the Yankees, with a streak of nine victories out of 10 games, won the American League pennant.

Noren Replaces Mantle

With Mantle out, Irv Noren was placed in centerfield with Elston Howard in left and Hank Bauer in right.

Stengel also decided to go with the veteran Phil Rizzuto at shortstop instead of Gerry Coleman.

Noren batted third, Mantle's usual spot.

Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers went along with his announced plans of playing Jackie Robinson at third base, Junior Gilliam in leftfield and little Don Zimmer at second base.

When the sun came out of the clouds, it was hot and humid.

Yankee Stadium was decked out in the usual World Series bunting.

Dodgers First

Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City threw out the first pitch and Berra caught it.

Gilliam, after taking a called strike for the first pitch, grounded out on the third pitch, Ford to Collins.

Reese, with the count two and two, singled sharply to left.

Snider struck out on three pitches.

Campanella popped to Martin on the first pitch.

Yankees First

Bauer, with the count one and one, beat out a bunt which Zimmer fielded but could not throw to first in time.

McDougald worked the count to two and two, then was called out on strikes.

Zimmer, on a brilliantly executed play, took Noren's grounder, tagged Bauer and threw to Hodges for a double play.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Dodgers Second

Furillo sliced a home run into the lower rightfield stands, the ball hitting the low fence just above Bauer's outstretched arm, and bouncing into the seats.

Hodges grounded out, Martin to Collins.

Robinson smashed a triple to left center, the ball bounding on to the red cinder path near the 457-foot mark.

Zimmer blooped a single behind second base, scoring Robinson.

Newcombe grounded out, Ford to Collins, Zimmer going to second.

Gilliam walked on four pitches.

Tom Morgan, a right-hander, began to warm up in the Yankee bullpen.

Reese forced Gilliam, McDougald to Martin. McDougald went to his left to make a good running stop of the ball.

Two runs, three hits, no errors, two left.

Yankees Second

Berra grounded out, Zimmer to Hodges.

With a full count of three and two, Newcombe's pitch was into the dirt and Collins walked. He ran down to first apparently not realizing Umpire Summers had called the pitch a ball.

Howard hit the second pitch for a home run into the lower leftfield stands just on the fair side of the foul line, scoring Collins ahead of him, and tying the score 2-2.

Martin flied to Furillo in short right.

Robinson picked up Rizzuto's slow bounder and made a rifle throw to Hodges to get the Yankee shortstop by a step.

Two runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Dodgers Third

Snider hit a tremendous high blast for a home run into the third deck of the rightfield grandstand, putting Brooklyn ahead again, 3-2. Snider set a new National League World Series record with the homer, his sixth.

Campanella popped to McDougald.

Furillo walked.

Hodges flied to Noren in short center.

Robinson was called out on strikes with the count two and two.

One run, one hit, no errors, one left.

Yankees Third

With the count three and two, Ford drew a base on balls on a wide pitch.

When the first two pitches to Bauer also were balls, rookie Don Bessent began to warm up for Brooklyn in the leftfield bullpen. Bauer then singled to left, Ford stopping at second.

Reese made a hurried throw on McDougald's slow bounder and threw him out, the runners moving to second and third.

Zimmer threw out Noren, Ford scoring to make it 3-3 and Bauer moving to third.

Newcombe tossed out Berra.

One run, one hit, no errors, one left.

Dodgers Fourth

Simmer worked the count to three and two and walked on a low pitch. Newcombe, trying to sacrifice, forced Zimmer, Ford to Rizzuro who had to leap high to keep the throw from going into centerfield.

Gilliam walked on five pitches.

Reese hit into a double play, Martin to Rizzuto to Collins.

No runs, no hits, no errors, two left.

Yankees Fourth

Collins hit Newcombe's second pitch for a line drive home run into the lower rightfield stands, putting the Yankees ahead for the first time, 4-3.

Gilliam fouled to Berra.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Yankees Sixth

Noren grounded out, Hodges unassisted.

Berra dropped a pop single into short right.

Collins hit his second home run of the game, this one a towering drive into the rightfield bleachers, scoring Berra ahead of him and putting the Yankees in front 6-3.

Howard grounded out, Reese to Hodges.

Martin tripled over Gilliam's head in deep left, going into third standing up.

That was all for Newcombe and rookie right-hander Bessent replaced him.

Eddie Robinson batted for Rizzuto.

Martin was out trying to steal home, Campanella putting the tag on him as he slid in. Martin grabbed at Campanella but there was no incident.

Two runs, three hits, no errors, none left.

Dodgers Seventh

Coleman replaced Rizzuto at shortstop for the Yankees.

Reese flied deep to Bauer.

Zimmer flied deep to Noren, Furillo scoring after the catch and Robinson going to third.

Frank Kellert batted for Bessant and Robinson stole home on the first pitch, sliding in beautifully as the Yankee infield stormed around Plate Umpire summers and Manager Casey Stengel rushed out of the dugout to protest.

Hoak ran for Kellert.

Stengel went out to the mound to talk to Ford.

Baseball Expert Decides To Quit With $32,000 Prize

NEW YORK (UP) — Baseball expert Myrtle Power was richer today by $32,000, but she left a dozen unhappy television quiz show musicians standing with their piccolos.

The music makers, members of the studio band of TV's "The $64,000 question," were all set to play "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" as a victory march Tuesday night for Myrt. The band had rehearsed it all day, figuring the 70-year-old contestant from Buford, Ga., would go for and win the top $64,000 prize on the CBS-TV giveaway show.

But Myrt, who had run her winnings to $32,000 on previous program appeaances by answering a series of baseball questions, decided to bow out.

"My Dodgers have won a pennant," she said. "And I feel like I've won a pennant. You know, they're going into a World Series tomorrow. I don't want to jinx them. I think I'll take the $32."

After the show, Myrt explained: "I didn't know what I was going to do until I went right on that program. I don't care about the money I've won, maybe that's why I called it '$32'. I just figured it was time to stop."

Myrt, a housekeeper for a couple in Roslyn Heights, N.Y., said she would put most of her winnings in the bank.

"I'm gonna put it in the bank until it rots," she said. "I want to leave something to my children. I don't need nothing and I don't want nothing for myself. Except maybe to fix my house in Buford a little."

Another baseball expert on the show, Patrick Keough of St. Louis, ran his earnings to $8,000. Keough reached that level by naming the teams that played in the 1920 World Series (Cleveland and Brooklyn), telling what Elmer Smith did in that series (Smith hit a bases loaded homer) and describing a feat performed by one of the second basemen Bill Wambsganss, Cleveland second sacker, racked up an unassisted triple play).

Keough, assistant to the plant manager of the Great Lakes Carbon Corp. in St. Louis, will get an opportunity to double his stake or quit next Tuesday.

Humphrey Indicates He Is Candidate For V. P. Nomination

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey indicated today he is a candidate for the vice presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket in 1956.

The Minnesota Democrat said he would consider it a "signal honor" if his party nominated him for the No. 2 spot on its 1956 ticket. He said there had been "no suggestion or suspicion" that he was a presidential candidate but he believed he could contribute to the office of vice president.

Humphrey told a Trojan Democratic Club meeting on the University of Southern California campus Tuesday that he considered Adlai Stevenson to be the leading candidate now for the Democratic presidential nomination next year. He listed Gov. Averell Harriman of New York as a strong candidate with Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee gaining support.

"We're loaded," he said. "Our convention in Chicago next summer will be a real donnybrook."

Humphrey said he was praying for President Eisenhower's recovery from a heart attack but will "vigorously oppose him" if he is a candidate for re-election.

Backstairs At The Temporary White House

By WARREN DUNFEE
United Press Staff Correspondent

DENVER (UP) — Backstairs at the temporary White House:

President Eisenhower is a cooperative patient during his hospitalization because of a heart attack, although the close confinement undoubtedly will become more chafing as the days wear on and he begins to feel better.

The Chief Executive picked up noticeably in spirits when he was allowed to eat substantial food on the third day of his hospitalization.

The meals are not heavy and the portions are modest. But the President usually eats everything the Fitzsimons Army Hospital dietitian gives him.

Although he probably would like more, the President hasn't complained.

Mr. Eisenhower's doctors aren't requiring him to wear one of those long, one-piece hospital gowns that men hate.

He wears his own pajamas.

The President so far hasn't been allowed to do any reading, even of the light, recreational type. Nor does he have a radio in his eighth-floor room at Fitzsimons.

The doctors want complete quiet, with any possible distraction eliminated in the interest of total rest.

The tremendous influx of television and radio equipment into the cramped White House press headquarters at Lowry Air Force Base after the President's attack has badly strained the building's power system.

The makeshift press room is in a converted hallway, with big windows which normally allow plenty of light.

But the overburdened power system picked a grey, gloomy day to break down.

Newsmen were almost literally in the dark for 15 minutes, while Air Force electricians located the overloaded circuit and replaced fuses.

To Lay Cornerstone For New Masonic Hospital Saturday

FRANKLIN, — State officials of the Masonic fraternity today have stated they expect at least 2,000 Masons to participate in the mammoth parade which will precede the cornerstone rites to be held next Saturday in Franklin, at the new $2,000,000 nursing hospital now under construction at the Indiana Masonic Home.

Bands and uniforms marching units from many sections of the state will make this one of the most colorful Masonic events of the past half-century. The famous horse patrol and color guard of Murat Temple, Indianapolis, will be one or the numerous featured units. Dignitaries from all Masonic and appendant bodies in Indiana, as well as the worshipful masters of the state's 545 Masonic lodges also will participate.

The parade is scheduled to start at 2:30 DST, and will pass through the Franklin business district enroute to the site of the new hospital.

The cornerstone ceremonies, conducted by officers of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Indiana, will begin at 3:30, DST. The afternoon program will be concluded with an address by Dr. Thomas S. Roy a former Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts.

Plan For Indoor Recreation Space

LAFAYETTE — Many of the family's recreational activities will be moving indoors within a few weeks. So now's the time to begin planning room for them, say Purdue University home management specialists.

Space for indoor recreation involves careful planning. The plan should take into consideration the preferences, skills, and talents of each family member, and yet be flexible enough to allow for adjustments as family members change or grow up. The best location for each activity, and how space can best be organized must be ascertained. Multiple use of space, adequate storage facilities, convenient traffic lanes, and the choise of design and materials that provide for ease of care and upkeep make a good plan even better.

Helpful ideas can be obtained from the new Purdue University extension publication, "Plan Recreation Space for Your Home." Prepared by Ruth Hutcheson, home management specialist, this mimeo contains things to keep in mind when developing the plan, floor plans, and drawings of recreation units and different types of storage facilities.

Ask the county extension agent or write to the office of agricultural publications at Purdue for a free copy of the mimeo. It will help make home an even better place for family recreational activities.

Accidents

second car was stopped on the road in time to avoid hitting it.

The Leazier car was pushed forward down the right side of the road where it knocked over a rural mail box The Bloom car ended diagonlly on the left edge of the road. Both vehicles were damaged extensively. A charge of improper stopping was placed against the Leazier woman.

In another accident at 8:15 a.m. Wednesday, two drivers escaped injury when a truck and trailer loaded with new cars ran into the rear of a car which was forced to stop after passing the auto carrier, on U.S. highway 30, three-fourths of a mile south of Larwill.

The truck driver attempted to stop his eastbound vehicle, but unable to, he swerved the auto carrier across the highway to avoid pushing the car into a semi-truck and trailer which had stopped for a west bound school bus which was loading children.

The driver of the car was Rosemarie M. Seiple, 23, of Norfolk, Va., while the driver of the truck was Christ F. Hansen, 48, of South Bend.

The auto carrier ended up with its front end down the embankment on the north side of the road with the trailer still on the federal highway. Traffic was detoured over old U.S. 30 for nearly an hour while the vehicles were moved.

The third accident, two cars were damaged in a city accident at 3:10 p.m. Tuesday, on Van Buren street near Walnut street.

Bernice Riley Davidson, 54, Lakewood, Ohio, was starting to drive a car away from the curb on the north side of Van Buren street as a westbound car came along. The other vehicle was driven by Ford McCoy, 36, of R 5.

The Davidson woman said that she saw the approaching car too late to avoid the accident.

An estimated $35 damage was caused to the front of the Davidson car and $150 to the right side of the McCoy car.

Red Cross volunteer workers outnumber paid employees 100 to 1, and without them the cost of Red Cross service to the nation would be almost prohibitive.

Big Man

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Mike Lane today landed the year's biggest part in a Hollywood motion picture.

Lane, a former circus strong man and wrestler from Philadelphia, was signed by Columbia to play the Latin-American heavyweight title contender in the studio's production of "The Harder They Fall," a prize-fighting novel.

Lane is six feet, 10 inches tall and weighs 275 pounds.

modern killer, although there always is the possibility that earlier physicians may have failed to recognize it in their diagnosis.

Nine former presidents have died of heart disease but there is no record of such as the cause of the death of a president in office. Cerebral hemorrhage was stated by Dr. Wold to be the second most deadly disease among presidents and former presidents with a toll of seven.

Dr. Wold found that modern presidents do not live as long, on the average, as their predecessors. The first 10 presidents lived to an average age of 77.4 years, the second 10 to an average of 63.7 years. From Chester A. Arthur to Franklin D. Roosevelt, the average age of presidents at the time of death was down to 61.1 years.

Ohio produces nearly half the nation's greenhouse tomatoes. The Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station at Wooster developed a wilt-resistant variety, called Ohio W-R Globe.

Anything less is an old-fashioned truck!

New Chevrolet Task-Force Trucks

They're the most modern trucks on the road. If you don't get all the advantages they offer, you stand to lose money on the job today . . . and again at trade-in-time!

Most modern power—V8 or 6
In most new Chevrolet truck models, you have your choice of V8* or 6. Chevrolet's new truck V8's have the shortest stroke of any V8 in any leading truck! That means less friction and wear per mile. The valve-in-head sixes are new editions of the engines that have long been famous as the "work horses" of the truck world! And all Chevrolet truck engines have a modern 12-volt electrical system for quicker starting, better ignition and a greater electrical reserve.

The truck driver's "dream cab"
That's the closest we can come to describing the new Flite-Ride De Luxe cab. What truck driver wouldn't go for features like these: panoramic windshield for wider, safer vision; concealed Safety Step that stays clear of snow, mud and ice; High-Level ventilation that provides a more constant supply of outside air in all kinds of weather.

Most modern truck styling
We call it Work Styling—and you get it only in new Chevrolet trucks! Two fresh, functional styling treatments are offered—one for light- and medium-duty models, another for heavy-duty models. Your Chevrolet truck will do your job better—and look better doing it!

Most modern features throughout
Advanced suspensions, more rigid, ladder-type frames! Tubeless tires standard on ½-ton models! Come in and see all the ways you're way ahead with new Chevrolet trucks!

*V8 standard in L.C.F. models, an extra-cost option in all others except Forward Control models.

Pistons To Begin Practice October 5

FORT WAYNE, —The Fort Wayne Pistons will open basketball practice Wednesday, Oct. 5, it was announced today.

Coach Charley Eckman, who directed the Pistons to their first Western Division championship in last year's National Basketball Association race, will arrive in Fort Wayne Tuesday, Oct. 4, to initiate plans for retention of the title.

Eckman's squad will range from 15 to 17 players. Several Piston veterans have not returned signed contracts but are expected to do so before practice begins.

The Pistons' early sessions will be held in gyms in and around Fort Wayne. The Coliseum will not be available because of the annual showing of "Holliday on Ice" from Oct. 11 through 16.

First on-the-court appearance for the Pistons will be Wednesday, Oct. 19, at Syracuse high school where an intra-squad game will be played. The Pistons meet the College All-Stars at the Coliseum the following night, their only preseason appearance at home.

NEW YORK (UP)— Leo Durocher who gave up managing the New York Giants to take a job as television executive, will leave for California after the World Series to assume his new duties in the field of talent relations with the National Broadcasting Co.

NEW YORK (UP) — The New York Giants, who lost a fiery leader when Leo Durocher resigned as manager, may be getting an equally fiery replacement by hiring Eddie Stanky as a coach.

Stank, let out as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals last May, said Tuesday night that he was scheduled to confer with the new Giant pilot, Bill Rigney, after the Junior World Series is completed.

AKRION, Ohio (UP)—Fight officials today blamed daylong rains Tuesday for holding down the crowd to only a few persons and forcing the postponement of the scheduled 10-round bout between Vince Martinez of Paterson, N.J., and Irving Steen of San Diego, Calif.

BERKELEY, Calif. (UP)— Brutus Hamilton, coach of the United States' triumphant 1952 Olympic track and field squad, planned today to devote his full energies to coaching after stepping down as athletic director of the University of California.

Mrs. Mildred Meese, president of the women's golf association in Fort Wayne, was the guest speaker and spoke on "The Meaning of Sportsmanship." Mrs. Babs Nicholson, also of Fort Wayne, was a guest.

Becky Cable, Lynn Argerbright, and Judy Will provided the entertainment with a pantomine presentation and two musical numbers. They were accompanied by Mrs. Donal Argerbirght.

Miniature layouts of the Crooked Lake Golf Course, flanked with bouquets of marigolds, formed the centerpiece decorations on the two banquet tables.

Committee members for the banquet were: Mrs. Dick Minear, chairman; Mrs. Roy Kilby, entertainment; Mrs. Paul Morsches, Jr., decorations; and Mrs. Herbert Schabacker, Mrs. Oren Sheets, and Mrs. Garland Stickler, guests.

Hard Of Hearing

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Charlie Jenkins claimed in court Tuesday he failed to answer questions at the scene of an accident because he is hard of hearing and was not drunk.

"How old are you?" Judge Howard Taylor asked in an ordinary voice.

"Twenty-eight, your honor," Jenkins said.

"How much do you weigh?" the judge whispered.

"One hundred and 65, your honor," Jenkins replied without hesitation.

"Seventy-five dollars or 20 days," the judge said.

Progress Of President Eisenhower Continues To Be Satisfactory Without Complications, Say Physicians

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower "slept comfortably" through his second consecutive night and awoke "refreshed" today in continuing his satisfactory progress.

The President's doctors reported at 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST) that "his progress continues to be satisfactory without complications."

Text of the first bulletin as Eisenhower began his fifth day in Fitzsimons Army Hospital following a heart attack early Saturday:

"For the second consecutive night the President slept comfortably throughout the night. He went to sleep at 8:30 p.m. and awoke refreshed at 6:30 a.m. this morning. His progress continues to be satisfactory without complications."

The President's good appetite Tuesday had given his doctors one of their most encouraging signs of his fight to overcome his illness.

Pikup 2nd pgn: Although medical.

Although medical experts warned cautiously that complications can still set in, those close to the Chief Executive regard his two straight "satisfactory days without complication" as a sign that he may definitely be on the mend.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famous Boston heart specialist called into the case as a consultant, said the crucial days are still ahead.

"The next nine days are the crucial ones, and we have to guard against complications but right now I'm very hopeful that our President will be all right and back on the job soon," White said.

White commented on the President's condition in Boston, to which he returned Tuesday in a special Military Air Transport Service plane. Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the President's physician, and Col. Byron E. Pollock, head of the heart section at Fitzsimons Army Hospital, Denver, consulted White by telephone twice Tuesday and will consult him thus daily.

They telephoned White a report on a night electrocardiogram which had been taken.

"He's not out of the woods yet, but he's coming along nicely," White said after getting the report. "The cardiogram was a favorable one and he seems to be making good progress toward recovery.

The oxygen tent which the President was able to discard during most of the daytime hours Tuesday was restored Tuesday night as a "routine rest measure" as he prepared for another night's sleep at 8:30 p.m. MST (11:30 p.m. EDT)

The Chief Executive, who consumed no solid food in his first 24 hours in Fitzsimons Army Hospital, ate three complete, but not heavy meals again Tuesday and reportedly enjoyed them. Doctors watched his appetite carefully as one indication of his condition.

After a "good afternoon rest," their bulletin said, "He again visited briefly with his family."

They said "the President is sleeping again tonight in the oxygen tent as a routine rest measure."

The President's son, Maj. John Eisenhower, who flew here Sunday, was scheduled to fly back to Washington today to resume his duties at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Mr. Eisenhower's freedom from the oxygen tent through most of Tuesday was the first time he had been allowed to remain for an extended period outside the glassine canopy. From the time he awoke early Tuesday until he retired, the President remained in the tent only four hours and 25 minutes. That was for rest or sleep.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who has remained at the hospital continuously since her husband was taken there Saturday afternoon after a "moderate coronary thrombosis" had three brief visits with her husband Tuesday. Their son, John, also saw his father briefly three times.

The President's mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud, saw the Chief Executive Tuesday night for the first time since he was stricken.

A personal "get well' greeting from the President's old friend and comrade at arms, Soviet Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov, was made public by the temporary White House Tuesday night. It was one of scores of messages received from officials of nations in every part of the globe.

Zhukov said he had been vacationing "far from Moscow" and "just now learned of your illness." He voiced "deepest feelings of sorrow" and said "with all our hearts, my family and I wish you a speedy recovery and long life."

Zhukov recentl sent Mr. Eisenhower a color photograph of himself with his family.

Mrs. Eisenhower asked the press to help her thank "all those who have prayed and are praying for the recovery of the President."

The temporary White House plans definitely on the President remaining in the hospital here for at least another three weeks. Another month of convalescence must follow that, even if everything goes well in his recovery.

No decision has been made, but the Eisenhowers' Gettysburg, Pa., farm is regarded as the most likely spot for the convalescent period.

County Cattle Men Are Seeking Disease Control

Will Petition For Local Testing Plan

Whitley county cattle owners will comply with State Board of Health recommendations in testing for Brucellosis, it was determined at a meeting of about fifty representative beef and dairy farmers held Tuesday evening, in the county agent's office here. Dr. Norvan Myer, USDA Bureau of animal Industry, evplained the erea method of controlling the disease. Merle Kyler, president of the Dairy Council, served as chairman.

"Forty Indiana counties now testing for brucellosis are required to pay only one-fourth of the cost at this time," Dr. Myer told the group. "Similar assistance will be given additional counties so long as funds are available. All counties adjoining Whitley have eradication programs under way. City Boards of Health plan to eventually stop the use of Grade A milk from untested herds. Regulations on the marketing of meat from diseased animals are being considered at some points. Brucellosis in humans is known as undulant fever," the veterinarian explained.

To Carry Petition

To secure State and Federal assistance in brucellosis control, 75 per cent of the cattle men owning 75 per cent of the cattle must petition for it through the Indiana Livestock Sanitary Board. Beef and dairy leaders in Whitley county will carry petitions at once to qualify for the assistance, the representatives a the meeting agreed. November 1 was the date set for completion of the petition work.

Township chairmen named to supervise the project are Lowell Yohe, Cleveland; Clarence Fahl, Columbia; Glen Western, Etna-Troy; George Frazier, Jefferson; John Mathias, Richland; Clarence Zeigler, Smith; Monroe Kitson, Thorncreek; Burton Hess, Union and Donald Argerbright, Washington. Each chairman heads a committee of 5 to 10 men who are to secure the required signatures.

Nixon, Knowland Discuss Problems Of Government

WAWSHINGTON (UP) — Vice President Richard M Nixon and Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland, potential GOP presidential candidates, talked over government problems today.

Nixon, acting as head of the Eisenhower "team" during the President's illness, told newsmen before breakfasting with Knowland that government operations "are going very smoothly."

He declined to say if he has signed any official papers on behalf of the President. He said, "I don't want to comment on what I have done or haven't done."

Knowland told newsmen he has not been in touch with Denver but has "talked to various people" at the White House since the President's attack.

Except for a foreign policy speech in North Carolina tonight, Knowland said he intends to remain here until Monday.

Nixon, who had been scheduled for a lengthy speech tour, said he will not decide until early next week on which ones will be cancelled, or substitute speakesr provided.

Search Ends For Marcus Boy

STOCKTON, Calif. (UP) — A widespread search for little Robert Marcus ended early today when a distraught blonde who "just wanted a baby of my own" surrendered the child to a Catholic priest.

The baby was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Sanford Marcus, identified him.

"We are 99 per cent certain that it is our baby," said Marcus.

Officials Hope Ike Will Be Able To Referee

Any Arguments Over New Program Going To Congress

WASHINGTON (UP) — Administration officials hoped today that President Eisenhower will be well enough by the end of the year to referee any administration arguments over new programs to be presented to Congress next January.

On the basis of past experience, experts said the Chief Executive's firm hand will be most needed in the final stages of fiscal 1957 budget planning, preparation of new legisative programs and the State of the Union message.

The budget was given as an example.

Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, in a budget-balancing mood, has taken a dim view of heavy foreign aid expenditures. Last year he was disputed by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, Foreign Aid Chief Harold E. Stassen, and to some extent by Defense Secrteary Charles E. Wilstn. The main disagreement was over a new Asian aid program.

Mr. Eisenhower stepped in and settled things. Both sides gave a little and a compromise was reached.

Experts believe that Humphrey this year will be even more insistent on budget-balancing.

The problem has not come up yet. Experts of all government departments are working overtime on their dollar requests for the 1957 fiscal year. But this work is on a preparatory level. It has not reached the point of requiring final decisions within the State, Defense or other departments.

.. Decisions In December . ....

This situation was acknowledged Tuesday by White House Press Secretary James J. Hagerty in Denver. He pointed out that government business, because of the time of year, is at a point where many matters that eventually will come before the President are in the preparation stage. Normally, he said, these matters would not come before the President for decision until possibly December.

This situation is particularly true because of the way the President operates the administration. He follows the Army principle of staff work. Recommendations start at the bottom and come to the top, for the most part, only afer they are ready for decision.

EMERGENCY FUNDS - The Whitley County Community Chest's contingency fund carried out some of the work for which it is designed recently when the Whitley County Red Cross appealed to the Chest for assistance.

The Red Cross applied to the Community Chest for additional funds in order to prevent a concentrated extra drive for funds. It was the fifth time this year that a Red Feather agency has received additional assistance from the Chest.

President Eisenhower Begins To Inquire About State Of Affairs

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower has begun to inquire about the state of affairs outside his hospital room and has been told simply that "everything is fine" it was learned today.

He had a comfortable day Wednesday "without complitions" and was able to spend 13 hours outside his oxygen tent at Fitzsimons Army Hospital. He was returned to the tent during the night, but only as a routine measure to help him rest, according to doctors.

At 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST) the President's doctors reported that he had a sound sleep for the third night. The first bulletin on the President's condition of the day said:

"The President had a very good night. He slept almost continuously under the oxygen tent from 9 p.m. to 6:15 a.m. MST."

The few people who have had contact with the President since he suffered a heart attack last Saturday have made no effort to bring up business affairs.

He has, however, made at least one general inquiry, asking how things are going. He went into no detail and the staff member to whom the inquiry was directed replied without elaboration that "everything is fine."

Mrs. Eisenhower, who has a room across the hall from the President at the hospital, sees him several times a day and may have discussed any number of subjects. But the attitude of the staff is to say nothing to him about business or official affairs and answer when asked in general phrases of encouragement.

As the President's recovery proceeds, however, he is expected to start examining documents and pulling abreast of business affairs, possibly by late next week.

Judging from the official bulletins and statements by Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, the President Wednesday had his most

New Acts Planned For Kiwanis Variety Show October 19-20

Progress is being made on plans for the annual Kiwanis Club Variety Show October 19-20 at Marshall Memorial Hall.

Harold Murphy, president of the club, is heading arrangements for the event, the proceeds of which will be used to further the club's sponsorship of various youth activities throughout the year.

New acts are being readied to make this year's show different from the 1954 show. The program will include a number of outside acts, augmented by club talent.

Outside acts include a girls' singing trio, two acrobatic acts and a musical combo group. Club acts include "Weary Willie," the clown; "Mighty Max," a tight rope act; "The Stumblebums," a club dancing chorus and a singing chorus.

Members named for the dancing group are James Biddle, Walter Binder, Dale Bitting, Charles Guse, Herschell Hall, Bob Meyer, Paul Murphy, Archie Rohrbach, Henry Sievers, Jim Sherwood, Bob Weir and Vic O'Brien.

The singers are Berlin Foster, Ed Ginn, Glenn Overdeer, Talbert Pittenger, Hugh Henry, Walt Langohr, Ray Reed, the Rev. Verlin Vernon, Esta Keirn, Dick Warner, Chet Wright, Dick Dornick, Bob Hollingsworth, Dick Duffield, Leonard Barnum. Choirmaster is expected to be Oren Clark.

Original plans for the show were upset by the death of Horace Hendrickson, high school speech and dramatics teacher, who was killed in an automobile accident Sunday morning in Greenville, Ohio. Hendrickson had agreed to assist in the direction of this year's Kiwanis Club show. However, "the show will go on," according to President Murphy.

The general theme of the show will be "Smile" and this will be emphasized by both the songs and the acts.

Manchester To Exhibit Works Of German Artist

Given By People In Appreciation Of CROP

NORTH MANCHESTER — The first official public exhibition in America of a collection of 28 modern graphics by internationally recognized contemporary German artists will be held in the Manchester College Winger Memorial Arts Building during the month of October, announced Prof. Max Allen, head of the department of art.

Presented to the Christian Rural Overseas Program, this collection of graphics, consisting of hand prints of stone lithographs, woodcuts and copper etchings, linoleum cuts and one oil painting, was purchased and assembled by the "Dankspende des Deutschen Volkes", a foundation to which millions of Germans contributed in gratitude for gifts of food sent to their country. Many of the artists are refugees, escapees and expellees and are well-known, having exhibited in leading galleries and art museums in the United States and Europe. The gift to CROP consisted of 46 graphics and one oil painting.

Individual pieces from the collection will be sent to state CROP offices across the United States, sharing the gift with those who have contributed to CROP since its beginning in 1947. Other pictures will form a traveling exhibit for display at CROP meetings and special art shows.

Included among the well-known graphics, to be on exhibition at Manchester college are: "Two Children" (Zwei Kinder) by Otto Dix; "Samaritan" (Samariter) by Willi Probst; and "Children Thanks" (Kinderdank) by Max Unold.

The public is invited to view this show free of charge. It will be on exhibit throughout each week, including Sunday, from 8:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m.

Hurricane Janet Picks Up New Power In Trek

Across Open Sea And Bears Down On Mexican Mainland

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Hurricane Janet picked up new power today in its trek across open sea and bore down on the Mexican mainland with the killer force that wrought death and destruction over the Yucatan Peninsula and the Caribbean islands.

The storm, the 10th and worst of the season, followed a west-northwest course which would bring it within striking distance of populated areas today.

Shortly before it cleared the open stretch of water between the peninsula and the mainland its maximum wind force was estimated at 115 miles an hour. But weather officials said it was constantly generating new power and might strike land with a force almost equal to the 150-mile-an-hour punch it loosed on Yucatan.

Janet smashed the tiny village of Xcalak, 200 miles southeast of Merida, Yucatan, with the most powerful winds to be recorded on shore from any storm this year.

Early reports said 97 bodies were found in the wreckage of the village and most of the dead were children.

The Mexican border town of Chetumal was reported "wiped out" by the storm. Fifty-three persons were reported killed and more than half the population left without shelter.

Another border town, Santa Elena,,was flattened and destroyed by Janet's killer winds. There were no reports available immediately on loss of life.

Janet basted across Corozal, another Yucatan town, damaging 90 per cent of the area. Six persons were killed.

Some 10,000 homeless in Corozal and Chetumal were reported in urgent need of food and water.

At Hillsboro 600 of the 700 inhabitants lost their homes and were without shelter.

Urgent requests came from many of the devastated villages for medical supplies.

Authorities said Janet's death toll early today had already reached 400 — 200 in the Caribbean islands and another 200 or more in the Yucatan peninsula. Earlier hurricanes claimed more than 700 lives in their sprees from the West Indies to the Atlantic Coast cities of the United States.

State Tax Board Makes 2 Cent Cut In County Budget

Rate Reduced To 51c; Several Other Units Have Amounts Lowered

The State Board of Tax Commissioners meeting at the Courthouse Wednesday cut two cents off the county civil tax rate for 1956. The reduction was made, according to the board, because of an underestimate of miscellaneous expected by the county and reduces the rate from 53 cents to 51 cents.

Other items in the county budget were left the same. These are welfare fund 6.5 cents, hospital maintenance 6.5, hospital bond 6, cumulative bridge 6 and 4-H Clubs fund 2 cents. With the addition of the 15 cent State tax, the overall county rate will be 95 cents for the next year.

The two-cent reduction will also be reflected in the rates for other taxable units in the county. Several other decreases were made in the budgets for some of the towns and townships. Units receiving only the two-cent reduction and their final approved rates are: Cleveland township $3.48, Etna-Troy $3.24, Columbia township $3.56, Columbia City $5.52, Thorncreek $3.62, Jefferson $2.84, Smith $4.10 and Churubusco. $4.88.

A cut of 6 cents was made in the South Whitley corporation general fund because of "no estimate on gallonage tax and to reduce the operating balance." The final corporation rate is 99 cents and the total town rate is $4.62. Richland had 10 cents taken off its special school rate and 30 cents reduced from the school tuition rate. The decreases were made on special school because of "underestimate of State support", and on tutition because of "omission of transfers." The final township rate was lowered from $3.96 to $3.54.

The special school and tuition rates for Larwill were also reduced a total of 40 cents, like the township, plus a reduction of 10 cents for the town corporation fund because of "no estimate of gallonage tax." The final town rate was reduced from $4.38 to $3.86.

In Washington township, a two cent reduction was made for the tuition rate to lower the operation balance and bring the final tax rate to $2.78 from $2.82. A reduction of 6 cents was made in Union township for the special school because of an error in the addition and 4 cents was cut from the tuition to reduce the operating balance. The final approved rate is $2.70, or 12 cents lower.

The rates as approved by the State Board are those on which assessments will be based for tax collections during the next year.

Concordia School Drill Squad Entertains At Kiwanis Meeting

The Snap Drill Squad of Concordia high school, Fort Wayne, entertained with a demonstration Wednesday night at the Kiwanis Club meeting.

The squad, which includes eight boys of the high school ROTC unit, was led by Ron Venderly, U.S. Army advisor to the unit.

The drill group gave a rythmic series of precision acts afoot and using rifles to the command of a student leader.

Prior to the demonstration, Venderly gave a short talk on the history of the military school and the purpose of the drill squad. The military phase of the school began in 1906 and was college sponsored. The drill unit was formed to teach precision on foot. When weapons were added to the drill squad in 1940, several members dropped out.

The squad which gave the demonstration was the 1954 group. This year's squad is not complete, since it takes three or four months of training for the drill unit, Venderly said.

He said that the drilling phase of the ROTC program is important in teaching mental and physical discipline. He explained that the performance of a drill squad is not "just a show," but also plays an important part in training.

Woman Kidnaper Of Marcus Baby Is Under Guard

In Psychiatric Ward At Hospital

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Mrs. Betty Jean Benedicto, 27-year-old accused kidnaper of baby Robert Marcus, was under guard today in a psychiatric ward where she was being treated for a "convulsion."

Mrs. Benedicto, a buxom blonde who admitted taking the baby from the nursery at Mount Zion Hospital Sept. 19, was arrested early Wednesday in Stockton, Calif., and brought here to face charges.

After intensive questioning, she was placed in a jail cell at city prison. Four hours later, she broke down completely, weeping and sobbing.

She was removed to the psychiatric ward at San Francisco Hospita, where Dr. David Wilson, clinical director of psychiatry, said she would remain under observation for at least 48 hours.

Dist. Atty. Thomas Lynch said he will ask the grand jury next Monday to return a kidnapping indictment against Mrs. Benedicto. The charge calls for a possible sentence of 1 to 10 years in prison.

Meanwhile, 12-day-old Robert was to leave Mount Zion Hospital today with his mother, Hanna, 29, after undergoing a checkup. His father, Dr. Sanford Marcus, 34, said Mrs. Benedicto apparently gave the infant the best of care.

Mrs. Benedicto said she stole Robert because she always "wanted a little boy of my own." She said she had lost a child 10 years ago.

Mrs. Benedicto said she married Mark B. Benedicto, 52-year-old rooming house operator and editor of a Filipino newspaper, last Octber. She wanted a baby so badly, she said, that she let her husband believe she was really going to become a mother.

"Finally, I either had to tell him the truth or get a baby," she sobbed.

Parliamentary Law Conference Held For Pupils

Jefferson Students Learn Procedures

The students and faculty of Jefferson Center high school participated in a Parliamentary Law Conference Wednesday during the fifth and sixth class periods, Principal Eudolph Holycross reports.

The purpose of the conference, Mr. Holycross explained was to instruct the general student body and particularly the class officers and club officers in the proper usage of parliamentary law and procedure.

Arthur C. Wright, attorney with the firm of Hughes, Wyss, and Wright of Fort Wayne, acted as counselor during the conference.

The conference opened with the student body observing a prayerful meditation for the recovery of President Eisenhower, followed by the Pledge to the Flag.

Principal Holycross introduced Attorney Wright, who spoke briefly on the origin, purposes, and reasons for classes and clubs using parliamentary law in their meetings.

Sectional Meetings

Sectional group meetings were then held as follows: for presidents and vice-presidents - Phillip Miller and Nancy Hollenbaugh as student chairmen and Gerald Wallace and Miss Norma Strite as faculty advisors; for secretaries - Jeanne Beard as student chairman and Miss Opal Poland as faculty advisor; for treasurers - Larry Juillerat as student chairman and Albert Loutzenhiser as faculty advisor; for reporters - Virginia Mertz as student chairman and Mrs. Elaine Holycross as faculty advisor; for class members - David Phillips as student chairman and Charles Luther and David Newell as faculty advisors.

Following the officers' sectional meeting, a general assembly of all the students was held in the gym, where the senior civics class presented a mock class meeting to exemplify the proper manner to conduct a meeting.

Mr. Wright closed the conference by conducting a question and answer period. Students and faculty presented the questions for answers and interpretations.

The Fort Wayne attorney thanked the school for the privilege of having him help today's school citizens learn to actively participate in meetings and to use proper parliamentary law. He said each class and club is a "little democracy" where students can become prepared to hold offices in the civic, social, and church organizations of which they will later be adult members.

Mr. Wright graduated from Larwill high school in 1938 and was a student in the classes of Mr. and Mrs. Holycross when they taught at Larwill.

Soviet Orders Return Of 9,626 German POWs

Some Will Remain Prisoners In Germany

MOSCOW (UP)—The Soviet Union kept its promise to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and East German Premier Otto Grotewohl today and ordered the return of 9,626 German war prisoners. But some will remain prisoners in Germany.

A decree of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, Russia's parliament, said it could not remit the sentences of 749 of the prisoners "in view of the especially grave crimes they have committed against the Soviet people."

The decree said 8,877 will be released "from further serving sentences" and returned either to East or West Germany according "to their place of residence." But the 749 who will not be freed will be handed over to East and West Germany as war criminals, it said.

The Presidium's decree was the formal follow up of promises to Adenauer and Grotewohl during their missions to Moscow earlier this month. It specifically mentioned requests of both governments. The figure of 9,626 was the one used by Adenauer.

(The decree did not mention fears by West German officials that up to 140,000 civilians are interned behind the Iron Curtain. West German officials have reported more than one-million soldiers and civilians missing, with most of them believed dead. Russia has said it knows only of the 9,626 mentioned today.)

BONN, Germany (UP)— Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today the first group of 5,000 German war prisoners will be released by the Soviets "in the very near future—probably next week."

Adenauer told newsmen that "great majority" of these 5,000 will be sent by the Soviets to West Germany.

Only a small number will remain in the Soviet zone of Germany where their families live, Adenauer added.

Yankees Beat Dodgers 4-2 In Second Game

Yankees Have 4th Inning Splurge

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees, admitting that "I'm gambling again," sent left-handed pitcher Tommy Byrne against the Dodgers in the second game of the World Series today, hoping to make it two in a row.

Having won Wednesday's first game behind southpaw Whitey Ford, with relief help from Bob Grim in the ninth inning, Stengel suggested that "I might be tempting fate once too often.

"But Whitey, with that assist from Grim, did it yesterday and there's no reason Tommy can't do the same today," the skipper of the American League champions said.

"I don't know if it's good policy to pitch left - handers against Brooklyn two days in a row, but I'm going to do it," he added.

The Dodgers usually murder left handers. Not a single southpaw has gone the distance and won against them this season. But Ford, with that ninth inning help from Grim, turned them back yesterday, 6-5

Opposing Byrne, a 16-game winner, was right-hander Billy Loes. He won 10 games while losing 4 for the Dodgers this season but came down with a sore shoulder in July and has seen little action since then.

Loes, who has a cold to go with his shoulder ailment, said he felt "pretty good considering everything."

He has faced the Yankees twice in World Series games, winning one of them and losing the other.

It was a clear, sunny day with a brisk breeze blowing in from leftfield.

"I think it's Byrne weather," Stengel winked.

Ike Expected To Reveal 1956 Political Plans Sooner Than Was Likely Before Becoming Ill

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The word here and from Denver is that President Eisenhower will reveal his 1956 political plans much sooner than was likely before he became ill, probably before Christmas.

The advice of his political associates and his own inclinations long had centered on an early March announcement. Mr. Eisenhower's political friends were strongly confident that he would announce willingness to accept renomination

They are not confident now. There is a good chance that the contest for next year's Republican presidential nomination will become a free-for-all political brawl damaging to the party's election prospects, assuming that Mr. Eisenhower is out of it.

No Natural Sucieeeeeeeeeee

Sen. Robert A. Taft was the acknowledged leader of one large division of the Republican Party. He is dead. Mr. Eisenhower was the hand-picked leader of the other division of the party has handy a man who stands out as the natural successor either to the late senator or to the stricken President. A comparatively leaderless party can work itself into a dreadful tangle.

It is a wide open contest, therefore, as of now, Mr. Eisenhower can bring his prestige to bear in favor of his own choice of a 1956 presidential nominee only if he soon takes himself out of the running and goes all out to put his man over. It remains to be seen whether the President can dictate the party choice. There is some doubt, even, that he will seek to do so. But presidents usually want to pick their successors.

But he still must take himself out earlier than planned, if he intends to retire, merely to be fair to the voters and to Republican hopefuls, even though he may not wish to choose among them.

Presidential primaries are coming up, the first on March 13 in New Hampshire, followed by Minnesota March 20; Wisconsin April 3; Illinois April 10; New Jersey April 17; Massachusetts April 24. Upward of a dozen others extend through May and into June.

Entitled To Chance

If Mr. Eisenhower retires and has no favorite, all hands are entitled to an equal chance at the primary gantlet. The voters are entitled to maximum opportunity to observe the various hopefuls under pre-convention campaign fire.

If Mr. Eisenhower has a favorite, he will have to hustle him into some key primary contests not only to ward off poachers but to put his man on show. The primaries are important. They can be deadly to a loser.

Taft's 1952 drive for the Republican presidential nomination was wounded, probably fatally, by New Hampshire and New Jersey primary reverses. A lone Wisconsin primary shattered the late Wendell L. Willkie's dream of obtaining Republican renomination in 1944.

Indonesia, Led By President, Goes To Polls

DJAKARTA, Indonesia (UP) — President Sukarno led his nation to the polls beneath a merciless sun today in Indonesia's first general elections which will determine whether this sixth largest country in the world will fall into the Communist, neutralist or Western camps.

The compliplicated balloting for first elected parliament of this nation of 81 million persons will last for two months. The counting of votes started immediately and a hint of the outcome may come tonight with tabulation of the Djakarta vote. A clearcut verdict may be known within a week.

Some 80 per cent of the 43,000,000 registered voters were expected to vote in the elections which end Nov. 29 with election of a parliament of between 260 and 278 members.

Sukarno walked from his palace down the street to a polling station in the Information Minstry just before 8 a.m. He stood patiently in line with several hundred other men-women formed thei rown lines —but was asked to cast the first ballot.

Sukarno, a leader of the nationalist party, punched a spike through one of the symbols on a ballot the size of an eight-column newspaper and deposited it in a ballot box.

"This is a very great event," he told United Press. "We have been waiting for 10 years for this. I am certain all will go well."

The parliament will name a cabinet to replace the series of five provisional governments in office since Nov. 2, 1949 when a Dutch Cabinet minister signed a document transferring sovereignty to this 2,500-mile-long chain of islands.

The sailing ship Flying Cloud sailed from New York to San Francisco around South America, a distance of 15,091 nautical miles, in 98 days in 1854.

Baby Rescued From Car Seconds Before Train Smashes Car

HAMMOND, Ind. (UP) — A motorist rescued a baby from a stalled car seconds before it was smashed by a train Wednesday while the infant's mother watched in horror, unaware her child was safe.

Mrs. Edward Martin, 18, Cedar Lake, had jumped from the auto moments earlier with a second son in her arms. Charles Fessenger Gary, saw she could not dash back in time to save the other boy, 14-month-old Joseph, as the train bore down on the crossing.

Fessenger leaped int the auto and snatched the child out of danger as Mrs. Martin stood helplessly by on the other side of the train. She did not know of the rescue until the train stopped.

Find Body Of Aged Miser

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—An aged man who spent only a few cents a day for food although he had more than $4,000 in cash and bank savings, was found dead late Wednesday in his gas-filled home, and his common-law wife was found unconscious.

Authorities estimated that Walter O. Lyons, 77, had been dead about 24 hours. His common-law-wife, Mrs. Josephine Brown, 67 was in critical condition.

They were discovered by a neighbor Harry Mitchell, 77, who said he frequently brought them their daily fare of small pies, bread, milk and apples while Lyons was sick. Mitchel said he investigated because he had not seen the two since Saturday.

During their investigation poice found more than $2,100 in cash hidden in drawers and two bank books, one of them showing an account of $2,000.

Police said Mrs. Brown told them after regaining semi-consiousness that her husband had died of a heart attack and she turned on the gas stove, but later changed her mind and shut it off too late to avoid being overcome.

Marie Dionne Back In Convent

QUEBEC CITY (UP)— Quintuplet Marie Dionne, who left the cloistered life of a novice nun when the strain made her ill, was back in the quiet of convent life today and planned to remain there for the rest of her life.

Marie, now 21 and one of four survivors of the "famous five" whose sister Emilie died last year, returned secretly to the monastery of La Congregation des Servantes du Tres Saint Sacrament Sept. 12. She originally entered the order Nov. 3, 1953.

A senior nun at the convent disclosed Marie's return Wednesday night. She said the girl who stayed close to home at Callander, Ont., while she was away from the coistered Roman Catholic order "looked radiant' when her elder sister accompanied her back here.

The nun did not say what influenced Marie's decision to return to live with other women who devote their lives to worship and are obliged to spend their time at prayer, including an hour's adoration during the night.

"She just came back," the nun

24-Hour Patrols Of Angola Area Have Been Ordered

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—State Police Supt Frank Jessup today ordered 24-hour patrols of the Angola area, which may become jammed up with traffic from Ohio's new toll road.

The turnpike opens Friday midnight. Engineers figure it might handle 12,000 vehicles per day.

All those cars and trucks must go through Angola to get onto or off the toll road. It ends in a cornfield at the Ohio-Indiana line, and traffic abruptly jumps from the four-lane turnpike onto two-lane U.S. 20.

Jessupt sent 25 troopers to the area. He said they will work shifts around the clock during the weekend, especially watching the eight-mile stretch of U.S. 20 from the stateline to Angola and the "circle" of traffic which will form in the center of the city.

After the weekend, he hopes to have a better idea what size force will be needed to handle the toll road traffic dumped into Indiana.

peasant day since he suffered a coronary thrombosis early last Saturday at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud.

In addition to being free of the oxygen tent during the day time, Mr. Eisenhower was able to enjoy recorded music in his hospital room. He also was looking frward room. He also was looking forward to hearing recorded stories of western adventure, mysteries and selections from Shakespeare on so-called "reading records."

He has not been reading newspapers or listening to the radio, so the recorded music offers some relief from the tedium of hospital rutine.

The late night bulletin on the President, issued by his physicians, Dr. Howard M. C. Snyder of the White House and Col. Byron E. Pollock, chief of cardiology at Fitzsimons, said:

"The President spent a comfortable day without complications.

"He returned to the oxygen tent at 7:30 this evening. The use of the oxygen tent is a routine measure to assure rest for the president during the night."

Pollock was in telephone conference twice during the day with Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famed Boston heart specialist who was here to consult on the President's condition earlier this week.

After the conference, Dr. White said in Boston that the return of Mr. Eisenhower's blood pressure "toward the usual level" is a "particularly good sign." He noted that the President's temperature is normal and his pulse is "good."

Mr. Eisenhower seems to be enjoying mealtime more each passing day. But his doctors are limiting him to a total of 1,600 calories a day to prevent his putting on weight.

It was explained in Denver that the 1,600-calorie limit is not at all intended to take off weight, but to guard against an increase in weight due to inactivity in bed.

Cardinal Chapter Pays Tribute To Past Matrons, Patrons

Twelve Past Matrons and Past Patrons of Cardinal chapter of the Eastern Star at Larwill were honored Tuesday evening at the Masonic lodge room. Each of the present officers greeted the honor guests with an appropriate verse or greeting.

The greeting of Homer Mathias, Associate Patron, was quite unique. It read "I'd rather be a 'has been' than a 'might have been, by far for a 'might have been' has never been but a 'has been' was once and are."

Each of the star points presented each honor guest with a floral tribute in the color appropriate to her station, and Mrs. Alvin Sweney, chaplain of the chapter, presented each guest with a gift in behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Boggs, present Worthy Matron and Patron.

At the tables laid for the serving, was found a place card marked by a small gold star. Purple and gold formed the color note of the tables, centered with Talisman roses i na yellow vase and decorated with small gavels in purple. The emblematic star in the five colors marked the decorations at the table laid for the honor guests.

Sandwiches, potato chips, coffee, tea were served by a committee.

The honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Marcus White, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Marker, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Conley, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Rush, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gebert, Mrs. Glenn Williamson; Mrs. Calvin Watkins.

Peron Has Been Granted Asylum In Spain

May Begin Flight Into Exile Today

By W. H. MCCALL
United Press Staff Correspondent

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—Ousted President Juan D. Peron has been granted asylum in Spain and may begin his flight into exile today, a source close to the new president said.

The informant said negotiations for a safe conduct pass for the deposed dictator have been concluded. He said Peron will be picked up by a seaplane from the Paraguayan gunboat in Buenos Aires harbor and flown to Paraguay. Then he will go to Spain.

Peron will leave behind what has been described as an "Arabian Nights" treasure trove amassed during his 10 years dictatorship of Argentina. A partial police inventory of the loot recovered thus far listed almost 30-million dollars in gold coins and U.S. and Argentine currency alone.

Fled When Regime Toppled

Peron fled to refuge aboard the gunboat Paraguay, in Buenos Aires for repairs, when his regime toppled 11 days ago. He remained aboard the 25-year old crippled gunboat under the watchful eyes of the Argentine navy and air force during negotiations for his exile.

President Eduardo Lonardi, leader of the revolution which ended Peron's "iron man" domination, promised to respect the Latin American policy of the right of political asylum. But he vowed also to make certain that Peron would not be able to conspire to regain his political power and prestige from the safety of exile.

A source close to the presidency said that Spain's willingness to accept Peron was expressed by Spanish Charge d'Affaires Manuel Viturra in a meeting with Juan Chavez, Paraguayan ambassador to Buenos Aires.

Party Leader Arrested

Police Wednesday night arrested Alejandro Leloir, leader of the Peronista Party. Leloir succeeded Peron as party head after the latter resigned on the heels of the abortive June 16 revolt.

Lonardi Wednesday granted full amnesty for all military and political figures imprisoned since Peron took office in June, 1946, including these whose cases are pending in the courts.

At the same time, Amadeo said that all political refugees in foreign embassies here would be permitted to go abroad without hindrance. Most of Peron's chief supporters took asylum in various Latin American embassies when his regime fell.

France Against A Reconciliation With Russia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—France declared today it is against Western reconciliation with Russia if it means dissolution of the Atlantic pact and withdrawal of American forces from Europe.

French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay told the United Nations General Assembly Russia "is on the wrong track when it attacks the Atlantic pact and when it bases its propaganda on the elimination of what it calls, improperly, 'foreign bases'."

"I know of no 'foreign bases' military establishments, imposed on any state, within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization," Pinay said.

"I know only of means of defense that have been placed in common, freely and voluntarily, in the service of a single ideal, that of peace.

Blames Communism in Africa

"It has to be said, frankly and openly:

"If detente is to mean the dissolution of the Atlantic pact and the departure of American forces from Europe, then France is resolutely opposed to such a policy."

Pinay, the third of the Big Four foreign ministers to address the General Assembly's 10th annual session, took a firm stand against Russia's German policy and declared that the Bonn government is the only "democratically elected government in Germany."

Pinay accused communism of stirring up trouble in North Africa where France has had difficulties with her protectorates. The Arab states are demanding a full U.N. airing of the situation.

"It is indeed difficult for us to forget that agitation among the non-self-governing peoples has constantly been held to be an essential weapon in the struggle of communism against the free world," he said.

"Are there some who would consider opening a new front in Africa? Too much is at stake. This ambiguity must be removed."

Major interest centered on Pinay's observations on the North African crisis.

Get Well Ike Fund

Officials said they hoped the fund will continue to grow. The money will be sent to the American Heart Assn. to help finance research into heart disease, they said.

Frank Wyss Found Guilty Of Tax Evasion

BULLETIN

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Frank A. Wyss, 61, Fort Wayne businessman and political figure, was found gulty today in federal court on a charge of evading $4,915 in income taxes.

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Final evidence will be heard today in the trial of Frank A. Wyse., 61, Fort Wayne milk company head and political figure accused of evading $4915 in income taxes.

In testimony Wednesday, Wyss said that large sums of money he received as treasurer of the Branning for Mayor Club were held in trust for political purposes. Government attorneys claim the money represented "kickbacks" for business favors and was used by Wyss for stock market investments.

The defendant in the nine-day Federal Court trial is accused of evading taxes during 1948 and 1949. Wyss was on the stand most of Wednesday and at one point admitted he hadn't filed reports of all political contributions to the county clerk as required by law.

Jefferson Center Shades Coesse 5-4 In Game Wednesday

The Jefferson Center baseball team beat the Coesse Indians 5-4 in a game Wednesday afternoon on the losers' field. The game was scheduled for last Friday at Jefferson Center, but was rained out.

Jerry Hollenbaugh was the winning pitcher for the Tigers. Ronald Steele pitched for the Indians. Hollenbaugh had a total of eight strike-outs and issued eight walks. Steele struck out seven men and walked only two.

The Tigers had five runs, seven hits and three errors. Coesse had four runs, two hits and two errors. The winners scored all of their runs in the third inning. Their rally was sparked by doubles by Steve Dygert, Jerry Bolinger, Dave and Dean Phillips.

The Indians scored one run in the first and three in the fourth. Maley had a double for the losing Indians. The four runs by the Indians were all unearned while all of the Jefferson Center runs were earned except one.

Junior Kennedy, South Whitley, was the official.

South Whitley will be at Coesse Friday and Larwill will be at Churubusco. Jefferson Center will have an open date.

Hartack Rides 3 More Winners

MAYS LANDING, N.J. (UP) — Willie Hartack, the nation's leading jockey from Johnstown, Pa., booted home three more winners at Atlantic City Wednesday to run his 1955 victory total to 325, 48 better than runner-up Willie Shoemaker. Hartack scored on Stimulant, Brau Imp and Yellow Dot.

Collins Tells How It Feels To Hit 2 Homers

Editors Note: Joe Collins slammed a pair of homers and drove in three runs today to lead the Yankees to a 6-5 victory over the Dodgers in the first game of the World Series. In the following dispatch, he tells how he did it and how it felt.

By JOE COLLINS
As Told To The United Press

NEW YORK (UP)—I was tickled to hit two, but frankly I was trying for three.

Believe me, I was really "going for the downs," as we players say, when I came up for the fourth time in the eighth. But all I could do was fly out to left field. I hit that ball pretty good, too.

Don Newcombe wasn't exacty a stranger to me. I hit against him in 1948 when he was with Montreal in the International League. I was in the same league and I remember I always had good luck against him. Not great, you understand, but good enough to keep me happy.

He's certainly not the fastest pitcher I've faced this year but he's fast enough. Reminds me a lot of Willard Nixon, the guy with the Red Sox who gave us all that trouble this year. Newcombe has good stuff; he's no soft touch in any league.

I don't think they pitched me the same way twice all day today.

Newcombe kept the ball inside on me when I walked in the second inning.. Then I hit a low fast ball for my first homer in the fourth, and in the sixth, the ball I hit into the bleachers was high and outside.

Give some of the credit to Mickey Mantle. I was using his bats. I picked up a couple of them a few days ago and I like them so I've decided to use them. You bet I'll keep using them for the rest of the series.

I've hit two homers in one game twice before during the year, but naturally these two gave me more of a kick. As a matter of fact, I'd have to call this my best day in baseball—as far as thrills go, anyway.

Early Wynn of the Indians and Dick Donovan of the White Sox were the pitchers I hit two homers off in the same games earlier this year.

I certainly would have given a lot to have gotten that third one, but you can't have everything, I guess.

Besides, maybe it's a good thing to save one of 'em for a little later, anyway.

Eagles Will Meet Unbeaten Bluffton In Conference Game

This Friday the Eagles football squad will travel to Bluffton where the local gridders will meet the Tigers in a Northeastern Indiana Conference game. Bluffton is unbeaten this season, and last week blanked the Auburn Red Devils 8-0. This places the Tigers in the position of heavy favorites.

Coach Leonard Barnum indicates that changes are still being made in the C.C. lineup with hopes of finding a combination that will click. Larry Whetstone, regular quarterback, has been out of school this week with the hives, and Ron Yant and Freshman Jerl Kniss have been alternating at the guarterback spot. Replacing Yant at full, is Randall Carpenter, who has not seen any game action to date, having received a broken nose recently in an automobile accident, but has reportedly been running and tackling well in practice. Gary Deutsch and Dick Jones are still holding the halfback positions. The line positions are definitely open to anyone, the coaches state. Ends who will make the trip to Bluffton will be Link, Simmers, Bates, Terry Smith, Parrett, and Kerch. Tackles will be Fry, Brennan, J. Smith, and Sickafoose. Guards will be Schrader, Loe, Hall, and Fisher. Bridge and Miller will fill the center spot.

Terry Smith, out of action since a shoulder injury in the Eagle opener at Nappanee, is now ready and will probably see action against the Tigers. On the inactive list in addition to Whetstone, is Zumbrun, center who fell off a tractor and received some bruises that have kept him out of uniform this week.

Hal Wood Honored

FRESNO, Calif. (UP) — Hal Wood, Pacific division sports editor of the United Press, was honored Wednesday night by the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at its annual football dinner.

Fullmer Gets Defeat At Hands Of Boyd

CHICAGO (UP)—Gene Fullmer, a West Jordan, Utah battler who last week was ranked as the world's fourth middleweight, was another run-of-the-mill prize fighter today after a 10-round defeat at the hands of Bobby Boyd Wednesday night.

Boyd, a 22-year-old Chicagoan who has been knocked out four times and lost six of 43 matches, had no trouble with the Utah star who won 31 straight fights before he lost to Gil Turner and who since then has won two more bouts.

Fullmer, though, gave away weight at 155 pounds to Boyd's 151¼, and he was at a disadvantage too in height and reach. Boyd took full advantage of these breaks to pile up points steadily with his counter-punching.

United States Receives Reports That Communist Arms Shipments Already Have Left Ports For Egypt

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States has received reports that Communist arms shipments already have left European and Black Sea ports for Egypt, it was learned today.

Efforts are being made to check on these reports to determine whether they are true. So far, the reports only say that ships carryin arms to Egypt have left Antwerp, Belgium, and Odessa, a Soviet port on the Black Sea.

Authorities were unable to say what kind of arms are supposed to be aboard the ships and whose vessels are involved.

The United States was speeding one of its diplomatic trouble-shooters to Cairo to discuss the Communist arms agreement with Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser. Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen took off suddenly Wednesday on a trip to Egypt, Lebanon and Athens, Greece, during which he will express U.S. concern over Egypt's agreement with Russia and Czechoslovakia.

Arms Race Feared

The United States is concerned about Communist agreement to supply arms to Egypt because it fears the deal will upset radically the balance of power in the strife-torn Middle East, where Egypt and the other Arab nations are aligned against Israel. It is known that Egypt sought last June to obtain jet bombers, heavy tanks, naval vessels and heavy artillery from the United States and presumably is trying to get the same items from the Soviet world.

The British joined the United States in expressing their "grave concern" over the weapons purchases. British ambassador Sir Humphrey Trevelyan was instructed Wednesday to inform Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser of the grave view that the British take toward Egypt's attitude.

The State Department would not say exactly what Allen hoped to accomplish on his Cairo mission. But it was assumed he would do his best to try to discourage the Egyptians from going through with the Communist arms arrangement.

Apparently Due To Fail

If so, Allen apparently is doomed to failure. Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi said in New York Wednesday it is his nation's "indisputable right and . . . duty to get from wherever we can our defense requirements." His statement seemed clearly aimed at a joint U.S.-British statement appealing to all nations to avoid an arms race in the Middle East.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told reporters on his return from a two-day meeting in New York Wednesday that he had discussed the Communist arms agreement with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov. But he refused to disclose Molotov's attitude on the matter.

Dulles also said the importance of Czechoslovakia's agreement to furnish Egypt with weapons "depends on what the quantity and kind of arms are."

Three Important Democrats Have Political Meeting

Johnson, Rayburn And Stevenson Meet

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—A secluded Texas ranch house 66 miles from Austin served as a political meeting place today for three important Democrats—Adlai E. Stevenson, Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson and House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Stevenson and Rayburn drove to Johnson's ranch home to spend the night Wednesday after the 1952 presidential candidate had delivered a "non-political" speech to some 5,500 students on the campus of the University of Texas.

Both Stevenson and Rayburn refused to discuss politics with reporters Wednesday but there likely was plenty of political talk crossing the breakfast table this morning when the pair get together with Johnson, who is recuperating from a heart attack.

Stevenson arrived in Dallas by plane Wednesday from Chicago and went on to Austin where he touched on the nation's economy and foreign affairs in his speech before a cheering audience made up mostly of students.

Gov. Allan Shivers, who was in Houston, was conspicuous by his absence just as he was when Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler visited Texas last June.

Shivers led Texas into the Republican column in 1952 for only the second time in history when Stevenson refused to back Texas' claim to its tidelands.

The Texas governor recently said in Chicago that he would not support Stevenson again if he is nominated.

The party in Texas is still split wide open between Shivers' "conservatives" and "loyalists" who were faithful to the Democrats in 1952. The Stevenson visit, following by a few months the visit by Butler, apparently another effort to get Texas "straightened out before next year.

Stevenson, in his speech warned that there are "serious flaws" in the nation's booming prosperity. He said he was not a "prophet of gloom" but that certain econmic trends point to "trouble ahead" and the nation's leaders should talk less about how big the boom is and more about how to make it last.

Charging that "farmers are not sharing at all in the good times," he said:

"Their prices continue to fall while prices to consumers do not and the profits of manufacturers rise to unprecedented levels. In the past, such a trend has been an ominous warning of trouble ahead."

Community Chest Funds Aid Scouts In Learning To Lead More Happy, Useful Lives

(Editor's note: This is another in a series of articles describing a county-wide agency which is participating in the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc.)

The Girl Scouts of America movement is growing larger each year as a means of teaching girls to lead more happy, useful lives.

Its growth internationally is reflected in the steady spread of the movement here in Whitley County. The present Whitley County Girl Scout Association was organized only as recently as 1953, but already ncludes 22 troops. More than 215 girls are being made to expand it even further into all areas of the county.

The Association is one of the member agencies of the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc., and derives much of its funds from the annual Community Chest operation.

There are three phases to the Girl Scout program, all of which are represented in the Whitley County organization. The three are Brownies: girls in the second through fourth grades who are just entering Scouting; Intermediates: girls in grades five through eight who are active in the 11 basic fields of the program, and Senior Scouts: high school age girls who specialize in chosen fields and are taught to serve the community.

The 11 fields stressed in the Girl Scout program are arts and crafts, agriculture, community life, health and safety, homemaking, international friendship, music and dancing, nature, the out-of-doors, sports and games and literature and dramatics.

Officers of the association are Mrs. David Walter, Jr., president; Mrs. John Whiteleather, vice-president; Mrs. Robert Langohr, secretary; Mrs. Walter Eberhard, treasurer; Mrs. Carl Arntson, registrar, and Mrs. Robert Estlick, organization chairman.

Eighteen Girl Scout leaders completed an 18-hour training course during September.

Plans for the immediate future include the selection of four members from the association to attend the International Roundup in Michigan for 10 days next summer.

As a member of the Community Chest, the Girl Scout movement in Whitley county will be supported by the voluntary gifts to the Red Feather agency in the drive which begins October 10.

Kanady Refuses To Complete His Return To U. S.

Twice Attempts To Jump From Plane

WAKE ISLAND (UP) — Dilmus Kanady, Texas businessman freed from a Chinese prison last Monday, refused today to complete his return to the United States.

It was believed that Kanady, 36, of Houston, feared that if he returned to the United States he would be sent back to Red China.

Passengers aboard his plane said Kanady twice had attempted to jump out during the flight from Tokyo to Wake Island.

Alfred J. Millet of Platsburg, N.Y., who is reurning from Laos where he had worked for the International Cooperation Administration, said in Honolulu that Kanady was induced both times to return to his seat.

Millet said Kanady acted as though he had claustrophobia.

"I understand how he felt," Millet said, "because I've had similar feelings in Laos. You get the feeling they're closing in on you every once in a while."

Kanady stepped off a Pan American Airways plane as it landed on Wake Island. He presented his baggage check to Capt. T. F. George and politely insisted on ending his flight here.

Passengers said Kanady looked "terribly undernourished," possibly 60 or 70 pounds underweight.

The passengers, who declined to be identified, said that when the plane landed on Wake, Kanady said he knew he was on American territory and wanted to stay aground.

One passenger quoted him as saying he wanted to remain because "it's the first bit of American soil I've seen since my imprisonment."

Another passenger who had traveled with him from Hong Kong said at times Kanady still appeared to think he was still in China and acted with an air o secrecy and great fear.

Kanady was a prisoner of the Reds for 4½ years.

When the Communists released him last Monday, he was reported to be in the poorest physical condition of any of the Americans freed by the Reds. At first doctors wanted to send a nurse with him on his homeward trip, but later they decided he could make the trip alone.

Two Tropical Storms Pile Up New Death Tolls

In Mexico And Japan

By UNITED PRESS

Two tropical storms piled up new death tolls in Mexico and Japan today and a squall line pushed rapidly southwest in this country.

Hurricane Janet, one of the greatest hurricane of all time, amassed a death count of at least 473 before she pounded herself to death against the mountains of central Mexico.

Communications were down along much of the storm-ripped Mexican coastline and the fate of many communities remained a mystery.

Janet killed 206 persons in her sweep through the Caribbean islands and then claimed 267 more lives in a destructive sweep across the Yucatan peninsula.

There was more destruction in Japan, where savage typhoon Louise had killed at least 21 persons, injured 115 more, and left 11 missing. Five ships were sunk, four others were grounded, and damage in the battered southern Japanese area was estimated in many millions of dollars.

In this country cool air moved behind a squall line from Okahoma to the Ohio River Valley. Tornado alerts were posted for a while in the Midwest and more than 1.30 inches of rain soaked Fort Smith, Ark., Paducah, Ky., and Huntington W.Va.

At Chicago the Weather Bureau warned late Thursday that a huge swell known as a "seiche" was rolling through Lake Michigan towards the Windy City lakefront. Policemen patrolled the shore with loudspeaker cars warning fishermen to get back, and work was called off or delayed at some lakefront plants.

The seiche had dwindled to a three-foot swell before it reached the shore, however. Another seiche, which hit the Chicago shoreline in 1954, killed seven persons.

Wave Of Fatal Indiana Traffic Accidents In Less Than Two Days Claims At Least 15

Henry C. Hollingsworth 55, Ridgely, Tenn., and his son, J.S. 35 were killed in a highway wreck near Gosport during a rainstorm Thursday.

Elkhart's second traffic death in four days after a 19-month record of no fatalities killed Mrs Martha Porter 83, Thursday.

Britain Issues Veiled Warning To Soviet Russia

Not To Meddle In Troubled Middle Eastern Situation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)— Britain issued a veiled warning to Russia today not to meddle in the troubled Middle Eastern situation.

British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan, in an address to the United Nations General Assembly, made no direct reference to the decision of Russia and Czechoslovakia to supply arms to Egypt, but he said:

"A heavy responsibility will lie on any country which introduces any new and disturbing factor into this delicate situation."

MacMillan's words served to reinforce the joint Anglo-American announcement, now also subscribed to by France, that the major powers would not encourage an arms race in the strife-torn Palestine situation.

MacMillan avoided mention of the Algerian problem, which the General Assembly will debate after today under a French threat to withdraw from membership in the word organization if it is put on the agenda for a full airing.

On the question of Cyprus, which had threatened a dangerous split in Western amity until the Steering Committee voted to exclude it from assembly debate, MacMillan said:

"It . . . is no more dangerous and difficult than many questions which have been settled.

"We shall press forward, calmly but firmly, with constitutional development in Cyprus, and although some responsibility lies, of course, upon the British government we shall continue our search for common ground with our friends and Allies, Greece and Turkey."

Unimpeachably authorative sources said French Premier Edgar Faure had told Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay, here for the assembly debate, that he would seek parliamentary approval for France's withdrawal if the assembly votes to debate the issue raised by Algerian demands for self-government.

In Paris, a French Foreign Office spokesman confirmed that Pinay and Faure had been in constant contact by telephone and telegraph.

Informed sources said French authorities feared a U.N. debate might spark renewed rebel violence in Algeria, where thousands already have died.

Despite the French threat, U.N. observers said the powerful Arab-Asian bloc, after an extended floor campaign in the General Assembly, had picked up enough votes to mount a strong threat to force an Algerian debate.

The Arab-Asian nations sought to overturn a decision by the Assembly's 15-nation steering committee which voted 8-5 with two abstentions to exclude the Algerian question from the agenda.

Peron Writes Love Letter To 16-Year-Old Girl

Letter Tears Away Veil From Life Of Former Dictator

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—An intercepted love letter from ex-President Juan D. Peron to a 16-year-old bobby soxer today tore away the last veil concealing the former dictator's fantastic life of luxury and licentiousness.

The letter was written by the 60-year-old Peron aboard the storm-tossed Paraguayan gunboat where he has waited for 11 days to go into voluntary exile. It was addressed to 16-year-old Nelida (Nelly) Rivas, the daughter of a night-watchman and a frequent over-night visitor to Peron's mansion in Olivos.

Government sources said Peron pressed the letter into the hands of a Paraguayan gunboat sailor but the sailor delivered it to the Paraguayan Embassy instead of the dark-haired beauty. It was turned over to the new provisional government.

"You are all that I have left now that the workers have deserted me," officials quoted the letter.

Nelly was picked up by police for questioning. They wanted to know how she had acquired thousands of dollars worth of jewels, Paris gowns, rare perfumes and sparkling trinkets of the sort Peron once lavished on his late wife, Eva.

Though Nelly had a fortune, it was a pittance compared with the possessions Peron left behind in his flight—20 million dollars in cash, hoards of gold and jewels in his

Notre Dame Speaker Is Engineer For Mackinac Bridge

D. B. Steinman, consulting engineer and bridge designer, will address a joint meeting of the student chapter and the Indiana Section ASCE at the University of Notre Dame, on October 5th. The subject of Dr. Steinman's talk will be: "The Mackinac Bridge — Conquering The Impossible."

The thought of connecting the upper and lower Michigan peninsulas by a physical link across the Straits of Mackinac has challenged the imagination of engineers and the public for three-quarters of a century. People said that the project was impossible; that the cost would be prohibitive; that the problems of providing foundations in the wide glacial gorge could not be solved; that the piers could not resist the pressure of ice from the Great Lakes; and that the bridge could not withstand the winter storms at the site. Despite all obstacles, both natural and man-made, construction of the $100,000,000 Mackinac Bridge is successfully under way.

The total length of the Machinac Bridge is over 5 miles. With a length of 8,614 feet between anchorages, the main structure in the crossing will be the longest suspension bridge in the world. The main piers will plum the depth of the straits to bedrock, 205 and 210 feet below water, and the main towers will rise 552 feet above lake level. World records have already been established in the speed and the volume of the under-water construction operations.

The new four-lane traffic artery will make it possible for motorists to cross the Straits of Mackinac in ten minutes, saving hours required by the existing ferry. It is estimated that the traffic tolls will pay for the bridge in 18 years—at which time it will be made toll free.

4 Major Issues Slated For Public Forum October 9

Farm Problems, Finance, Foreign Affairs And Highways Are Topics

Four main subjects are planned for major discussion at a public forum with Rep. E. Ross Adair, congressman Fourth Indiana District, attending October 9 at the city hall.

The forum, which is scheduled to get underway at 2 p.m., is being sponsored by the Public Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Foster Riddick, chairman.

Because of the time limit, the four important topics were agreed upon by Rep. Adair and members of the committee when the former made an official visit to the county courthouse Tuesday.

The four topics are Farm Problems, including price supports, Foreign Affairs, Finances and Highways. Congressman Adair is scheduled to give a short talk on each of the items, all of which will be major issues in the next session of Congress, at the beginning of the forum. The discussion will then be open for questions from the floor on those topics and any other subjects.

Discussion of the agriculture question by Adair is expected to include remarks on the Administration's flexible price support program. In a statement made during his visit here Tuesday, Rep. Adair said he believed that flexible farm price supports "should be given a chance", since they have been in operation for only a year.

The Fourth District Congressman said that he was amazed by how well informed some farmers in the area are and at some of the solutions suggested for the farm price problem. He said that one farmer suggested placing on industrial wages as means of combating low prices for farm commodities.

The finance topic will include the possibility of a balanced budget and taxes in the next fiscal year. The discussion of foreign affairs will include "the new attitude" of Russia in world affairs while the highway topic will bring up a discussion of Federal highway legislation and aid and toll roads.

Since the forum will be open to the general public, interested persons will be free to ask questions on any subject.

Chamber Secretary Attending State Meet This Weekend

Woodfin L. Jones, executive secretary of the Columbia City Chamber of Commerce, is attending a session of Board of Directors of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce Friday noon through Sunday afternoon at French Lick.

The meeting, which is held for discussion of legislative problems pertinent to Chambers of Commerce, will begin with a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Friday. Governor George N. Craig is scheduled to address the meeting at 2:30 p.m. Friday on "The Heller Report." This report concerns a survey of the operations of the Indiana State Highway Commission by Robert Heller and Associates, Cleveland, Ohio. The report includes recommendations for more efficient operation of the commission and for savings in expenditures.

Although the session has been announced as a Board of Directors' meeting, executive secretaries of Chambers of Commerce throughout the State have been invited to attend.

Other topics for discussion at the Chamber gathering are "Onions in Politics", the "Guaranteed Annual Wage", "Assessment of Personal Property In Indiana," with a view to establishing an uniform assessment, and the "WOC," a national communications program, with Hugh A. Barnhart, president of Rochester Telephone company, as speaker. Barnhart was a participant in the administration's program of bringing businessmen to Washington to serve as administrators in various fields of work for short periods of time.

The final main topic at the meeting will be Education in Indiana.

Vice President Gavels Cabinet Into Session

To Discuss Variety Of Problems

By CHARLES CORDDRY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon gavelled the cabinet into session today to discuss a variety of administration problems topped by the dying prospect of balancing the budget by next June 30.

It was the second day in a row that Nixon had sat in for President Eisenhower at a top level administration conference. He presided Thursday over a national Security Council meeting which he indicated was concerned with the budget and early preparations for Mr. Eisenhower's State of the Union message in January.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson dealt what looked like the coup de grace to budget balancers Thursday when he uncorked an estimate that military spending will run a half billion dollars higher this year than expected.

The Treasury hoped it coud run as much as one-billion dollars lower. Wilson said, "We don't see how we can do it."

The cabinet was expected to decide today whether to hold weekly meetings during President Eisenhower's period of recovery from his heart attack. The Security Council already has decided to convene weekly, but Nixon made plain Thursday that any basic policy decisions "will be made in the future by the President."

It was the third time Nixon had presided over a cabinet meeting and the first meeting of the cabinet since Mr. Eisenhower's illness. To be on hand for any such duties Nixon plans to remain in Washington until Mr. Eisenhower is able to return to his White House office.

Besides the gloomy budget picture, the cabinet presumably was concerned with the troubled farm situation, worry over Egypt's intention over buying heavy arms from Communist countries, and the foreign minister's meeting in Geneva next month.

Dodgers, Picking Runs By Twos, Beat Yanks 8-3

Campanella And Mantle Hit Homers

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

BROOKLYN (UP) — Manager Casey Stengel, his Yankees riding high with two straight victories, made a last minute lineup change today and sent Mickey Mantle to centerfield for the third game of the World Series against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Mantle has been out since Sept. 18 when he pulled a thigh muscle and saw only pinch-hitting as the Yankees drove to the American League pennant.

Stengel watched Mantle work out two hours before the game and said he would not play. But a half hour before game time he changed his mind.

He had announced that Bob Cerv would play centerfield, but with Hank Bauer out with a pulled muscle, he wanted desperately to get Mantle in the lineup if at all possibe.

Stengel watched Mickey run and when the batting star said he "felt

Warning Issued Against Danger Of Burning Leaves

Lee Gross, chief of police, and Herb Kneller, superintendent of the city street department, issued a joint warning today on the danger of burning leaves on city streets.

The warning concerned the burning of leaves on asphalt streets, which because of their tar and petroleum content, are seriously damaged by excessive heat, however, it cited the fact that careless fires on any street are dangerous. The statement explained that a fire on any type of street should not be left unattended after 6 p.m.

Where there is a strong wind, a fire in a public place may spread its sparks to surrounding buildings or debris and cause a major fire, the officials warned.

They explained that leaves piled along a street curb or in an areaway will be trucked away, if the street department is contacted.

Parents were also advised to keep their children from playing in piles of leaves in a street or alley, since the youngsters may not be seen by the driver of an automobile. Reports have been received by the police department of children who were killed or hurt while playing in leaf piles and being run over by cars.

President Has Excellent Night, Sleeps Without His Oxygen Tent

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower's doctors said today that he had an "excellent night"—the first use of that term—and slept without his oxygen tent for the first time since he was hospitalized.

In their 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST) bulletin the physicians said Mr. Eisenhower's "progress continues to be satisfactory without complication."

The use of the word "excellent" was observed as significant because in the past the doctors have not gone beyond such cautious terms as "comfortable" and "satisfactory."

The bulletin from Fitzsimons Army Hospital said the chief executive slept almost continuously from 9 p.m. until 6:30 a.m. as he continued his slow but steady recovery from the heart attack which felled him last Saturday.

Meanwhile, one of the President's specialists, Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston, said in New York that every day without complications in the President's illness counts in his favor, and that within a month doctors will be able to estimate how active the chief executive can expect to be in the future.

Few Moments of Work

White, one of the world's leading medical authorities on the heart, also said that if he were in the President's position, "I think I wouldn't want to run again, from what I have seen of the strain." White made his observations during a television interview.

In their 7 a.m. MST medical bulletin the doctors at Fitzsimons said:

"The President had an excellent night. The oxygen tent was not used. The President slept almost continuously from 9 p.m. until 6:30 a.m. His progress continues to be satisfactory without complication."

The President was to remain in his hospital bed throughout the day but he will become a working President for a few moments and scrawl "D.E." on two documents that he must sign.

The fact that his physicians consider him in good enough shape to do this, though the documents won't raise his blood pressure and signing them won't exert him more than scratching his nose was more encouraging news than ever.

Everyone at the temporary White House was cheered but his physicians pointed out that his condition could become bad again and that no matter how encourag-

Newspaper People Are Human, They Make Errors, Too

By ROBERT U. BROWN
Editor & Publisher Magazine

Aviators during World War II had "gremlins" that caused all sorts of trouble mechanically, and sometimes did some good to high-flying planes.

Operators of machines of all kinds, particularly automobiles, have noticed that certain types of "bugs" develop in the mechanisms.

Sometimes plumbers complain of getting a left-handed monkey wrench by accident. Some ball players act as if they don't know the difference between a left handed and right-handed bat.

Newspapermen and printers are no exception to the rule.

For centuries they have been bothered by those pesky little things called "type lice" that move or drop out letters in a work and generally change the meaning of what the man intended to say.

You will know what we mean if you have ever read a story that said: "Mrs. Brown was the featured sinner at the church dinner." Of course, it should have been "singer" but those type lice did it again.

In the trade we call them "typos," for short.

For example, when the little devil made one word out of two and said: "Mrs. Robinson will direct the choir. Mrs. Brown will beat the piano."

Another time a West Coast headline declared: "Strange Tail of Missing Pair Solved."

And an ad, for which someone had paid good money, said: "Modern Hotel, Reasonable Rats."

Sometimes, newspapermen themselves give lice considerable help in their nefarious business by writing things that can be read two ways. Such as the man who wrote this headline: "Groveland man is high in egg laying contest." Or the one who wrote: "Christmas sale of Methodist women to be held Tuesday."

The man who wrote "St. Paul women are best sewers" meant well and was reasonably accurate but he had to leave town in a hurry.

And there was a mob scene downtown in a Middle Western city when the local populace read: "Girls are wearing nothing but cotton stockings for the duration."

Classified advertising is a great field for this type of boner in newspapers. For some reason, someone always has a "room for rent to unmarried girl with hot and cold running water."

One of the rarities was: "For sale, man's large desk, secretary with drawers."

This one provided an air o mystery: "Girl who persuaded boy to take brindle bull is known. Answers to name of Buster and is black with white chest."

This had an air of futility, but left no doubt as to what he meant: "For sale — Baker's business; good trade, large oven; present owner has been in it for seven years; good reasons for leaving."

One of the all-time classics appeared in an obituary column, of all places, and said of the deceased: "Noted for his witty remarks, he once offered this marriage advice: "First find the girl with whom you can live in perfect harmony and good will. Second, let her do as she pleases." His widow and nine daughters survive.

So you see, between those little unseen bugs that plague composing machines (those intricate gadgets that convert a reporter's copy into slugs of metal containing the words) and the adeptness of some newspapermen to say two things when they meant to say only one, there is never a dull moment in the newspaper business.

Just remember, if you should be the innocent victim of one of these slip-ups, it wasn't done on purpose.

Township Social And Educational Leaders Entertain At Rural-Urban Tea Thursday

Mrs. Edna More Colby, Indianapolis, woman's editor of The Hoosier Farmer was the guest speaker at the Whitley County Rural-Urban tea Thursday afternoon.

Hostesses for the public relations tea, attended by 125 guests, at the 4-H Community Center were the county and township social and educational leaders: Mrs. Talmadge Leedy, county leader; Mrs. Preston Gregory, Cleveland; Mrs. LeRoy Veazey, Columbia; Mrs. Byron Miller, Etna-Troy; Mrs. Clair Henney, Jefferson; Mrs. Walter Halt, Richland; Mrs. Herbert Gross, Smith; Mrs. Carl Bridgegam, Thorncreek; Mrs. Harold Wherry, Union and Mrs. Howard Hougendobler, Washington.

Mrs. Colby spoke on the theme "Thour shalt understand one another" for understanding is the basis of getting along with people.

Mrs. Colby paid tribute to the beauty of the natural surroundings for the tea. She suggested that a better understanding of self may help in understanding others.

Communications help in understanding as printing of the Bible with moveable type, 500 years ago, opened the way for more rapid spreading of knowledge. Radio, television and improved transportation contributed to a better understanding.

Language differences hinder understanding. Mrs. Colby expressed the need for more language study in schools.

By making an effort to know another person one may overcome prejudice and have better understanding.

In commenting on high grocery prices, Mrs. Colby suggested that consumers remember that much of the food is partly prepared and processed with increased cost.

Mrs. Leedy, county social and educational leader, presided at the meeting and introduced the guests.

The welcome was given by Mrs. Gregory. Mrs. Jules Heritier gave a response for the guests.

Mrs. Clair Henney, accompanied by Mrs. Earl Hoover at the piano, sang "My Task."

The devotions were given by Mrs. Herbert Gross using Ephesians 5:20.

The Misses Shirley, Susan and Sharon Nix provided accordion music with piano accompaniment.

They played "The Yellow Rose of Texas," "Whispering" and a medley of songs.

Name cards in the shape of teapost matched the yellow covers on the program booklets.

The guests were served tea, cookies, mints and nuts from four long tables. Napkins were in a fall design and each table had an arrangement of fall flowers. Vases of asters, zinnias and snapdragon were used on the stage.

Mrs. Leedy introduced: Mrs. Homer King, county Pet and Hobby club leader; Mrs. Guy Gross, district S and E leader and county leaders Mrs. Forest Vance, Kosciusko; Mrs. O. Oesch, Elkhart.

Dickersons Home From Michigan

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Dickerson, 411 North Washington street, have returned from Mackinaw City where Mr. Dickerson sought relief from hay fever for eight weeks.

The Dickersons parked their trailer in view of the new Mackinaw bridge, the main structure in the crossing, said to be the longest suspension bridge in the world with a length of 8,614 feet between anchorages.

The towers, Mr. Dickerson states, are more than half completed. Mr. Dickerson watched the work during the day and could look out his back trailer window and see the men at work.

WCTU Holds All Day Meeting With Mrs. Harley Baker

Members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union were entertained Thursday at the home of the president, Mrs. Harley Baker on East Market street. The morning was spent in the study of evangelistic work.

Miss Chloe Mowrey, who was in charge of devotions had for her theme "Uncomfortable Blessings" which was based on the 21st Psalm. The devotional leader pointed out that everyone prays for peace, joy and happiness which is not always best for the individual. Sometimes it is the disappointments, heartaches, apparent failures of life or the uncomfortable things that bring blessings, stated Miss Mowrey, who closed with a prayer poem.

Following the lunch hour Mrs. Fred Evans presented the subject "Education" using Matthew 6:22. Battering Squall Line In Indiana Shears Off Roofs, Collapses Circus Tent, Drenches Cities With 3 Inches Of Rain, Prompts Tornado Scare

By UNITED PRESS

Cool, calm weather settled over Indiana today in the wake of a battering squall line that sheared off roofs, collapsed a circus tent at Bedford, drenched cities with up to three inches of rain and prompted a tornado warning.

Bedford and Jasper were among the hardest hit as the turbulent storm rumbled out of the West Thursday afternoon and for a time threatened to swamp the southern Lake Michigan shore with a tidal wave.

Greencastle was flooded with 3.28 inches of rain, and at least half a dozen other cities reported two inches or more. The weather bureau said all of south and central Indiana got more than an inch of rain and northern areas got half an inch to an inch.

No injuries were reporte dat Bedford where a storm described as resembling a tornado flattened the big top of the Hagen Bros. circus. Several hundred persons fled the tent shortly before a wind gust sent it crashing to the ground.

Church Badly Damaged

Trees were felled, many of them crashing into parked cars, and power lines were knocked down, cutting off light and telephone service throughout the city. Torrential rains flooded streets, blocking traffic.

Near New Albany, where rainfall measured about 2.40 inches, the roof of the St. Mary's of the Knobs Catholic Church was partly ripped off during a thunderstorm. Damage to the church was estimated at $50,000.

At Jasper, a storm darkened the city when power failed for three hours during the night. Adam Bishop, superintendent of the Jasper power plant, suffered a heart attack during the storm.

The tornado warning issued during the afternoon for west central Indiana was lifted as the storm diminished during the night on its sweep eastward. An airplane pilot reported sighting a funnel-shaped cloud south of Terre Haute, but it failed to touch the ground.

Indiana cities along Lake Michiand were alerted for a large swell known as a seiche which was sighted by airline pilots about 10 miles offshore from Michigan City. But the huge wave broke up upon hitting shallow water and disappeared.

Cooler Weather Ahead

The Lake Michigan region was battered with wind gusts up to 66 miles an hour.

Other heavy rainfall in 24 hours ending this morning included Petersburg 2.50, Bedford 2.27, Muncie 2.25, Terre Haute and Vincennes 2.23, and Noblesville 2.05.

The weather bureau said the only showers today would fall in southern Indiana, with the rest of the state cool and cloudy. Scattered thundershowers were due tonight across the middle of the state.

Highs today were due to range from 63 in the northwest to 77 in the south. Tonight's low range was set at 50 to 55 and Saturday's highs 62 to 68.

Forecasters said the next five days would bring temperatures averaging 4 to 6 degrees below normal in north and central counties, and 2 to 4 below in the extreme south. Normal highs are 70 north to 78 south, lows 47 north to 52 south.

It will be cooler Saturday and Sunday, warmer Monday and Tuesday, and cooler Wednesday, the outlook said. Precipitation was due to average a quarter inch extreme north to half an inch to an inch in the south. Showers were due about Tuesday.

President

ing the signs of recovery are, his long recuperation period will not be shortened.

The documents are promotions and salary increase lists for foreign service officers. If they aren't signed by midnight, the officers can't get the raises.

The President's doctors quit using his oxygen tent entirely Thursday and Mr. Eisenhower spent the entire day out of the tent for the first time since he entered Fitzsimons Army Hospital Saturday with a "moderate coronary thrombosis."

His physicians reported at 9 o clock MST (midnight EDT) Thursday that he "had another satisfactory day without complication" and that "for the first time it is planned to permit the President to sleep without the tent."

There were several strong signs of the president's gradual but steady recovery:

Removal of the oxygen tent, cutting down his electrocardiograms from two to one a day, the Presidents plans to initial the documents, and the scheduled arrival late today of presidential assistants Sherman Adams to take over direction of the temporary White House staff here.

The decision for Adams to come to Denver put to rest speculation that the President might delegate part of his powers to some other official during his illness.

Inking his 'D.E.' on the documents will mark the first semblance of business the President has been allowed to perform since he was stricken.

Adams, the President's top administrative deputy, was to fly here after the cabinet meeting in Washington and will remain to get the White house back in functioning shape for the day when the President can gradually resume some of his duties.

It was emphasized that Adams' arrival does not mean any shortening of the President's two-month recovery period.

The President's physicians have said repeatedly that if all goes well he should remain in the hospital for a month and spend another month in convalescence, probably at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

If the President continues to recover "without complication," his staff is expected to bring him gradually back into contact with his duties by the end of next week through such things as reading and signing some documents from time to time.

Mr. Eisenhower's appetite continued good, although he was kept on small portions and a carefully restricted diet to keep him from gaining weight.

The President awoke from another comfortable night's sleep Thursday to discard the oxygen tent for the day. He had a visit from Mrs. Eisenhower, who has a room across the hall, at breakfast time and listened to four softly-played Bach selections from a tape recorder.

For the first time, he was read to for short periods.

First Lt. Lorraine P. Knox of Webster, Mass., a pretty brunette Army nurse, read to the President.

Aged Woman Has Record Of 205 Arrests

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—An aged woman with a record of 205 arrests in the last 30 years was arrested today on arson charges for setting a fire in the lobby of one of the city's biggest hotels.

Police booked Ruth Grant, 73, and also filed intoxication charges against her.

They quoted employes of the Claypool Hotel as saying Miss Grant dumped a paper bag full of garbage on the lobby floor, poured kerosene on it from a lantern and set fire to it.

Three janitors put out the blaze before it caused much damage and none of the hotel's 425 guests was disturbed although kerosene fumes spread through part of the lobby.

Authorities said Miss Grant was a former employe of the hotel. They said she was arrested 205 times since 1926 and was convicted 54 times of drunkenness, vagrancy and narcotics charges.

Young Gunmen Who Robbed Bank Elude Road Blocks

COLBY, Wis. (UP) — Three young gunmen who robbed the Security State Bank of $40,000 and locked four persons in a vault eluded road blocks and a statewide alarm today.

The robbery Thursday was the fourth holdup of a small town Midwest bank in nine days. The methods used in the robberies are similar and the total loot comes to $77,940.

The latest robbery occurred just as Bank President Arthur R. Hemmy and three employes were preparing to close.

Three men, two of them masked by white handkerchiefs, entered the bank and pulled guns. Two of them vaulted over the counter and all four persons were ordered to kneel in a corner.

"If any of you move or look around, we'll shoot," one of the gunmen said.

Hemmy said th men looted an open vault and a cashier's box, stuffing the money into a sack. Then they ordered him and the bank employes nto the vault and locked it. The bank personnel escaped five minutes later by working an inside combination.

The bandits, whom Hemmy described as being in their late 20s, meanwhile ran from the bank and escaped in a black Cadillac convertible parked outside.

Although the four Midwest bank robberies were similar, authorities have not yet decided they might all be the work of one gang.

The first holdup, at Danforth, Ill., Sept. 20, was believed to have been led by the notorious "Queen Maggie" O'Connor alleged brains of a gang of Chicago bandits. A man and a woman resembling "Queen Maggie" held up the Farmers State Bank at pistol-point and escaped with $15,000.

On Sept. 26, two gunmen robbed the Union State Bank branch at Carmel, Ind., which is run entirely by women, of $15,940. The bandits invaded the home of the bank's cashier and kept her and two other women captive for 11 hours while waiting for the bank's time lock to open.

In the third robbery a lone gunman herded five persons into the vault of the Westport, Ind., Union Trust Co. and escaped with $7,000.

White Men Charged With Kidnaping Released On Bond

GREENWOOD, Miss. (UP)—Two white men, charged with kidnaping Emmett Till, the "wolf whistle" murder victim, were released under $10,000 bond each today.

Roy Bryant, 24, and his half brother J.W. Milam, were granted bond in an informal hearing in the office of County Judge Charles Pollard.

They were congratulated upon their release by LeFlore County Sheriff George Smith and several curious bystanders who jammed the door of Pollard's office.

An all-white jury in adjoining Tallahatchie County last Friday found them innocent of murdering the 14-year-old Negro for allegedly making indecent remarks and whistling at Bryant's attractive young wife.

TCHULA Miss. (UP) — Curtis Freeman, a 19-year-old Negro, today began a six-month term on the Holmes County Prison Farm for making obscene remarks to a white woman.

Three other Negro youths arrested were released. County Atty. Pat Barrett said Freeman "took the blame" for the offense.

He was sentenced Thursday by Justice of the Peace H.B. Jone after admitting he used "vulgar and obscene language ... in the presence of a white woman."

Gordon MacRae One Of Hottest 'New' Stars In Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—A boyish, eager singer named Gordon MacRae today is one of the hottest "new" stars in Hollywood—thanks to his own salesmanship and a non-eager singer named Frank Sinatra.

After MacRae bowed out of Warner Studio, Hollywood observers pegged him as "washed up." But MacRae told today how, by a fascinating combination of persistence and self-confidence, he promoted himself into the two biggest musicals of many years—"Oklahome!" and "Carousel."

"Why, even when Frank Sinatra got the role in 'Carousel' I never lost faith I would get the part," Mac Rae said. "I even kept my sideburns and my hair long."

MacRae is not one to sit by quietly and let people discover his talents. He won the part in "Oklahome!" by buttonholing Director Fred Zinneman and Producer Arthur Hornblow. He says, with some bewilderment, "They wasted a lot of money testing other people."

"When I was doing 'Oklahoma" I talked to Rogers and Hammerstein about doing 'Carousel' ", he went on. "I thought I'd be a cinch for the part. I always hoped I'd do the picture. But they told me Sinatra had the inside track."

MacRae nonetheless wired Darryl F. Zanuck of 20th Century Fox that the best man for "Carousel" was MacRae. Zanuck wired back that Sinatra was set.

"I never lost hope," MacRae said.

Sinatra, MacRae revealed, hinted even before the picture started he might ditch the role.

"I saw Frankie up in Las Vegas and kidded him 'why don't you lay off "Carousel" it's an Oscar-type role, and I'd like to do one, and you already did "From Here to Eternity', MacRae said.

"Frankie said, 'don't worry about it, Gordon,' "

Sinatra, as hinted, stalked off the main location of "Carousel" claiming he hadn't bargained with the picture being shot with two cameras. (Other sources say Sinatra had overloaded himself with jobs and figured 'the role wasn't right for his voice, anyway.")

Movement To Put Indianapolis On CST

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—The Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce today spearheaded a movement to switch the state's largest city back to Central Standard Time "to eliminate confusion."

Executive Vice President Will H. Book said the board of directors reversed itself and recommended returning to "slow" time Oct. 30 the day Chicago, New York and other large cities abandon Daylight Savings Time.

The chamber directors said Indianapolis would be an "island" surrounded by standard time if it remains on year-around "fast" time. They expressed the hope that City Council would reconsider its stand at its meeting Monday night.

Fort Wayne and other communities near the Ohio border will remain on Eastern time, but other cities, like South Bend, will revert to Central Standard Time Oct. 30.

Johnny Podres Is 23 Years Old Today; So Guess What He Wants For His Birthday

By OCAR FRALEY
United Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Johnny Podres is 23 years old today and all he wants—for his birthday and for Christmas—is to pitch the Brooklyn Dodgers to victory over the New York Yankees.

It's quite an order. Because those jarring Yankees rolled over Johnny's Dodgers in the first two games of the classic, and checking their momentum is going to take some doing.

But Podres is a young man who admits he "always has good luck against the Yankees.

Such good luck, as a matter of fact, that beating the Yankees two years ago in an exhibition game saved is job on the Dodger staff.

That was the year when Podres, up from Montreal, hurled such a fine game against the Yankees in spring training that the impressed managerial staff kept him around. They were just about to let him go, however, when the Mayor's Trophy game came up and they threw him in against the Bombers.

"I beat the Yankees, 9-0," he recalls. "I was pitching for my job that day and, as usual against the Yankees, I went pretty good."

There's nothing boastful about that statement by the blond fast ball, curve and control artist from Witherbee, N.Y., who dotes on pizza pies. Because he remembers another time when he didn't do too well against the Yankees.

That was in his rookie year of 1953, when he went against them in the World Series at Ebbets Field — and lasted only two and two-thirds innings. Johnny doesn't mention it, but he had terrible support in the field that day.

Most of it was my fault," He defends the Dodger fielders. "I felt like I was in the clouds that day and I never could get my feet on the ground. Now it's a little different."

Certainly Podres, despite a set of ribs which still ache from bumping into the batter's cage on Labor Day and a July vacation caused by a sore arm, now is a more experienced pitcher. In a way he has been a hard luck guy. He was rolling great in 1954 when he had an appendicitis attack. Then there were those troubles which this season held him to a 10-10 mark.

"But it's the breaks of the game," he says. "You just have to take them as they come and keep pitching."

And Johnny has done that real well despite his even-up record. His fast ball isn't much behind that of blinding Karl Spooner, while his curve and his control are considered better.

"Potentially, Podres is the best lefthander in the National League," says Cincinnati Manager Birdie Tebbetts.

Johnny will try to prove it today and give himself a two-way present.

Southern California 13-Point Favorite Over Texas Tonight

By JOE SARGIS
United Press Sports Writer

Southern California, undefeated in two starts and the nation's eighth ranked team, is a 13point favorite over oncebeaten Texas in their intersectional clash at Los Angeles tonight as college foot ball launches its second big week end midst the World Series hoopla.

The Trojans, who romped to 50-12 and 42-15 victories over Washington State and Oregon, respectively, are anxious to atone for their Rose Bowl loss to Ohio State by capturing the Pacific Coast championship. Texas, on the other hand, is trying to forget its opening game loss to Texas Tech—2014—two weeks ago.

Wichita, perhaps the strongest contender for the Missouri Valley crown, is also favored by 13points in its league meeting with Detroit tonight, while in another leading night game, Miami of Florida is a prohibitive choice over Florida State.

Saturday's program is a bit more crowded with the Maryland at Baylor game heading the list. The Terrapins, the nation's top ranked team, are favored by one touchdown, while the Bears, who like Maryland have won both starts this season are primed for an upset. Maryland just did squeeze past Missouri, 13-12, in its opener and then whipped UCLA, the 1954 champion, 7-0 last Saturday.

Tenthranked Ohio State the Rose Bowl champion and 2820 winner over Nebraska in its season opener, is the 10point pick over Stanford in the nationally televised game of the week from Palo Alto, Calif. Stanford has a 11 record.

Secondranked Michigan, with an easy win over Missouri under its belt, is a strong 13point pick gia Tech is only a sevenpoint fa over Michigan State in a Big Ten meeting, while thirdranked Georgia Tech is only a seven-point favorite over Southern Methodist in another intersectional game. Tech defeated Miami of Florida and Florida in its two games while SMU lost its only start to Notre Dame last Saturday.

Oklahoma, ranked fourth, is favored by 14 points over Pittsburgh fifthranked Notre Dame is a 20 point pick over Indiana; sixth ranked UCLA is a solid 20point choice over Washington State; seventhranked Army, one of the top teams in the East, is picked by 13 points over Penn State; and ninthranked Texas Christian, another Southwestern power, is favored by seven points over Arkansas, the defending Southwest Conference champion.

Hoosier Woman Held Captive For Three Hours

LYNN, Ind. (UP) — Farm wife Mrs. William Ramey was treated for shock today after she was held captive for three hours by two men who held a knife at her throat.

Mrs. Ramey told authorities the two young men, one of them a Negro, forced their way into her home Thursday afternoon. One of them carried a pistol and. the other a knife.

Holding the knife to her throat, the men told Mrs. Ramey they were in trouble and demanded money, food, and a car. They helped themselves to food and changed into some of her husband's clothes, Mrs. Ramey said.

After three hours, the men heard Mrs. Ramey's husband driving home. They left the house as he drove up and Ramey, quickly sizing up the situation, threw his lunch box at one of them.

Ramey then fled towards a neighboring farm house, but the men caught up with him. They forced him at gun point to hand over the keys of his car and then fled.

FLOWERY TOUCH

WISCONSIN DELLS, Wis — (UP) — D. Charles Van Wie, a businessman, attached attractive flower pots and clinging vines to the parking meters in front of his store. He said he hoped the decorations would eliminate some of the irritation that motorists feel when they have to put a nickel in a meter.

Tommy Byrne Tells How He Played In Yesterday's Game

By TOMMY BYRNE
As Told To The United Press

NEW YORK (UP)—I told a big lie to Duke Snider out there only because the truth might have hurt.

To understand what this is all about, I'd better explain that I have a little habit of talking to the opposing hitters from the mound from time to time.

I do it in our league fairly often but I didn't do it very much Thursday because I don't know those Dodger fellows so well. But I decided to try it in the eighth inning when Brooklyn had a man on first with two out and Snider was up.

The count went to 3-and-2 on Snider and I hollered down to Yogi Berra, squatting behind the plate, that I was going to come in with a fast ball. Duke heard it all right. I meant that he should.

But I didn't come in with a fast ball at all. Instead, I threw him a slider and he struck out swinging.

Like I say, I told a lie, but Snider might have hurt us if I told the truth.

To tell the truth, I got as much a kick out of my two-run single in the fourth inning as I did out of my pitching. I hit a pretty good fast ball. It was right down the pipe.

Wasn't it a beautiful day for a ball game? I sure felt fine out there on the mound. . . plenty of rest. . . a strong defense behind me. . . it was a nice day to play ball.

The slider was the pitch that helped me over the rough spots. I've been messing around with that pitch for the past two years now.

You know, I don't have a real good fast ball for nine innings. So when the Washington Senators sent me down to the minors in 1953 I knew I had to come up with another pitch. That's when I picked up the slider and started changing speeds on my curves.

Frankly, I knew I never could get back to the majors unless I did something to change my pitching style radically. So I did.

I get a kick out of all the people who ask me, "Hey, Tom, what did you do to improve your control overnight?"

Overnight? It didn't happen that fast. It took awhile and it also took plenty of hard work.

But it all paid off out there. day.

And I sure hope Duke won't be too sore at me for having crossed him up.

Holstein Bull Owned By Leland Osborn Has Preferred Pedigree

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Pine Manor Pabst Mark, a registered Holstein-Friesian bull owned by Leland J. Osborn, Pierceton, Indiana, has been rated a Preferred Pedigree Sire by The Holstein-Friesian Association of America, national organization of Holstein breeders.

This honor, based on achievements in both milk production and body conformation of parents on both sides of the bull's pedigree, is granted through the elective Registration Program. This program is designed as an additional means to breed improvement, and differs from all other honors in the fact it is based on parental achievement rather than accomplishment of the animal himself.

Requirements for the Preferred Pedigree rating are difficult to achieve as it is the highest honor awarded through the Selective Registration system. An integral part of the registration system, the rating for this bull will be indicated on his certificate of registry and on all records of the association.

Henry Ford Predicts Prosperity

MAHWAH, N.J. (UP) — Henry Ford II predicted Thursday night that the American economy is about to break through onto a "new, higher plateau" of prosperity.

He announced that the Ford Motor Co. will spend a record 50 million dollars for expansion in 1956.

Woman Identifies Killer As Slayer Of Disc-Jockey's Helper

CHICAGO (UP) Cop - killer Richard Carpenter, who was captured in Chicago's greatest manhunt in recent years last month, has been identified as the murderer of a disc-jockey's assistant, police said today.

Carpenter, 25, was picked out as he stood before a judge Thursday at a hearing on his murder of detective William J. Murphy last Aug. 15.

Mrs. Carol Houston, 20, stood within a few feet of the slayer and then told authorities she was positive she saw Carpenter kill Richard Dix, 24, on May 10, 1954.

Mrs. Houston, then Miss Carol Giddins was with Dix in his car in the early morning hours when a young gunman forced his way in. The man bound Dix, a phonograhp turn - table operator, and then ripped off the woman's clothes.

Dix, meanwhile, loosened his bonds and drew a small pocket knife. As he lunched at the attacker, the man whirled and fired five times. He fled as Dix lay dying.

Mrs. Houston said Carpenter started when he saw her in court Thursday "and when he looked at me he knew that I knew him." Carpenter denied recognizing the women.

It was reported that the Cook County grand jury voted a true bill charging Carpenter with the Dix murder a short time later.

Carpenter killed detective Murphy on a subway platform last August and, two days later, shot it out with another policeman in a movie theater. He fled to a near by home and kept a family captive for 23 hours until the husband tricked him and managed to call police.

Warden Deals With Hunger Strike

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UP) — The warden of the state prison said today 35 hunger-striking convicts would be hauled out for intravenous feeding if the lack of food endangered their health.

Two of the original 37 convicts who began the hunger strike at Monday night's dinner were hospitalized late Thursday when Warden Lawrence Delmore Jr. said he was afraid they might die of starvation.

"WWe serve three meals a day," Delmore said. "The men are free to eat at mealtime but we are not giving them special privileges."

Delmore said a prison physician was checking the health of the 35 inmates, all charged with being ring leaders in riots at the prison in July and August.

"I think a lot more of them would come over to the side of the administration but they are afraid of their crackpot leaders," Delmore said.

Peron

luxury - lined secret apartments, and a newspaper and radio empire that spread through a hoding company across Latin America into the United States and Canada.

Details of Peron's vast publishing empire came to light when authorities discovered a secret bombproof and gas-proof chamber with walls 14 inches thick where Peron was believed to have spent his last hours before fleeing to the Paraguayan gunboat.

The hideaway 23 feet below street level had its own electric generator and a powerful radiophone intended to link it with the state radio.

But the major item of interest was a schematic diagram framed and hung on the walls of the apartment showing a bust of Peron in the center beneath crossed quills and a drawing of a printing press.

The drawing showed the enterprises had 16 newspapers, 13 radio stations, two news agencies and 12 magazines controlled through holding companies here and Rio de Janeiro and with agencies throughout Latin America, the United States and Canada. The major holding company was the Haynes Editorial Enterprises.

While Peron rode out a storm in rain-lashed Buenos Aires Harbor, his future was shrouded in mystery as thick as the fogs swirling over the River Plate.

Despite assurances from both the Argentine foreign minister and the Paraguayan Embassy that negotiations were proceeding favorably, Peron was still aboard the rocking gunboat.

World Series

okay", Stengel made the lineup change.

Mantle, the American League's leading home run hitter will bat in the cleanup spot. Stengel named Cerv, a right-handed hitter, for leftfield, benching the left-handed hitting Irv Noren.

Johnny Podres, a southpaw who is celebrating his 23rd birthday today, and Bob Turley were the opposing hurlers.

The weather was threatening as the clubs held their pre-game workouts. It was cloudy and the weather forecast called for possible scattered showers during the afternoon.

Capacity of Ebbets Field is only 33,000 compared with the 70,000 capacity of Yankee Stadium.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees had to make some outfield changes because his rightfielder, Hank Bauer, still was sidelined with the thigh muscle he pulled Thursday as the Yanks beat the Brooks, 4-2.

He sent Bob Cerv to centerfield with Elston Howard in right and Irv Noren in left.

Also, with Brooklyn starting a lent-hander, he benched Joe Collins, the hero of the Yankees' 6-5 opening game win, and sent Bill Skowron a right-handed hitter, to first base instead. Collins is a left-handed hitter.

Stengel also shifted his batting order, with shortstop Phil Rizzuto leading off. Cerv batted third, Skowron fifth and Noren, a left-handed hitter, was dropped down to eighth place.

Manager Walt Alston of the Dodgers hoping to get more hitting, also made a change. He sent Sandy Amoros to leftfield, with Junior Gilliam going to second base, benching Don Zimmer, a right-handed hitter. Amoros bats left, while Gilliam is a switch hitter.

Amoros, however, will take Zimmer's spot in the batting order—eighth.

Two right-handers, Carl Erskine and Don Larsen, were named to pitch Saturday's fourth game. Erskine, who has had arm trouble since mid-season, won 11 games and lost 8 for the Dodgers this season. He is the only Dodger pitcher with a winning series record, having won two games while losing one. Larsen won nine games and lost two for the Yankees.

The play-by-play:

Yankees First

With a two strike count, Cerv grounded out, Podres to Hodges.

McDougald flied to Snider.

Berra lined to Furillo.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Dodgers First

Gilliam flied deep to Mantle.

Reese walked on four pitches.

Snider struck out.

Campanella hit a home run into the left centerfield stands scoring Reese ahead of him and making it 2-0 in favor of Brookyn.

It was Campanella's first hit of the series. Mantle made a good running catch of Furillo's liner to right center.

Two runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Yankees Second

Mantle hit a home run into the extreme centerfield lower grandstand about 400 feet from the plate.

Skowron doubled down the leftfield foul line.

Bessent, a right-hander, began warming up for Brooklyn.

Robinson threw out Howard.

Martin struck out on a slow curve.

Rizzut singled to left and Amoros threw to the plate in plenty of time to get Skowron but he knocked the ball out of Campanella's mitt for an error and Rizzuto moved to third when the ball bounced into the Dodger dugout.

It was Campanella's first error in four different years of World Series play.

Robinson leaped high for Turley's bouncer and threw him out.

Two runs, three hits, one error, one left.

Dodgers Second

All three Yankee outfielders changed positions, Mantle going to rightfield, Howard to left and Cerv to center, giving Mantle less ground to cover with his injured thigh.

Hodges flied deep to Cerv in right center.

Robinson singled sharply to center.

Amoros was hit in the thigh by a pitched ball. He limped badly and Dodger trainer Dr. Harold Wendler came out to give him a rub down. He stayed in the game and went to first.

Podres hit a slugged bunt which Turley grabbed but couldn't hold and the Dodger pitcher beat it out for a hit to load the bases.

Tom Morgan, a right-hander, began warming up for New York.

Gilliam walked on five pitches forcing home Robinson and making it 3-2 for Brooklyn.

Manager Stengel went out to talk to Turley.

Morgan was summoned to replace Turley on the mound.

Reese walked on four pitches, forcing home Gilliam.

Kucks, a rookie right hander, started warming up in the Yankee bullpen.

Snider forced Podres at the plate, Skowron to Berra.

Campanella lined to Martin.

Two runs, two hits, no errors, three left.

Yankees Third

Cerv struck out.

Gilliam crossed over near second base to take McDougald's grounder and throw him out.

Berra fouled to Hodges near the first base coaching box.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Dodgers Third

Furillo doubled deep into the leftfield corner.

Hodges grounded out, McDougald to Skowron, Furillo holding second.

Robinson popped to Martin.

Amoros was given an intentional base on balls.

Podres struck out on a two and two count.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

Yankees Fourth

Robinson threw out Mantle.

Skowron struck out on a change up slow pitch.

Howard was called out on strikes as Podres blazed a fast one past him.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Dodgers Fourth

Martin held up the game while he went into the dugout to get a different glove.

Gilliam singled to left.

Reese flied to Cerv, Gilliam hoding first.

Snider walked on five pitches.

Campanella hit the first pitch for a single to left scoring Gilliam and sending Snider to third, making it 5-2 for Brooklyn.

Kucks went to work again in the Yankee bullpen.

Howard went over near the fence in foul territory to take Furillo's fly. Snider scoring after the catch to make it 6-2. It was not a sacrifice fly but Furillo was credited with a run batted in.

Hodges grounded out, Rizzuto to Skowron.

Two runs, two hits, no errors, one left.

Yankees Fifth

Robinson made a great back hand stop of Martin's sharp bouncer near the third base bag and threw him out.

Rizzuto walked on five pitches.

Podres had retired eight men in a row before walking little Phil.

Bessent again started to warm up for Brooklyn.

Bauer batted for Morgan and flied to Amoros.

Cerv struck out for the second time in a row.

Dodgers Fifth

Kucks went in to pitch for the Yankees. It was his first series game.

McDougald took Robinson's slow grounder and his throw to Skowron beat Jackie by a step.

Amoros walked.

Podres sacrificed Skowron to Martin who covered first, Amoros taking second.

Gilliam flied to Howard.

Yankees Sixth

McDougald singled to center.

Labine, the Dodger late inning relief specialist, started to warm up.

Berra also singled to center and McDougald stopped at second.

Mantle hit into a double play, Reese to Gilliam to Hodges, McDouglad moving to third.

Reese tossed out Skowron and the fans let go with the biggest cheer of the day as Podres weathered the storm.

No runs, two hits, no errors, one left.

Dodgers Sixth

Reese flied to Cerv.

Snider bounced a ground single to left.

Howard made a long run to get Campanello's high fly near the foul line in short left.

McDougald threw out Furillo.

Yankees Seventh

The paid attendance was 34,209.

Howard flied to Amoros near the leftfield wall.

Martin grounded out, Robinson to Hodges.

Sturdivant, a right-hander, began to warm up for the Yankees.

Rizuto, with a three and two count, walked for the second time in a row.

Carey, a right-hander, batted fo Kucks and tripled into the leftfield corner, Amoros leaping and grabbing the ball but failing to hold it as Rizzuto scored to make the count 6-3 in favor of Brooklyn.

Cerv struck out for the third time in a row on four pitches.

One run, one hit, no errors, one left.

Dodgers' Seventh

Rookie right-hander Sturdivant was the new Yankee pitcher.

Howard made a leaping catch of Hodges' long line drive near the leftfield fence.

Robinson doubled into the leftfield corner and went on to third when he tricked Howard into throwing the ball to second with a long turn at that bag.

Amoros singled to right past Skowron to score Robinson as the Yankee infield was drawn in for a possible play at the plate.

Podres, attempting to sacrifice, bunted too sharply and Amoros was forced at second, Sturdivant to Rizzuto.

Reese singled to center, scoring Podres and sending Gilliam to third.

Snider lined to Howard.

Two runs, three hits, no errors, two left.

Yankees Eight

Robinson threw out McDougald.

Gilliam threw out Berra.

The Dodgers kept Labine warming up in the bullpen.

Robinson also threw out Mantle.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Dodgers Eighth

Campanella doubled to the leftfield corner for his third hit.

Ike Makes Start Toward Picking Up As Chief Executive Again

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower is making a start toward picking up an active role as Chief Executive again, but his doctors are dictating what he can do, when he can do and how much he can do and there is no talking back.

He signed two routine documents, promoting 117 foreign service officers, on his sickbed in Fitzsimons Army Hospital Friday night. Normally, only the 117 diplomats and their families would have been interested.

But because it was the first acte work the President has donesin tive work the President has done since he suffered a heart attack last Saturday it was an event of almost international significance.

Sherman Adams, the President's No. 1 assistant, arrived from Washington just before the decuments were signed, and was in the President's suite. But the President was being prepared for his night's rest, his second outside his oxygen tent.

For that reason, the doctors told Adams not to come in and Maj. President's physician, took the documents in.

This showed that the doctors, rather than the top laymen in the government were calling the shots and if any doubt remained, presidential Press Secretary James Hagerty dispelled it when he said: "I would like to insist that the doctors are in charge of the case and Adams and myself at all times will ask the doctors for their

Ruling In Landy Case Leaves Navy Policy Unaltered

Says Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas

WASHINGTON (UP)—Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas said today his decision clearing merchant seaman Eugene W. Landy of "guilt-by-kinship" charges leaves Navy security policy unaltered.

He said the Landy case "doesn't change security regulations at all." Thomas defended current Navy and Defense Department security policies as being "perfectly sound."

But a demand for one change in policy came from Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ). He said the Landy case points up the need for the Defense Department to inform all applicants for commissions when security allegations are made against them and to give them a chance to reply. He said this was done in the Landy case and "proper procedure in one case should apply equally to other cases."

Landy, 21-year-old honor graduate of the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., was denied a naval reserve commission the day before he was graduated last Aug. 5. The reason, he said, was that his widowed mother, Mrs. Deborah Landy, Bradley Beach N.J., once was a Communist.

The case stirred up a national furor which soon reached Thomas.

Thomas reversed three Navy boards Friday and ordered the ensign's commission awarded to Landy. He ruled that Landy's association with his mother was "the natural relationship of a mother and son and not a sympathetic association with her political beliefs."

Hurricane Janet Breaks Against Sierra Madres

Death Toll Rises Past 500 Mark

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Hurricane Janet broke up harmlessly today against the towering Sierra Madre mountain range but the death toll from her savage sweep across the Caribbean islands and Mexico rose past the 500 mark.

Mexican authorities said the murderous storm took at least 303 lives in its sweep across the narrow southern section of Mexico. The hurricane's winds of up to 150 miles an hour earlier had killed at least 206 persons in islands lying in her path across the Caribbean.

Worst hit city in Mexico was Chetumal, near the British Honduras border. Authorities said they recovered 30 more bodies from the wreckage Friday, bringing the city's death toll to at least 200. Rescue workers feared "many more" bodies would be found as the wreckage is cleaned up.

The village of Ycalak, about 40 miles east of Chetumal, reported that 97 persons died in the carnage. The dead, mostly children, comprised more than a third of the village's population.

The storm was the third hurricane to hit Mexico this month. The death toll from the three — Gladys, Hilda and Janet — neared the 600 mark today.

Navy Commissions Super-Aircraft Carrier Forrestal, Mightiest Man-Of War Ever Built

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UP)—The Navy today commissions the super-aircraft carrier Forrestal, mightiest man-of-war ever built. But plans for even bigger and better ships already are under consideration.

Highest naval and other defense officials flock to this seaport to see the . $197,859,000 Forrestal, largest warship afloat and center of continuing controversy, take its place as the queen ship of American battle fleets.

Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas Assistant Secretary for Air James H. Smith Jr. and Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations, brought prepared speeches outlining the atomic-age role of floating air bases and heralding the 60,000-ton Forrestal as the start of a new naval era.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who once imperilled his career by battling for super carriers, was on deck to wish the new ship and its 3,500-man crew smooth sailing and fair winds. It will be on shake down cruises the rest of this year and then join fleet units.

Six 600-mile-an-hour Cougar jet fighters and three Skywarrior jet bombers were to fly nonstop from the West Coast and join a parade over the carrier of many other of the Navy's newest planes. One of these was the new 600-mph Seamaster flying bout, the first four-jet seaplane.

The Forrestal, with a four-acre flight deck 1,036 feet long, is the first of a new line of warships able to steam at 40 miles an hour and launch atomic bombers and jet fighters against targets 1,000 miles away. Two sister ships, Saratoga and Ranger, are building and the Independence and Kitty Hawk are authorized.

Sultan Quits Throne, Ending Two-Year Crisis

In Morocco Which Has Cost Thousands Of Lives

RABAT, Morocco (UP) — Sultan Sidi Mohammed ben Moulay Arafa stepped down from the throne today, opening the way to an end to the two year crisis in Morocco which had cost thousands of lives.

Officials announced that Arafa left this North African protectorate aboard a French military plane just after dawn today.

His departure was the first phase of the plan by Premier Edgar Faure to end the crisis in Morocco which has bedeviled numerous French governments.

The Sultan's departure came with dramatic suddenness.

Heavily-armed police cordoned off the Imperial Palace while a 10-car motorcade hastily assembled in the big imperial courtyard.

Arafa was accompanied by about 25 members of his personal household.

The motorcade sped through the early morning hours to Sale, about five miles north of Rabat, where Arafa and his entourage boarded the plane waiting to take him into exile.

There was no indication yet where Arafa would be taken. However, it was believed that his destination was the international zone of Tangier where a palace reportedly had been prepared for him.

Arafa was the second sultan of Morocco to be deposed by France in the past two years. The French deposed and exiled his predecessor, Sidi Mohammed ben Youssef, in August, 1953 because he was pro-Nationalist.

Youssef's ouster touched off the bloody rioting that plagued the protectorate and culminated in Nationalist demands for independence.

State Traffic Death Toll Climbs To 24

For Short Period Of Less Than 72 Hours

By UNITED PRESS

The death toll from one of the year's worst waves of accidents on Indiana highways climbed to 24 today for a short period of less than 72 hours.

The toll was racked up since Wednesday aftrenoon in a bloody climax to a reckless September and a bad start on a good safety record for Octber, a month labeled by state police as the "most dangerous" of the year.

Seven new deaths were added since 6 p.m. Friday to lead off the week-end toll. Five of these occurred in the first two hours of the new month.

While the Hoosier toll skyrocketed, traffic accidents also were pointed up by the death Friday night in a clash of twisted metal in California of James Dean, the talented young actor who was born and raised in Grant County, Ind.

Indiana's latest victims were:

William Yount, 64, Richmond, struck by an automobile while crossing a street near his home Friday night.

David V. Spears, 23, Albany, killed when his car went out of control in Ind. 67 near Muncie early today.

Clinton E. Bechtol, 23, Montpelier, Ohio, killed late Friday night on U.S. 6 near Butler. His big truck hit a power line pole and he was electrocuted as he stepped out to investigate.

Bernard L. Rhoades 19, Mooresville, was killed early today and Richard Remster, 17, Camby died hours later when an automobile struck a tree in Monrovia. Four other youths were injured, some critically.

Donald R. Rhoads, 23, Washington, killed on a Knox County road early today when a car in which he rode missed a curve and hit a tree.

Gerald F. Gross, 18, Fort Wayne, killed early today near Fort Wayne when his car missed a curve and hit a tree.

In addition to the new deaths, a third fatality was chalked up in a crash in a rainstorm near Gosport Thursday when James C. King, Jr., 42, Union City, Tenn. died in a Martinsville hospital. Two other Tennesseans died outright in the crash.

Rescue Teams Try To Reach Trapped Miner

1,300 Feet Underground For More Than 24 Hours

ELY, Minn. (UP) — Rescue teams blasted through the mud and rock of an iron ore mine today, trying desperately to reach a miner trapped 1,300 feet underground for more than 24 hours after a cave-in.

It was feared that the miner, Joe Glinsek 43, might be dead.

Two other miners, rescued late Friday night after being trapped for nearly 21 hours, said they thought Glinsek was buried.

They said they lost contact with him shortly after the cave-in at the Pioneer Mine early Friday.

The rescued men, Albert F. Marolt, 41, and Toyvo Hill, 55 local chairman of the Democratic - Farmer - Labor Party were brught to the surface uninjured, but haggard and hungry.

They had been contacted soon after the cave-in by volunteers who forced a lead pipe three inches in diameter through the mud, ore, rock and debris, and kept in touch throughout the rescue operation.

Marolt and Hill said through the pipe that they were unhurt and in "good spirits" but asked, "give us air." Rescue teams of four and five men pumped oxygen to them with a compression pump.

But as the rescuers grew nearer to the two minors, the working space grew so narrow that only one man at a time could work. Finally, the rescuers broke through the opening of the 40-foot tunnel in which the two men were trapped.

Wives and children of the trapped men waited at the mouth of the mine shaft from before dawn Friday until mid- morning when mine officials persuaded them to go home and keep in touch by telephone.

When the miners were brought to the surface, they were examined by a physician and hurried to their families for their first food in 21 hours.

Mine officials said they weren't sure what happened, but theorized that timber braces may have collapsed, with the mud and rock ceiling of the room falling on the men.

The cave-in occurred in a room off the mine shaft between the 14th and 15th levels of the mine on Ely's north side. The mine is owned by Oliver Mining Co., a division of U.S. Steel Co.

Texts Of Peron's Letters Released By Government

Displays Intended Teen-Age Harem

BUENOS AIRES (UP) — Argentine authorities pictured Juan D. Peron today as a lecherous old man whose task of converting an eight-story apartment house into a mirror-bedroomed harem of teen-age girls was interrupted by revolt against him.

The government also released the texts of loveletters from the deposed 60-year-old president to his "dear baby girl," 16-year-old Nelly Rivas who inherited much of the late Eva Peron's furs, jewelry, Paris gowns and perfume. One letter closed with "many kisses and many desires." Another was signed "Pappy."

The provincial government of La Plata (renamed Eva Peron by the ex-president) began an investigation of reports Peron had been married there to 19-year-old Isabel del Solar Guillen but still peaded with Ney to join him in Paraguay, bringing his litte dogs and eight motorcyces.

The revolutionary government made the disclosures as part of a coordinated compaign to discredit Peron in the eyes of the masses and destroy the popular myth of Peron as "Argentina's No. 1 worker." Shocking new revelations were promised by the government.

An authoritative government source said Peron's position will be publicly defined soon, perhaps today. He has been granted asylum aboard a Paraguayan gunboat in the harbor, but the government thus far has not given him safe conduct out of the country.

The source said he believed the pencil-scrawled love letters written by Peron aboard the gunboat did not constitute a violation of the right t asylum. It was through the letters that police tracked down Nelly, the daughter of a night watchman.

Nelly, a cuddly brunette with a poodle haircut, protested to authorities that "I'm not the only one" who received Peron's favors after parties at the presidential residential residence and said "girls at the N.E.S. used to fight" to go to them.

The U.E.S. is an association of high school students.

Police were still questioning Nelly about her cash, jewels and dresses valued at thousands of dollars when she dsiclosed that Peron also gave motor-scoter parties in his garden and that "all the girls wanted to go."

Servants confirmed that Nelly was the girl "who used to come in the evening and leave in the morning" but government sources said she also frequented his luxurious apartment in town where music plays in the marbled bathrooms and the closets are stuffed with silken lingerie of the late Eva Peron.

GOP Cheers New Increase In Farm Prices

Calls For End To Pessimistic Talk

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republicans today cheered a new increase in farm prices — the first since April — and called for an end to "pessimistic" talk about agriculture.

Democrats have been hammering at the farm price decline as a major issue for the 1956 presidential campaign.

House GOP Whip Leslie Ci Arends of Illinois said the 1 per cent monthly price rise reported Friday by the Agriculture Department is heartening. He said that "while there is a farm problem, there has been more political noise than realistic thinking about it.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt), ranking Republican on the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he was "fed up" with "pessimistic" talk about American agriculture.

He said prospects for the future are "brighter than they ever have been" for the nation's "commercial farmers."

The Agriculture Department said the 1 per cent price increase occurred during the month which ended Sept. 15. The rise was due chiefly to higher prices received for eggs, milk, cotton and commercial vegetables, but it still left the farm price index 4 per cent below September of last year.

While prices received by farmers increased, costs paid by farmers for living and production items also declined, raising the average of all farm prices to 85 per cent of parity.

Parity is a price calculated to give farmers a fair price for their products in relation to the price of things they must buy. In mid-August prices averaged 84 per cent of parity. In mid-September last year, they averaged 88 per cent of parity.

An Agriculture Department spokesman said the monthly gain was "not unexpected." He said recent improved grain prices and other factors should tend toward "general stability in farm prices the rest of the year.

Pinay Leaves As UN Takes Up Algerian Issue

Recalls Soviet Boycott In 1950

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) — France's threat to withdraw today confronted the United Nations with its most serious membership crisis since Soviet Russia's seven-month boycott in 1950.

French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay stalked from the General Assembly at the head of his delegation Friday night after the organization voted to give a full airing to French problems in Algeria. The Algerian issue was placed on the agenda for debate by the margin of but one vote.

The United States and Britain joined France in opposing the debate. Russia and the Communist bloc lined up with those in favor of the debate.

Pinay said that France must now decide whether it would withdraw from membership in the United Nations in view of what it regards as flagrant interference in domestic matters.

"Twice I have warned the assembly after the vote. "The government must now deliberate this decision."

He also declared that France "will consider null and void" any action the assembly might take on the crisis in the North African territory.

The vote was a triumph for the powerful Arab-Asian-African bloc which made an abortive attempt to get the Algerian issue on the assembly agenda last year.

Newspaper Week

By ROYCE HOWES
Associate Editor, Detroit Free Press, Winner 1955 Pulitzer Prize for Editorial Writing

October 1 through 8 has been set aside as National Newspaper Week.

It's purpose is to focus your attention on an institution in whose operation you have a vastly greater hand than perhaps you've ever realized. It is also appropriate time to call your attention to an effort to deprive you of that hand.

The institution is your newspaper — daily, weekly or whatever.

Let's begin by dismantling that term newspaper. It means paper, which, after due processing, comes to you covered with news. Paper is a selfevident, tangible thing. There is no disagreement as to what it is. But what of news? It is far less self-evident and deceptively intangible.

News, in fact, is all things to all men, What it is depends on who is defining it.

And it is your definition, not the editor's, which matters. The paper stays in business if it does a competent job of fulfilling your definition of news. If it devotes itself just to the editor's conception of news, it soon fails.

All readers won't agree that some particular item is news, naturally, but the editor must meet each reader's definition often enough so that every reader will feel th's getting his money's worth when he buys the paper.

That is where and how you have such a very big hand in determining what goes into it.

Now as to the effort to take this function away from you. It lies in a growing effort by people, who are neither editors nor representatives of the readers, to decide arbitrarily which facts shall be printed — without reference to what any individual might consider news.

These people are the censor-minded. They appear in government and in pressure groups. They include those who try to conduct government behind closed doors and in secret places. They are all those who would take away free access to information which the citizen, with his individual right to say what is news, is entitled to have.

National Newspaper Week's purpose will be served if you, the reader, pause to contemplate the big part you play in printing news and whether you are willing to have that part taken away from you. A sure way to lose it is to reason that when freedom of information goes the editor is the only loser You lose far, far more than any editor possibly can.

A Physician's Story of Jesus

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

THE Gospel of Luke occupies a unique place in the New Testament. It is fewer in chapters, but longer in actual length, than the Gospel by Matthew; and while it contains no reference to the coming to Bethlehem by the Wise Men, or to King Herod, and lacks the compact record of the Sermon on the Mount in Matthew 5-7, it is on the whole the fullest Gospel story, and the one we should most prize, if only one had come down to us.

Its most distinctive contributions are in the account of the birth and childhood of Jesus, the chapters that record the Parables, and the stories of the Resurrection.

At that, with the longer Gospels by Matthew and Luke. and the shorter, more direct "straightway" Gospel by Mark. how much we should lose if we did not have the Gospel by John with such wonderful stories as that about the Woman of Samaria, with its teaching concerning God and worship and its intimate talks of Jesus with His disciples.

The great importance of Luke's Gospel in the full story of the life and teaching of Jesus is evidenced by the fact that though much is paralled by passages in the Gospels of Matthew and Mark, one-half of the contents pertains only to that Gospel.

Since Luke's authorship of the Gospel and of the Book of the Acts both addressed to Theophilus, is well authenticated, one might ask: Who was Luke? Who was Theophilus?

Concerning Theophilus there is little beyond conjecture. He is mentioned in the New Testament only in Luke 1:3 and in Acts 1:1. In the former he is addressed as "most excellent," and the name and description suggests a man of importance, probably a Gentile in official position. Since Christians did not address one another as "most excellent," and this is omitted in Acts 1:1, it is conjectured by some that between the writing of the Gospel and the succeeding Book of Acts Theophilus may have been won to the Christian faith.

Concerning Luke our knowledge is more exact. He was the beloved physician and companion of Paul, mentioned by name in Col. 4:14; Philemon, verse 24; and II Timothy 4:11. And this knowledge is strengthened when one turns to the "we" sections of the Book of Acts (16:10), showing how closely Luke was associated with Paul, and how direct a part he had in the spread of early Christianity which he describes so vividly.

The interest in Luke's Gospel begins at the beginning. There is the story of the birth and childhood of Jesus, the Christmas story. In it, the faith, imagination, and wonderment of successive generations have centered. It is the beginning of the greatest story ever told.

How Polio Shots Step Up Protection

By Hart E. Van Riper, M.D., Medical Director National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis

(Editor's note: This is the fourth of a series of five articles on what parents should know about the Salk polio vaccine. Under Dr. Van Riper's direction the National Foundation sponsored the research development of the vaccine and he is in charge of the Foundation's program for vaccinating children in the first and second grades of school.)

"Johnny had one shot of Salk vaciine at school.

School closed and we were informed by the principal that there would be no more vaccinations until reopening in the fall. I understand that three shots of Salk vaccine are necessary, the second within two to four weeks after the first. Does this mean that Johnny's first shot was wasted and that he will have to begin all over?"

The answer: If Johnny gets his second shot when school reopens—or in fact at any time within the next school term — the first shot will not have been wasted and he will not need a new "first" shot, according to evidence presented by Dr. Salk.

With the first shot, something begins to happen in the body, with these two results:

One, there is production of polio antibodies, not only in persons who have produced them before, but also — and here is the important point — in those who have not. Polio antibodies are tiny particles in the blood that protect against virus invasion of the brain and spinal cord where the damage may be done.

Two, the system begins to be more sensitive, more readily alerted, to any future need for antibodies, and to any future stimulus to their production.

The second shot, within a period of 10 days after it is administered, carries both these desirable results — More antibodies, higher sensitivity. It probably lengthens, too, the time in which they will hold good.

But the sensitizing effect of the first shot will endure, in most cases, through the better part of a year. That is why the child who already has one shot can go through the summer without getting the second and not have to begin over.

Here is the recommended schedule: Two doses, of one cubic centimeter each, the second preferably (but not necessarily; two to four weeks after the first, and a third or booster shot of one cc at least seven months after the second shot and before the next polio season.

With the third, or booster shot, the antibody count goes soaring far above the level achieved by the first two. Within nine days of the booster injection, immunity to paralytic polio is about as high as it is in patients who have recovered from natural infections. Indeed, in one sense it is better, because the Salk vaccine protects against all three types of the polio virus, whereas this does not occur in a single natural infection.

Under the program sponsored by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, all children in the first and second grades of school as of spring, 1955 were offered the first two shots of Salk vaccine. That program, though delayed in some localities will be completed this fall.

If you did not request vaccination of your child when the first shots were being given, your child is no longer eligible under the National Foundation program. However, if you have changed your mind, the chances are that vaccine will be available to doctors through commercial channels soon enough so that your doctor can give the child the two shots and the booster seven months later, all before the "polio season" begins next summer. If you do make this decision, it is best to start the shots early enough to beat the 1956 season.

If your child has received one shot under the National Foundation program, he is eligible for the second shot. The public health authority in your community can advise you as to time and place.

But it is most important to remember that the third or booster shot, about which you must see your own doctor, is essential. You cannot be sure that you are giving your child the fullest protection possible if you neglect this. While the first two shots give protection equal to that shown among the 440,000 children who were given the vaccine in the field trial of 1954 — that is, an effectiveness of between 60 and 90 per cent — the two-shot immunity is only temporary.

Dr. Salk and his fellow scientists do not know yet whether the protection given by the whole course of three shots is lifelong or, indeed, just what its duration is, and whether further boosters may be necessary at regular intervals. There are some questions that scientists can answer only by resorting to the wait-and-see method. This is one of them.

Movies Crying For New Face, Finally Get One

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — They've been crying for new faces in the movies, and they finally got one today. Oscar-winner William Holden gave up his famous "normal" face by dying his hair black and adding a bristly mustache.

Usually it's only the glamour dolls who dye for a living and change the color of their tresses to match cars, roles or husbands. But now Holden has dipped into the dye pot to acquire a "new look" for a movie part.

Currently the once bland-faced Willy is wooing Deborah Kerr as a quarter Indian in "The Proud And The Profane." Indians according to the movies, must look dark. Holden and Producer William Perlberg decided the actor's familiar old face did not fit the part, so now fans and even some of his co-workers don't recognize him.

"Oh, I have to have my hair and mustache touched up every four or five days," said Holden with studied casualness.

"When we were on location in the Virgin Islands there was no place to do this except the local beauty shop. There were 20 women in the shop and when the girl would get around to dyeing my mustache, they'd all roar with laughter."

Holden, lounging in his dressing room between scenes at Paramount tweaked at the new cookie duster and added, "I've never had a mustache before and I hate them. You can feel your breath hot and heavy below your nose."

But the disguise is all for art as it helps "the characterization" in the picture, he thinks.

"My face is so normal it's pathetic," Holden continued. "Once you change your appearance, it gives you a cloak to explore a new character."

Glenn Ford is another actor who discovered a change in coiffure can bring different roles. After he tried a crewcut he landed top dramatic roles at MGM in such films as "The Trial."

Indiana Had 96 Cases Of Sleeping Sickness This Year

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Indiana has had 96 cases of encephalitis this calendar year, but very few were the virus type suspected of being responsible for the wave of deaths and illness in the Fort Branch area.

That was the word today from Dr. Albert R. Marshall, of the communicable disease division of the Indiana State Health Board.

Marshall said there is no cause for alarm in reports from various areas far from Fort Branch that encephalitis has been reported.

Encephalitis, Marshall explained, is a pathological term for "inflammation of the brain." Comparatively few cases are found to be the result of virus spread from animals to human beings by insects such as mosquitoes suspected in the Fort Branch outbreak.

Most cases develop as complications from "almost any infection." Encephalitis even is caused by drugs and chemicals. It is not communicable from one person to another.

Most encephalitis cases reported outside the Fort Branch area probably have no connection with insects and are not the virus type, Marshall said.

As a matter of fact, he added, not all the deaths and illnesses in the southwestern Indiana "pocket" have been found definitely to be the virus type.

Two blood samples sent to an Alabama laboratory were found to contain the "St. Louis" type virus encephalitis fatal to many in the Missouri city in two outbreaks in the 1930s. But Marshall said it will be several months before a clear picture of the extent of the Fort Branch outbreak is available.

WOMEN are among the most avid readers of newspapers. It is only proper that a large portion of the Big Window which looks out on life be devoted to news of particular interest to them. Thus the big "PRIVATE" mark on the Women's Pages in American newspapers. Without their community news, their ceaseless parade of entertaining reports on fashions, customs, gadgets life would be drab indeed.

tee last week voted, 8-5 with two abstentions, to exclude the Algerian issue from the agenda. The United States abandoned its neutrality on "colonial" issues and voted, with Britain, to support France on legal grounds.

Following the committee vote, the Arab - Asian - African bloc stepped up efforts and staged what amounted to a filibuster to have the assembly override the committee recommendation.

It became known two days ago that French Premier Edgar Faure told Pinay that he would seek parliamentary approval for France's withdrawal if the assembly voted to debate the issue.

Despite a warning from Pinay that the French "would be tempted to give up their interest in this organization" if the assembly upset the Steering Committee recommendation, the 60 - nation assembly voted 28-27, with five abstentions, to do so.

Victim Urges Caution When Picking Corn

Farmer Loses Hands Last Year

LAFAYETTE, — Needless corn picker accidents can be eliminated on Hoosier farms this fall if operators follow the advice of victims of past years.

F. R. Willsey, farm safety specialist at Purdue University, believes farmers who heed the experience of Millard Eck, Shelby county, will use more caution around the picker this season.

Eck, who lost both hands in a picker accident October 30, 1953, says that any part of moving machinery is dangerous.

Here is Eck's own statement of his unfortunate accident: "When one of the units on the picker became clogged, I got off the tractor in order to find the trouble. I put my right hand up in the throat of the trash roll and at the same time walked on around and started to put my left hand up. Having on a pair of gloves, the gloves caught in the trash and pulled the hand into the roll. The other hand probably caught in about the same time.

"After an unsuccessful attempt to reach the ignition on the tractor to shut it off, I called for help. The hired man was about 40 rods away and fortunately he heard me and came running. When he arrived I had him shut off the tractor and free me from the machine.

"Safety is something we should all practice the year around - particularly around any moving machinery," Eck concludes.

Dora C. Shoemaker, Whitestown, another farmer whose left hand was mangled in a 1953 picker accident, says his accident could have been avoided by "stopping the picker before removing a stalk caught in the retainer".

Willsey contacted a number of farmers this summer in order to learn more about causes and effects of picker accidents.

Many farmers insist that it takes more time and is much more difficult to unclog the picker when the machine is not running. However, all victims contacted by Willsey agreed that the time and effort involved is well worth the trouble. Time may be lost but a hand may be saved by disengaging

Eagles Lose In Last Quarter

An improved Columbia City football team played Bluffton's strong conference team on even terms for the first three quarters, Friday night, but in the final period the Tigers' power proved too decisive and the Eagles lost 33-14. A 45-yard run by Scott, Bluffton fullback, with slightly more than a minute left in the third period set up the Tiger TD which broke up the game. Shortly after that Schmidt streaked off 55-yards in an off-tackle smash to the goal line, and when the Tigers again got possession of the ball they drove from their own 49-yard line to paydirt against the fading Eagles, with Uptgraft ending the drive on a plunge from eight yards out.

Eagles Score First

Bluffton won the toss opening the game, and the Eagles kicked off. The Tigers were forced to punt on fourth down, and Ben Simmers, Eagle end, surprised everyone when he scooped up the short bouncing punt and carried it to the 6-yard line before being hauled down, setting up the first C.C. score. Dick Jones received Yant's handoff, and the Eagles had scored on their first play of the game. On the attempt for the extra point, the pass from center was high, but Deutsch grabbed it and raced around end for a 7-0 score.

Three plays after kicking-off to Bluffton, Deutsch recovered a Tiger fumble, and momentarily it looked as if the Eagles were definitely up for this one and might score again. That thought did not last long, as Deutsch was forced to punt on fourth down from the C.C. 48-yard stripe. Bluffton took over, and led by Scott and Schmidt, registered two first downs. The Tigers were well on their way for a third first down, at fourth and two yards to go on the C.C. 40. Bluffton decided to again try the Eagle line, but Larry Conrad, tackle, stopped the ball carrier one-yard short of the line of scrimmage, and halted Bluffton's drive moments before the quarter ended. The Eagles led 7-0.

After getting possession of the ball, the Eagles could not gain, and punted to Schmidt, who carried the ball back to the Bluffton 45. Three plays later Henry hit Groves with a long pass behind the Eagle defenses, and the play went for 49 yards and a TD. Park booted the extra point for a 7-7 score.

Eagle Fumble

The Tigers received a big break on their kick-off after scoring. Deutsch, playing deep for the kick-off, had to come up fast to reach the ball and fumbled it, Ross of Bluffton recovering on the C.C. 24-yard line. The Tigers drove to the five-yard line, where momentarily it looked as if they might bog down. A pass failed, and Phil Fry, C.C. tackle, stopped Groves cold on the line of scrimmage, making it fourth down and two yards to go for a first down. Tewell picked up four and one-half yards for the first down, and Henry carried the ball over from the six-inch line on the next play. But, Park's attempted kick for the extra point was wide. Score 13-7 Bluffton. That ended the scoring until the third quarter.

Park kicked-off starting the third period, and the Eagles began a march from their own 30-yard line. Columbia City made five first downs and had the ball on the Bluffton five - first down and goal to go. Bridge saved the Eagles once on the drive by recovering a C.C. fumble. The Eagles hit into Bluffton's eight-man line four times, but fell short of a TD by six inches.

Brennan Recovers

All was not lost, it proved moments later, as Bluffton took a gamble and tried to carry the ball out of tha dangerous spot. On their second play, the ball carrier fumbled, and Barry Brennan, Eagle guard, recovered the pigskin on the Bluffton four-yard line.

On the first play, Yant, C.C. quarterback, again tried the center of Bluffton's line and lost three yards. The next play, Deutsch skirted his right end, and with the blocking by Randall Carpenter, he made it over the goal line. It must have been close, because the officials held a long debate before giving the scoring signal. The score then read 13-13, and the Eagles had the try for extra point coming up. The Eagles had never booted an extra point this year, and the hopes of C.C. fans were dim that this single point (which would be so big) could be gotten. Yant carried the ball over, and the Eagles led 14-13.

Tigers Score Quick

Time was running out in the third quarter, but Bluffton took the kick-off and in four plays had scored, Scott setting things up with his 45-yard run, and Fitzpatrick going over on the last play from the five-yard line. Park's kick was good, and the score was 20-14 as the quarter ended.

During the last quarter, the game was completely dominated by Bluffton, but the Eagles had turned in their best performance of the season. The old adage in football is that the linemen do the work and the backs get the glory. But the backs can never look good without a good line opening up holes. The Eagle line has been unusually weak so far this season, but if the linemen improve as much next week as they did in the past week, they will win the first game for Columbia City here next week against Garrett—but the backs will still get the glory.

Speiser Scores TKO Over Willie Troy

WASHINGTON (UP) — Former intercollegiate light - heavyweight champion Chuck Speiser saved himself from almost certain defeat Friday night by pounding Washington's Willie Troy into submission in the fifth round of their nationally televised bout.

Speiser officially won by a technical knockout in 2:52 of the fifth. Referee Charlie Reynolds halted the bout after Troy had been on the canvas three times in the final round and was making little attempt to defend himself.

Speiser, weighing 166½ to Troy's 160½, was bleeding badly from a gash over his left eye when he unleashed his furious attack. The doctor was ready to look at the eye when the Lansing, Mich., boxer caught Troy with a jolting right and then belted him around at will.

Dr. Davis Gordon told Speiser after the bout, "You're a lucky boy. I probably would have stopped the fight after that round."

Speiser said later, "I was pretty sure the doctor was going to stop the fight. So I figured I might as well try something."

Until the wind-up round, the fight was fairly even with both fighters throwing their best punches in an obvious effort for an early knockout.

Dodgers Counting On Carl Erskine To Even Classic

BROOKLYN (UP) — Carl Erskine, Brooklyn's No. 1 "money pitcher" in World Series competition, was Walt Alston's choice — and the choice of odds-makers also — to defeat the New York Yankees today and square the series at two games apiece.

The Dodgers, with Erskine facing big, right-handed Don Larsen, ranked 13-to-10 favorites to make it two straight victories over the Yankees today although Casey Stengel's crew was still quoted a 17-to-10 choice to win the series.

The weather forecast for today's game was cloudy with a high temperature in the low 70's. It rained Friday night and Stengel indicated he hoped it would continue so that three of his injured outfielders, Mickey Mantle, Irv Noren and Hank Bauer, might enjoy a day of rest.

Erskine, however, was raring to go in quest of his third World Series triumph over the Yankees. They beat him once in three decisions but he had the satisfaction of setting a World Series record at their expense in 1953 by striking out 14 batters in one game.

Erskine has precedent going for him against the Yankees today. Twice previously, in 1947 and in 1953, the Dodgers dropped the first two games of the series to the Yankees, only to bounce back and capture the next two games. Both times, however, the Yankees came on to win the series.

In Larsen, Erskine is opposing a 6-foot-3, hard-throwing 26-year-old resident of San Diego Calif., who was instrumental in pitching the Yankees to the American League pennant this year after being recalled from Denver of the American Association in late July.

Larsen was obtained from the Baltimore Orioles last winter in the same deal which brought the Yankees "Bullet" Bob Turley, who was charged with Friday's 8-3 defeat. Larsen came up with consistently strong showings and wound up the season with a 9-2 record.

Erskine, who turned in an 11-8 slate for the Dodgers this season, was troubled with a sore arm for a good part of the campaign but the Dodgers weren't overly concerned with that after seeing how well southpaw Johnny Podres did against the Yankees Friday even though he, too, had been sidelined with an injury and had not pitched a complete game since June 14.

Alston even hinted that a victory by Erskine today might put the Dodgers in the driver's seat for the series. It was believed he might then start southpaw Karl Spooner, who has looked good ni relief so far this series, in the fifth game, or perhaps come back with big Don Newcombe, the first-game loser.

Elated by Friday's triumph, Alston predicted the Dodgers would "really start rolling now."

Podres, who celebrated his 23rd birthday with a neat seven-hitter, also felt" we got the bad baseball out of our blood and we'll go all the way now."

Podres was backed by an 11-hit attack, led by his battery-mate Roy Campanella who drove in three of Brooklyn's runs with a homer, double and a single.

Turley was tagged for three hits in the 1 1-3 innings he worked and was yanked in favor of Tom Morgan when he suffered a wild spell in the second inning.

Podres' pitching, Campanella's hitting and the brilliant base-running tactics of veteran Jackie Robinson were the key features in Brooklyn's one-sided victory.

In a last-minute switch, Stengel installed Mickey Mantle in the starting lineup and the "Commerce Comet" responded with a home run his first time up in the second inning but he favored his injured right thigh and was not expected to start today.

Podres Celebrates His 23rd Birthday With Seven-Hitter

By JOHNNY PODRES
As Told To The United Press

BROOKLYN (UP)—My birthday cake ought to have 24 candles on it today instead of only 23.

That extra candle should be for my change-up. It was a life-saver all day.

"I can't ever remembera game where I had a better change - up pitch. And the big thing about using it against the Yankees was that I kept it down.

I don't mean to knock the Yankees, but I actually think they had a better ball club when I pitched against them in 1953—the year I lasted only 2 2-3 innings against them in the World Series — than they had out there today.

I always had a lot of respect for Mickey Mantle as a hitter and he earned even more of it when he clouted that homer off me this first time up in the second inning. I threw him a low fast ball and he really laid into it.

But that taught me a lesson. When he came up with two men on and none out in the sixth, I dealt with him differently. I went to my bread-and-butter pitch, my change-up, threw it high to him and he hit it down to Pee Wee (Reese) for the start of a double play.

Today's game was the first complete one I pitched since June 14, and I'll admit I got a little tired in the eighth inning. But I had an easy inning. Each of their three hitters grounded out to the infield.

But my pitching wasn't the whole story. How about the way our boys started hitting the ball today? Wow! The wa they put the wood to the ball I think we're in now. I mean that.

I think all we needed to get started was a barrage of base hits like we collected off the Yankees this afternoon. Now we're off and running. Watch and see.

For my part, I'm glad I was able to help out a bit. I felt real good warming up before the game and that good stuff stayed with me all the way.

It was the best birthday present I could of asked for. That change-up was just a little more icing on the cake.

MOTOR MAIDS

New Safety Features Make Driving a Pleasure

By Betty Skelton, Dodge Test Driver

The most complete set of safety devices ever conceived is built into modern cars. That is a "fact of life" that every motorist should know.

First of all, today's high-compression engines provide one of the great marvels of safety engineering.

What does the increased power of the high-compression engine do? It does not, as some think, permit greater speeds and thereby contribute to accidents. The cars of yesteryear could go almost as fast, and engineers are not at all interested in making a racer of the family car.

Miss Skelton

Instead, they look to increased power to provide greater factors of smooth operation, comfort, ease of handling, economy — and, yes, safety.

Many a driver has been in the situation when, in attempting to pass another car, he has found that the speed of an oncoming vehicle has narrowed the passing-safety factor. Now, in a modern automobile, he has only to press the accelerator and the added horsepower scoots his car past and into the clear roadway swiftly—and safely.

Horsepower Increases Safety

Other safety features like power brakes reduce braking effort and avoid driver fatigue. Power brakes also permit faster and safer stops.

Power steering, direction signals, and automatic transmissions ease the driver's task and leave him free to concentrate on the road. Electric window lifts enable the motorist to raise or lower any window in the car without diverting his eyes from the road.

Improve the View

New wrap-around windshields, narrower body pillars, and large rear windows give the driver a better view. Tinted glass reduces glare and eliminates 72 per cent of the hot, infra-red, sun rays. Air conditioning provides extra freedom from the discomfort and exhaustion of excessive heat.

Aside from those features aimed at easing tension and thereby helping motorists to drive safely, there are many other important safety items built into our cars today.

Because of the cooperation and untiring efforts of automotive engineers, police forces, the National Safety Council, and other safety groups, there are fewer fatal accidents per mile than ever before.

So the next time you sit at the wheel, remember how much the automotive engineers are doing to make you a safer driver. Then do all you can to cooperate with them!

America's most famous woman driver, Miss Skelton holds the woman's automotive speed record of 143.44 mph, and is the only woman test driver in the automotive industry. Address any questions or suggestions about cars, safety, and driving problems to her in care of this newspaper.

Number Of High Producing Cows Is On Increase

LAFAYETTE — A Purdue University extension dairyman, G. A. Williams, reports the percentage of high producing cows on test in Indiana DHIA herds is on the increase.

Records disclose that the number of cows which produce more than 400 pounds each year has increased 300 per cent in the past 33 years.

Williams says this increase in numbers is due to one or more of the following improvements in herd management:

Increased consumption of high quality hay silage; except in extreme emergencies the present day herd is fed liberal amounts of early cut hay produced on fertile soil.

Permanent pastures, composed mostly of blue grass, have been replaced by grass-legume mixtures. Soils are fertilized and rotation of areas is practiced on many farms.

Concentrates have been improved and greater attention given to individual needs of each cow. The feeding of broken ear corn to the dairy heard has almost disappeared.

Improved practices at milking time have reduced udder troubles, lessening losses from mastitis.

Superior germ plasm made available through artificial breeding associations and development and use of proved sires have raised the inherited producing ability of herds in recent years.

Five-Acre Contest Yields Of Soybeans, Corn Being Checked

LAFAYETTE, — Official yield checks for 5-acre corn and soy bean contest are underway in Hoosierland, reports M. O. Pence, extension agronomist at Purdue University.

More than 4000 adult and junior contestants in 85 counties are now being checked by extension agents in cooperation with the Purdue agronomy extension division.

Indiana's Corn Growers' Association offers medals for official corn yields as follows: silver medals for 85 to 100 bushels; gold medals for 100 to 125 bushels; green old medals for 125 to 150 bushels; and rose gold medals for yields of 150 bushels or more.

Last year's corn growing champion, A. J. Custer of DeKalb county who set a record yield of 24 bushels an acre, is not entered in competition this year. However, James Kirkendall, the '54 junior king, is entered in the contest.

Tom Maddox, Benton county farmer, produced a record 63.6 bushels an acre to win the 1954 5-acre soybean event.

'Panther' Prowls Near New Columbus

ANDERSON, Ind. (UP) — The Madison County sheriff's department hoped to collect a panther's hide for its trophy room today as it investigated reports of a big cat prowling about the New Columbus area.

Sheriff Joe Brogdon sent out a posse of deputies in an effort to track down an animal which residents said resembled a panther. Borgdon said reports of the creature have been received for the past two weeks.

Mrs. James Beeman and her son, Fred, 17, who live near a woodland south of Anderson, both reported seeing the animal. Other reports came from a school bus driver and a farmwife in the Markleville area.

In an earlier search deputies said they found a paw print measuring about four inches in diameter.

Witnesses estimated the animal weighed about 80 pounds and said it appeared to be gray in color. Its tail was said to be as long as its body.

Death Rate On Nation's Highways Ahead Of Last Year

CHICAGO (UP)—The death rate on the nation's highways is running more than 1,000 deaths ahead of last year and the most dangerous months are still to come, the National Safety Council said today.

The council reported that 23,470 persons have been killed in traffic accidents from the beginning of the year until the end of August. This is a five per cent jump of 1,040 deaths over the 22,430 recorded in the first eight months of 1954.

Council President Ned H. Dearborn warned that the most dangerous months for drivers are still ahead.

The highway death rate usually spurts in the last quarter of the year, when early darkness and rainy or snowy weather increase driving hazards, he said.

In August, when 3,600 persons were killed, the death rate jumped 10 per cent over August, 1954 to make it the sixth consecutive month to go over the previous year's record.

Deaths jumped four per cent from January to July, the council said.

Also on the bright side, 19 of the 47 reporting states had fewer deaths last month than in August, 1954, and 13 states had better eight month records.

Leading the states with good eight-month records was Idaho, where 21 per cent fewer traffic deaths occurred this year. Traffic deaths dropped 18 per cent in Arizona, seven per cent in North Dakota, and five per cent in Minnesota and Nebraska.

FIRE SERVICE

Me Lord and Master

His tummy is full,
His ego's been fed.
He's got on his robe
And he's ready for bed,
So he sits with his pipe
In front of the fire
With his profile turned up
For me to admire -
So I do!

You will find inconsistency
One of his traits,
And he's penitent
After his anger abates.
He purrs like a kitten
That's full of warm milk,
When rubbed the right way.
He's smoother than silk -
But take care

For he's grouchy at six
And can't find his tie
Or his shorts, nor a shirt
Nor a sock, can he spy!
But a needle point speck
On his collar he sees,
And at times I would say
H is just hard to please -
You can have him!

Yet - I find that he handles
Like modelling clay,
If I can convince him
He's having his way.
So my better ideas I
Credit to him,
And thus, though he humors
Most every whim,
He don't know it.

He snores when he sleeps,
And his bed the next day
Looks like the army had Passed that-a-way.
I miss him a lot,
I know if I lost him
I'd miss him a lot,
For I'm used to his faults
And he's all that I've got.
Guess I'll keep 'im!

Thoughts on looking down from the twentieth floor of a Skyscraper.

What a cruel thing, a city!
What a nightmare - what a pity!
Too many bridges to be crossed
And far too great the cost, the cost!
Never time to count the stars,
Or dream above your samovars.

Rumble, rumble, struggle strain,
All for monetary gain, -
The city like a great machine
Grinds out endless dull routine
Leaving in it's fearsome wake
Hearts that falter, hearts that break.

Everywhere are little people,
Beneath each chimney tower and steeple!
Little ants who never know
How straight and tall a tree can grow, -
Sow soft a woodland path can be
To one who prays on bended knee.

They go through life with tired eyes,
Pursuing some small enterprise
And dole out from their daily ration
The taxes for a growing nation.
Little men who weep and laugh,
And die without an epitaph.

To A Youngster

Remember, child
To feed your soul
In all the coming years.
Do not forget
Your greatest goal
Is triumph over tears.

Deep down within
The heart of you
One dreamy fleck of light
That can begin
And grow into
A flame, intense and bright.

So ponder on Eternal things
To your own dreams be true
Was not your wings
In vain attempts
Some things are not for you.

Nurture your need
For things of love
Capture elusive beauty
Will steady you
And this will be your duty.

Line's Busy

If you need to call a doctor
In time of deep distress
The telephone is something
You fervently do bless,
Till you find "Line's busy",
With idle talk perchance,
Your "blessing" gets less fervent
And your temper starts to dance.

"I'll Count It Not"

I'll watch the years as they come and go
And times get hard and funds get low
And our now darks heads much whiter grow,
I'll watch the years - and love them so
Because we'll share together.

When children come with pain of bearing
And self-denial for sake of sharing
And toil and drudge of daily caring,
I'll count it not so wasting, wearing,
Because we'll share together.

The sooner all my dreams come true
E'en though I have possessions few
I'll be happy loving you
And doing things we planned to do
Because we'll share together.

Prayer of The Homeless

I would not ask my Maker
To grant this boon to me:
A castle in the country
Or a palace by the sea;
No grange, estate, or hall
With fawning servants running
At my every beck and call.

This would I ask my Maker
Of all the things that be:
A cottage in the country
With someone who cares for me,
Some small place of my own;
This would I ask my Maker—
That I be not alone.
Mandy L. Gerig

A Friend

Alone
I walk at night
A little plot of garden,
Seeking peace and kindness.
In search of someone who would be My friend.

And now
I have my friend,
I found the trust I craved
Within the heart of one also Alone.

Farm Leases Should Apply To Specific Farm, Not Custom

LAFAYETTE, — Eight different lease forms are available from the Purdue University agricultural economics department for Hoosier farm tenants and landlords in need of assistance in developing a satisfactory rental agreement.

Paul Robbins, Purdue agricultural economist, says that some forms are designed to handle situations in which the landlord furnished most or all the operating capital while other forms provide for the renter to furnish the needy money. Additional information is also available which shows how income, expenses, and ownership of machinery and equipment are customarily divided in the different sections of the state for various leases.

Robbins believes that farm leases should be based on value of contributions made by the tenant and landlord instead of on community customs.

In the past few years, some landlords have changed their lease form from a crop share agreement to livestock share plan. Under the crop lease, the tenant owns all livestock but often times not many animals are kept.

Crops and Stock

Under the livestock share lease, the tenant and landlord are usually 50-50 across the board on crops and livestock. Both tenant and landlord have a greater incentive to develop proper land use and get needed fences, buildings and quipment under a livestock agreement than under the crop leases. A sounder, more profitable long time organization for the farm is more likely to develop if the lease does not discourage the keeping of the proper amount of livestock.

Investments in new technologies which tenants are making requires additions to or modifications of leases. Many tenants are now investing in heavy application of "plow down" fertilizer, sod waterways and terraces, and pasture renovacations which benefit the farm for more than one year.

At present 42 per cent of Indiana's farm land is owned by people who do not farm. About 36 per cent of the farm operators in the state rent all or part of the land they farm.

Robbins says many problems between the tenant and landlord can be eliminated if sufficient thought is given to the rental agreement at the time the tenant came to the farm or by periodic revisions of the old lease.

Warn Farm Families, Prevention Is Best Fire Protection

LAFAYETTE, — Hoosier farm families can go a long way toward making the 1955 Fire Prevention Week, October 9-15, a success if they "don't give fires a chance to start."

F. R. Willsey, farm safety specialist at Purdue University, says careful inspection for potential sources will eliminate needless fires.

A total of 274 farmers' mutual fire insurance companies indicate that farm fire losses amounted to $157 million in 1954. An estimated 2500 farm residents also perished in farm fires during that period. Carelessness and neglect were the principal causes of these staggering losses in manpower, livestock, farm products, buildings and equipment.

Willsey believes that the greatest cause for fires in homes, heating and cooking, can be reduced if defective chimneys are rebuilt, heating systems cleaned at least once a year, and worn parts of heating systems and cooking equipment repaired or replaced.

"Do not overfuse electrical systems," the safety specialists warns. A recent inspection of 1049 Hoosier Farms, showed that overfusing occurred on 41 per cent of those farms. Farm owners are advised to watch for frayed insulation, and loose or sagging wires and dictures. Fifteen ampere fuses should be used on lighting circuits in the barns.

Other fires can be prevented on farms if rubbish is cleared out, lightning rods are inspected and matches kept away from children.

Spontaneous ignition accounts for more than 27 per cent of fires in barns and outbuildings. Hay should be well cured before storage and placed evenly in the mow. Ventilation flues in maymows help prevent heating.

Farmers should be sure to store gasoline, benzine, or similar falmmable liquids a safe distance from the house. And don't use the liquids to start or boost fires in stoves, ranges or fireplaces.

Each member of the family and all farm helpers should be constantly on the alert to dangers of fires, reminds Willsey.

Fire prevention costs little in comparison to expensive and often deadly conflagrations.

decisions before taking any action."

Mr. Eisenhower suffered a coronary thrombosis early last Saturday and he was in such a delicate condition until Friday night that consideration of official business was unthinkable.

The attendant physicians decided, however, that he had improved enough by late Friday to affix written approval to two highly routine lists of foreign service promotions. These involved recess appointments of career officers of the lower State Department echelons which will be submitted later to the Senate for confirmation.

A bedside bulletin at 1 a.m. EDT today said:

"The President's condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications. The President had a comfortable day. He again enjoyed music and was read to for a short period in the afternoon.

"The oxygen tent has not been used for last 36 hours. The President continues to be on a 1,600 calorie per day diet as announced."

President Has Examination After His 'Tiredness' Causes Concern

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower was reported by his physicians to feel "rested and refreshed" today in contrast to their bulletin Sunday night that he was suffering from fatigue.

The attending doctors at Fitzsimons Army Hospital where Mr. Eisenhower is a patient were alert to changes in his condition, but their mid-morning report allayed anxiety in the White House staff that the President may have taken a bad turn during the night.

The White House shortly after 10 a.m. MST (11 a.m. CST) disclosed that Mr. Eisenhower was subjected to a thorough medical examination at 4:25 a.m. MST today.

He was examined again after he awoke at 7:10 a.m. in the realization that any word on Mr. Eisenhower's condition could have a mercurial effect around the world, the doctors took their time in releasing the news of the President's mid-morning condition.

In behalf of Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the White House physician, and Col. Byron E. Pollock, the heart specialist at Fitzsimons, the White House reported:

"The President slept soundly from 8:45 p.m. last night to 7:10 this morning with the exception of a half hour from 4:25 to 4:55 a.m.

"At that time a medical examination showed his temperature, pulse and blood pressure to be normal.

"When he awoke this morning the President felt rested and refreshed. His morning examination showed no changes to indicate complications and his condition remains satisfactory.

"His temperature, pulse and blood pressure remain normal. His cardigram continues to show slow, progressive evolution."

Indiana Has Grim 34 Toll In Five Days

High Speed Blamed For Many Accidents

By UNITED PRESS

Indiana's blood-stained streets and highways claimed a grim toll of at least 34 dead in a period of less than five days as Hoosier motorists headed into the season which began Wednesday afternoon killed at least 17 persons during the weekend. Both the weekend and the five-day toll were among the worst of the year.

One weekend crash killed three persons and two others killed two each. Only one crash involved more than one car, and high speed was blamed for many accidents.

F. C. Harshamn, 31, Frankfort, his wife Eula Mae, 23 and Lander Williams 55 Frankfort were killed when trapped in a car which plunged into Sugar Creek along Ind. 39 north of Lebanon.

Cynthia Beringer 4, South Bend, was killed when two cars heading for the Indiana-Notre Dame football game crashed at South Bend. Mrs. Martha Huneryager, 38, Elkhart, died later of injuries.

John Carpenter, 26 Indianapolis was killed when his car smashed into a railroad elevation in his home city. Police said he may have dozed.

Lester Harder 20, Loogootee, was killed when a car went out of control at high speed and overturned several times on Ind. 57 northeast of Evansville.

Cecil Foutch, 30, Lawrenceburg, was killed when his car struck a pole near Lawrenceburg and burst into flames.

James Brown, 9, indianapolis, was killed when he ran into the path of a car on an Indianapolis street.

Ribs Fractured

Lester Leazier, Churubusco R 1, is a patient at the Luckey hospital, Wolf Lake, following a mishap Saturday with his pickup truck while returning to his home from a visit to his son at Big Lake.

He suffered several fractured ribs when he was thrown against the steering wheel of the truck.

Plan Collection Of Gifts For Mental Hospitals

Mrs. Jules Heritier To Head Program For Third Year

Mrs. C. Jules Heritier, 410 E Van Buren street, again will head the collection of Christmas gifts in Whitley county for patients in state mental institutions.

Mrs. Herieier, who has led the Christmas Gifts Collection program the last three years in Whitley county, will form a committee of volunteers who will ask civic groups in this region to cooperate in the Christmas gifts program.

Collected gifts will be distributed to patients at parties in hospital wards in December. The depot to which these presents may be brought will be announced later.

Mrs. Heritier is a member of Kappa Kappa Kappa sorority, the Coterie, and the Auxiliary to the Whitley County Medical Society.

Each year, the Indiana Association for Mental Health encourages civic organizations in counties to collect gifts for mental patients. Last year, more than 35,000 gifts were collected, providing each of the 17,000 confined to state mental hospitals with at least two gifs.

Clubs, sororities and other organizations interested in participating in this worthy program are asked to contact Mrs. Heritier.

Chief Justice Warren And Eight Associate Justices Open Supreme Court's 165th Year

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chief Justice Earl Warren and the eight associate justices step from behind a dark red curtain today and take their places at a gleaming mahogany bench to open the Supreme Court's 165th year.

A buzzer is scheduled to hush an expected overflow crowd of tourists, dignitaries and government officials in the lofty marble courtrom across the square from the capitol.

Opening day of the nine-month term is devoted to the formality of admitting some 100 lawyers to practice before the high tribunal. After the brief ceremony, the justices return to their offices to work on a backlog of more than 700 cases piled up during the summer recess.

For the first time in three years, the justices do not face the weighty problem of segregation in public schools.

But the forthcoming term poses issues almost as crucial. The foremost is the ever-recurrent problem of how far the government can move against Communists in this country and still stay within constitutional bounds.

The most serious threat so far to the nation's anti - subversive laws is the Communist Party's all-out attack on the 1950 Internal Security Act. The court's decision later this term probably will decide the future of the party in this country and help to shape the government's attempts to regulate the party's operations.

The law—which was vetoed by former President Truman—is the first designed to clamp down on the party as a whole rather than on individual members. It requires the Communist Party to register as Moscow - controlled, bare its membership rolls and submit to other restrictions.

Other important cases up for decisions are the biggest anti - trust case in history—the government's charge that the giant General Motors and DuPont Corporations are illegally interlocked; a test of the constitutionality of the 1950 Uniform Code of Military Justice which permits the military to try veterans in certain cases; the validity of state anti - subversive laws; appeals of big-time racketeers Joe Adonis and Frank Costello from perjury and income tax evasion convictions respectively; segregation in state parks; blood tests for drunk drivers, the death sentence appeal of Caryl Chessman, California convict and best-selling author; and the new law forcing witnesses in espionage cases to testify in exchange for immunity from prosecution.

Clugston Block Sold To Flox And Daseler

Flox Store Buys Building It Occupies

Sale of the Clugston block at the southwest corner of Van Buren and Chauncey streets to the Flox Department store and the Clugston Hotel immediately south of it on Chauncey street to Mr. and Mrs. William Daseler was announced today by the D. B. Clugston heirs, owners of these two prominent Columbia City business properties.

Possession has already been given. The new owners of these buildinsg were formerly lease-holders of the buildings they now occupy.

Built in 1889

The Clugston block was built in 1889 on the lot between Van Buren street and the City Hall and is of brick construction. To this building was connected at the rear of the hotel property an earlier frame building.

The business property is one of the most prominent in Columbia City and it has been the site of businesses which for approximately 70 years have continuously served the community.

The department store known as the Flox Department store was started by a Larwill merchant, L. B. Clugston, who constructed the building. He was soon joined in business by Asher R. Clugston. Bert Clugston and W. A. Clugston, along with George R. Harrison, some years later assumed interests in the business which was known as the Clugston store, a dry goods store with allied lines of merchandise.

In 1920, following the death of Bert Clugston, the business was sold to Jacob O. Flox and George Harrison, the latter selling his interest a few years later to Mr. Flox.

Mr. Flox, together with his late brother, Louis Flox, operated the store as a business partnership until 1925 when Louis Flox died. The Louis Flox interest was purchased shortly later by the Jacob

France Wages Warfare Against Berber Tribes

Sudden Uprising Claims 200 Lives During Weekend

RABABT, Morocco (UP)—France today unleashed modern warfare against insurgent Berber tribes in northern Morocco and first reports indicated government planes and guns were taking a heavy toll.

Resident General Gen Pierre Boyer de Latour du Moulin issued orders that no effort was to be spared in smashing the sudden uprising of Riff tribesmen which which claimed an estimated 200 lives during the weekend.

The new flare-up threatened to jeopardize his efforts to restore calm to the protectorate now that he has succeeded in ousting the unpopular Sulta Sidi Mohammed Ben Moulay Arafa.

De Latour sealed off vast stretches of northern Morocco and cabled for reinforcements. Paris ordered five French battalions to the scene immediately to bolster the French striking force in Morocco, two of them are from neighboring Algeria.

While planes pounded rebel concentrations in the middle of the Atlas Mountains, heavy rescue columns inched their way toward outposts where outnumbered garrisons have been holding back hundreds of insurgents for 48 hours.

In Casablanca itself terrorists armed with submachineguns shot and killed four suspected French sympathizers and wounded six others. There were similar slayings in other cities in Morocco.

Unofficial reports from Immouzer Der Marjoucha, 40 miles southeast of Fez, said 70 out of the 120 men of the French garrison were killed or wounded in one of the lightning rebel raids. Fears were felt for the safety of 58 Europeans and 25 Moroccan auxiliary troops in the village.

Two French customs officials were killed at Boured by rebels who then turned on the men's families and slit the throats of their wives and children.

2 Injured In Crash Of 2 Autos Sunday Near South Whitley

Two persons suffered minor injuries at about 2:30 p.m. Sunday in a two-car automobile accident about five miles northwest of South Whitley on the Whitley-Kosciusko county Line road.

Rex Slusher, 16, Pierceton, and Jerry Anders, also 16, were taken to Whitley County Hospital. Both are undergoing observation and treatment, Slusher for possib'e head injuries, shock and bruises, and Anders for possible back injuries and abraisions.

The two were occupants of an automobile driven by Howard Elder, 17, of R 2, Pierceton. The car was northbound on the road when a southbound car, driven by Donald Rush, 23, of R 6, Columbia City, pulled into its path.

The Rush automobile was attempting to pass another vehicle when the accident occurred. He told State Police that he saw that he would be unable to complete the pass, and attempted to drop back into his lane of traffic. In so doing, he applied the brakes and skidded to the left and into the path of the oncoming car.

Rush was arrested on a charge of driving on the wrong side of the road.

Trooper Norman Pierce investigated.

G. J. Leininger Is Nominated For 33rd Degree

Has Been Active Mason For 40 Years

George Leininger

George J. Leininger, co-owner of the Columbia Drug and a member of the Masonic organizations for 40 years, received the highest honor when he was nominated for the honorary 33rd Degree at Detroit last week. Mr. Leininger, along with two other men from Northern Indiana, were nominated by W. Henry Roberts, deputy for Indiana, at the annual Northern Masonic Jurisdiction meeting. The announcement was made at the Indiana dinner, which closed the annual meeting, and Mr. Leininger was later notified by telegram.

The nominees for this honor will be installed next September at the meeting in Cincinnati.

Honored Previously

Significant of the honor bestowed on Mr. Leininger is the fact that only two men from Whitley county have in the past become 33rd degree Masons. Those men were Thomas R. Marshall, when he was serving as governor of Indiana, and Walter McLallen, at the time he was a member of the board of directors of the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago.

He became a member of the Masons in 1915 at the age of 21 years and did all the work in one year. He has been a member of all the York Rite bodies, a member of the Scottish Rite, and the Shrine. He has served as Past Master of the Blue Lodge, Past High Priest of the Columbia City Chapter, Past Illustrious Master of the Columbia City Council, and Past Commander of the Columbia City Commandery.

During the year of 1941-42, he served as Grand Commander of the Grand Commandery of Indiana.

10 Building Permits Issued, One Referred To Appeals Board

Ten building permits were issued by Richard L. Holden, city building commissioner, and one application was referred to the board of zoning appeals during September, according to records of the building commissioner.

Persons or firms who were granted building permits in the past month were: Farmers Loan & Trust Co., to add a work room and a new vault at the rear of the present bank building; Floyd W. Baker, to build a new home on Lot 68 in West Gate Addition; Eugene Radke, to build a new home on Lot 35 in West Gate Addition; O. G. Brazil May Be In For Political Turmoil Period

Votes For Her President Today

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
United Press Staff Correspondent

Brazil, the largest country in Latin America, may be in for a period of political turmoil.

About 10 million of Brazil's 54 million men and women are voting for a president today.

But the army may prove the determining factor.

It was the army that forced out President Getulio Vargas on Aug. 24, 1954, and caused him to shoot himself through the heart.

The generals are watching today's vote closely. If they do not like the way things go, they may step in. That might mean a military dictatorship and consequent trouble.

There are four candidates for the presidency.

The leading one is Juscelino Kubitschek, candidate of the Social Democratic, Labor and Republican parties.

The army does not like Kubitschek, though it probably would tolerate him as president — a watchful toleration.

But the Admy detests the Labor Party, which is backing Kubitschek.

It is there that the possibility of any army coup exists.

The real storm center in the election is Kubitschek's vice presidential running mate, Joao Goulart. Goulart is president of the Labor Party, which Vargas headed.

Under the Brazilian constitution candidates for the presidency and the vice presidency run separately.

If Goulart is elected, it is quite possible that the generals will intervene and refuse to permit him to take office.

The army forced Vargas to dismiss Goulart as minister of labor in a prelude to the late president's ouster.

It was charged, at the time, that Goulart was trying to organize the Brazilian Labor Party, with Vargas' approval along the lines of the Argentine labor organization which dictator Juan D. Peron made his country's political power.

The Presidential Cabinet Is An Odd And Little Understood Organ Of Government

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower's incapacity has spotlighted the presidential cabinet which is an odd and little understood organ of government, a mere political vermiform appendix.

The cabinet has no constitutional status, exercises no authority and, more often than not, is ill-informed on major decisions and policies.

Moreover, the cabinet defies the natural law that the whole can be no greater than the sum of its parts. The individual cabinet members are great figures in their fields of activity, each with tremendous authority over some area of the national defense or national ecnomy.

Seated collectively around the cabinet table these great figures are merely guests of the president without legal authority.

The Constitution brushes off the cabinet in a few words stating that the president may call on the principal officer of any department if he desires to do so for an opinion in writing. The Constitution says the opinion shall relate to the duties of the respective officers. That's all the Constitution has to say about the cabinet.

The so-called cabinet system by which a president meets regularly with the departmental principal officers and some others, as he may invite, just grew. Under many presidents, including some of the standouts, the cabinet didn't amount to much.

Jackson, Lincoln, Woodrow Wilson, FRD for example, could take their cabinets or leave them alone. Former President Truman often leaned heavily on his cabinet. So

Yankees, Facing Sudden Death, Win Game 5-1

Skowron Hits Three-Run Homer

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — Manager Walter Alston of the front running Dodgers called on left-hander Karl Spooner today in an effort to close out the 1955 World Series against the New York Yankees.

Facing sudden death, with his team trailing two games to three, Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees pinned his hopes of keeping the series alive on another lefthander, Ed (Whitey) Ford, who received credit for the first game victory.

Spooner, who had arm trouble most of this season, won eight games and lost six for the National League champions. He appeared in relief in the second game of the series — also won by the Yankees — and allowed only one hit while striking out five in three innings.

Ford, with the aid of ninth inning relief help from Bob Grim,

Kosciusko County Man Files Divorce Complaint

A complaint for divorce was filed Tuesday in Whitley county circuit court by Francis A. Blubaugh against Gladys Blubaugh on a change of venue from Kosciusko circuit court.

According to the complaint, the couple was married October 20, 1945 and separated April 10, 1955. The plaintiff charges the defendant with cruel and inhuman treatment.

Investment Company Seeks $550 Judgment Against Raymond Coyle

The Associated Investment Company filed a suit against Raymond Coyle, city, in Whitley county circuit court Sept. 26 seeking judgment of $550 for non-fulfillment of a contract.

In the complaint, attorneys for the company charge that Coyle purchased from Maple City Motors, Inc. of Goshen January 13, 1953 an automobile, for which he agreed to pay $1,275.

The plaintiffs claim that the defendant failed to make a payment February 27, 1953 and the car was repossessed and sold at public auction. At the time of the sale, the defendant owed $490.18 and the car was sold for $100, leaving a balance due of $390.18.

The plaintiff claims that the cost of retaking and selling the car was $10 and attorney's fees amount to $150. Therefore, the investment company asks for a judgment of $550.

Peak Brilliance Of Fall Foliage About October 10-15

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) — Thousands of Hoosiers who motor to the countryside fall foilage may do well briliant fall foliage may d well to choose the next three weekends.

The Indiana Conservation Department said the "peak" brilliance of red, yellow, orange and purple hues ordinarily comes around Oct. 10-15, but it depends on several factors, including weather and location.

A spokesman said next weekend might be the best time to view leaves in the northern part of the state, since bright pigments appear earlier there than farther south. The weekend of Oct. 15 might be best for central Indiana and Oct. 22 for southern counties.

Conservation Director Harley Hook said the exact time of peak color cannot be predicted. If the next few days are cool and sunny and the nighttime temperatures 45 degrees or lower, chances for a brilliant autumn are good, he said.

Hook suggested a visit first to Pokagon State Park, then to the Shades, Turkey Run, McCormick's Creek, or Brown County and finally to Clfty Falls Spring Mill or the Harrison County State Forest.

Louis Hasenstab of the Division of State Parks said it was doubtful last week's heavy rain and wind storm could have done enough damage to trees to affect the scenery.

First trees to take in bright colors will be sumac, dogwood, black gum and sassafrass.

Red and purple will appear in the dogwood, three types of maple, pin oaks, sumac, sweet gum black haw and white ash. Tulip poplars ash beech, sugar and black maples and spice bushes turn yellow and other maples, sassafras and ironwood become orange.

Big Push Against Polio Still To Come

By Hart E. Van Riper, M.D.,
Medical Director National Foundation for Infantile Parlysis

(Editor's note: This is the last of a series of five articles on what parents should know about the Salk polio vaccine. Under Dr. Van Riper's direction the National Foundation sponsored the research development of the vaccine and he is in charge of the Foundation's program for vaccinating children in the first and second grades of school.)

"I understand the doctors have been told to give Salk vaccinations only to children five to nine years old until all of that age have had the shots. I am the mother of a child of three. Suppose there is not enough vaccine this year to go round. Does this mean my three-year-old may have to go through another polio season next year without protection?"

It is understandable that questions like this arise in the minds of anxious parents. But this mother would do well, I think, to stop "supposing" herself into a state of worry over the present priorities applying to the Salk vaccine.

In the first place, it now appears likely that enough vaccine will be available by next spring, and possibly sooner, for all American children. The U.S. Surgeon General, Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, whose office has charge of the release of vaccine, believes there will be enough to vaccinate all under 20 years old.

When that part of the polio vaccination program financed by the March of Dimes is completed —two shots for children in the first and second grades of school — physicians will have before them a coluntary plan suggested by the U.S. Public Health Service which will list recommended priorities by age-group for administration of the vaccine.

In this list, five to nine-year-olds will come first, because experience shows that this group suffers the highest rate of paralytic polio. The American Medical Association already has asked its members to observe this priority.

As long as the vaccine remains in short supply, additions to the list are possible. In point of polio incidence, the age-group from one to five years is second highest. From nine years on, the percentage of incidence shows a downward trend.

Parents whose children today must wait their turn for the Salk vaccine should bear in mind that there is a good reason for these priorities, that they are grounded in good sense and that if and when good sense dictates changes in the schedule, these changes will be made.

Some concern about priorities on the vaccine is natural, but we parents must concern ourselves with another side of the polio story, too.

The National Foundation is currently warning everyone that "polio isn't licked yet."

They are right. Even after the goal of universal vaccination is realized, some years hence, polio will not have been licked until three other aims are accomplished:

First, until funds are assured for the care which current polio patients must have if they are to win their way back to usefulness and enjoyment of the satisfactions of life.

Second, until further research improved the effectiveness of the vaccine and of all other safeguards against the damage of polio.

Third, until there are enough trained professional personnel specializing in polio problems — scientists, doctors, physical and occupational therapists, medical social workers — to overcome an acute nationwide shortage.

Your child is probably one of the lucky ones who will never be hit by polio. But only when these aims are realized on behalf of less fortunate children can any of us cease our efforts in the fight against polio. Only then will polio be licked.

"Write Now-Today" Slogan Adopted For Letter Writing Week

National Letter Writing Week, to be observed this year in the week ending October 8, should serve as a reminder to all Americans of one of our great freedoms — the sure, safe, and speedy transmittal of uncensored mail, Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield said today.

"Since the earliest days of our Republic," Mr. Summerfield noted, "our citizens have been guaranteed the right of uncensored mail. This heritage today is backed by more than one-half million postal employes dedicated to serving all Americans to the best of their abilities."

National Letter Writing Week will also serve to focus attention on the need for many Americans to write long-postponed letters to friends and relatives.

"In many parts of the world," Mr. Summerfield pointed out, "there is no such thing as uncensored mail between citizens. We who are the beneficiaries of this right should avail oursleves of the happiness that long-awaited letters bring to those receiving them.

"May I urge all Americans to adopt the slogan of National Letter Writing Week — 'Write Now —Today.'"

Doctors Extract Odd Assortment Of Foreign Bodies

CHICAGO (UP)—Somewhere in the Midwest a baby swallows a safety pin. The chances are he'll be rushed to Chicago to Children's Memorial Hospital.

That's because the hospital has one of the nation's best equipped bronchoscopy departments, staffed by surgeons who are adept at removing pins, coins, toy soldiers and the like from youthful innards.

Last year the doctors at Children's Memorial extracted an odd assortment of 63 "foreign bodies." These included such diverse objects as orange peels olive pits, small plastic toys, pins and buttons of every description and small change of varying denomination.

Prior to the development of modern techniques, 90 per cent of thse patients who got foreign bodies into their lungs died later of infection.

But bronchoscopy and the antibiotics have changed all that. Now less than 1 per cent of these cases prove fatal.

Bronchoscopy enables the specialist to peer through a narrow, illuminated tube directly into the lungs, gullet, windpipe or stomach.

Foreign objects diseased tissue or tumorous growths are removed with a specially designed forceps inserted through the tube.

The bronchoscopy department at Children's Memorial, a pioneer in the field, was founded almost 20 years ago by Dr. Paul H. Holinger, with a donation by a couple of grateful parents.

It may seem strange that a child must be flown or rushed by ambulance to Chicago sometimes hundreds of miles, to have a pin or button removed. But family doctors and most hospitals are not equipped for the job.

First, you need an elaborate X-ray set up in two planes, providing the surgeon with what amounts to a three-dimensional picture.

Then you need the know-how and the instruments themselves. Children come in various sizes, so there must be a complete set of instruments for each size.

The green-tiled bronchoscopy room at Children's Memorial is equipped with about 25 bronchoscopes or tubes for peering into the windpipe and lungs.

Some of the tubes are narrower than a slim pencil, and each has a tiny light bulb at the end, so small it's a wonder it works.

There are about 75 forceps, specially designed for removing a wide variety of objects. One piece of apparatus is designed for closing a safety pin before removal.

There are forceps for removing buttons, coins, peanuts, toy whistles beads of various sizes marbles and even one for extracting a .22 caliber shell.

"There's no telling what a youngster will swallow" Hollinger said.

George Allen At Final Conference On Arms Question

CAIRO (UP)—U.S. State Department trouble-shooter George Allen scheduled a final conference with Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser today on the arms question but it appeared Allen's mission had failed.

Nasser not only declared in a speech that Egypt would stick with her agreement with Czechoslovakia to buy arms but also bitterly attacked the Wesern powers and accused them of trying to keep Egypt unarmed and thus be under their influence.

The Czech government, in a broadcast announcement over Radio Prague, said formally for the first time today that it will fulfill all conditions of the pact by which the Czechs will sell arms to Egypt in exchange for cotton, rice and other products.

The State Department sent Allen flying to Cairo as soon as the arms agreement was announced. Nasser met Saturday with Allen and the Big Four ambassadors.

Allen leaves Tuesday for Beirut.

Nasser, speaking at Egyptian military academy graduation exercises Sunday, said an agreement with the Soviet bloc would enable Egypt to be rich in both men and arms and would usher in a new era of freedom for Egypt.

Though the 37-year-old premier appeared firmly to have blocked Allen's mission to deter Egypt from buying Communist arms, Egypt left the way open for the United States to arm Egypt if it wanted to avert an Egyptian switch toward the East.

Nasser said in his speech that Britain, France and the United States were arming Israel and refusing to provide Egypt with military equipment. This concept of a Middle East "balance of power" is a "big deceit," Nasser said.

Nasser said Egyptian intelligence had obtained French and British documents telling about supplies of arms to Israel and that British Ambassador Sir Humphrey Trevelyan is "welcome to see this report" in my office.

Edgar Faure And Pinay Postpone Visit To Moscow

In View Of 'Recent Events' In U. N.

PARIS (UP)—France told Soviet Russia formally today that Premier Edgar Faure and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay have postponed their visit to Moscow because of the position taken by Russia on the Algerian vote in the United Nations.

Soviet Attache Alexander Anikine was called to the Foreign Office at midday and was received by Pinay.

Informed sources said the foreign minister informed Anikine that he and Premier Faure would postpone, but not cancel, their plans to visit Moscow.

Pinay bluntly informed the Soviet attache that the atmosphere in France was not favorable for a trip to Moscow at this time in view of "recent events" in the United Nations.

The Soviet bloc voted to place the Algerian question on the U.N. General Assembly agenda last Saturday. This was an explosive decision which led to France's walkout from the assembly and the recall of its permanent delegation from U.N. headquarters in New ork.

The postponement of the proposed trip which was scheduled for later this month, came as internal political troubles and new violence in North Africa threw the already complicated French political situation into further confusion.

Faure and Pinay hoped to sandwich the good will visit to Moscow between the reopening of the French National Assembly Tuesday and the Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva starting Oct. 27.

France was angry because the Soviet joined the nations which voted in favor of United Nations debate on Algeria. This was the fuse which touched off the whole series of crises.

The French National Assembly convenes Thursday after its summer recess and it was certain Faure would meet rough going from the body that voted Pierre Mendes-France out of office last spring because it didnt' like his North African policies.

Faure was in trouble and he knew it. He pleaded for "continuity of government" in a speech Sunday on eve of the assembly meeting.

The decision to recall France's permanent delegation from the United Nations was made at a four-hour cabinet meeting Saturday. France will retain its representative in the Security Council and probably its representative on the disarmament subcommittee.

Secretary of State Jean Medicin announced France's refusal to participate further in the work of the General Assembly and the government's decision to withhold information on France's overseas territories from the United Nations.

France considers Algeria a part of Metropolitan France, and Faure said he ordered the delegation back to Paris to defend the "national dignity."

The French premier and foreign minister had intended to sandwich in the trip between the reopening of the French parliament Tuesday and the Geneva foreign ministers conference Oct. 27.

Observers believed the French decision to postpone the Moscow trip might be intended as a sharp warning to Moscow and the world that France intends to stand firm on the Algerian issue.

Plan Unique Plays For Homecoming At Manchester

The Manchester College annual homecoming, October 14 and 15 will feature two unique plays during each evening's program. The plays are directed by Prof. James Overholt, of the speech and dramatics department.

On tap as the first of the evenings performances will be "The Devil and Daniel Webster", written by Stephen Vincent Benet. With the actors and actresses appearing in tuxedos and formals, this play will be produced "concert" fashion - that is, all the players will appear behind reading stands and present the play through interpretive reading.

This is being done experimentally, stated Professor Overholt, to discover whether or not an audience will react to suggested, rather than positive action. A minimum of movement will be employed, with entrances and exits to be done as surreptitiously as possible.

Marilyn Poe, Columbia City will appear in the cast.

Second play of the evening to be presented will be "The Summoning of Everyman". This play is an adaptation by John Baird of the old English morality play "Everyman". Of about the time of Edward IV, this is one of the few extant morality plays which is worthy of consideration for the present-day stage.

The subtitle of this play reads, "A Treastse how the Hye Fader of Heven sendeth Dethe to somon every creature to come and gyve a counte of theyr lyves in this Worlde".

Comedian Bob Hope May Visit Russia

HOLYWOOD (UP)—Bob Hope, the globe-trotting comedian who has quipped his way into nearly every country of the world, may visit Russia, he said today.

With relations between the U.S. and Russia apparently easier, a plot is afoot for Hope to invade Moscow armed with gag writers.

He leaves for London Nov. 17 to star with Katherine Hepburn in his first foreign-made picture, produced by England's Betty Box.

The story is about an Army captain and a Russian girl he is assigned to keep an eye on. The English moviemakers are trying to clear a location jaunt to the USSR—the first time Hollywood stars would visit that country in recent years.

"Sure, I'd like to go if it's cleared. I'll go any place," said Hope between rehearsals for another picture at Paramount Studios.

"Maybe we should send 'comrade' Hilton," he grinned.

"Of course," he added, "I may be held over for some of the things I've said about Russia.'

The recent Geneva conference may have changed the course of politics and it also changed the ending of Hope's movie. In the comedy Miss Hepburn is arrested by Soviet agents and taken back to Russia. BBut the ending was ended so the agents, not Miss Hepburn, are sent to Siberia for making a mistake.

Meantime, Hope begins his 19th year at Paramount with "That Old Feeling." Until "Seven Little Foys" his movies were mostly gags chain-stitched together. Now he is not only working in a film version of a Broadway play (called "King of Hearts" on the stage), but co-starring with last year's Oscar winner Eva Marie Saint.

"Every comedian needs a change of pace," he said. "I'm going in more for a legit story and sympathetic characters.

"My television show is a change this year, too. Beginning Tuesday I'll do eight shows—one musical, one book show, and the rest revues. Yu have to mix it up. The public can't catch you doing the same thing twice."

He hopes to meet some comics in Russia if and when his English movie goes on location there.

"They must have Russian comedians" he reflected. "Or else where does Gregory Ratoff come from?"

She was also ordered held on charges contained in another affidavit of public intoxication and disorderly conduct which were lodged against her August 2.

She was arrested by North on the earlier charge of being intoxicated and acting in a loud and boisterous manner August 1 in the City Hall. She was released on $2000 recognizance bond but failed to appear for the hearing August 8.

Not Alarmed We Are Deeper In Debt Than Ever Before

WASHINGTON (UP)—A top administration official said today the fact that the public is deeper in debt than ever before is "no cause for alarm."

The official, who did not wish his name disclosed, said he wished the record total of consumer borrowing were smaller. But he emphasized that "the picture is improving."

The Federal Reserve Board reported Friday that for the fourth straight month consumer borrowing hit a new all-time peak, reaching $33,636,000,000 as of Aug. 31. Of this amount $13547000000 represented loans made to buy new and used automobiles.

It was the eighth month in a row that the volume of new loans for cars rose by a record amount. Car loans were the major cause that the installment credit amount of the total consumer debt jumped to a record $26,155,000,000.

LaVerne Smith Asks Divorce In Circuit Court From William Smith

A complaint for divorce was filed in WWhitley County circuit court Monday by LaVerne Lee Smith against William Smith, co-owner of the Crystal Dairy Bar, 603 West Van Buren street.

According to the complaint, the couple was married September 10, 1954 and separated September 26, 1955. The plaintiff also states that she was a resident of Whitley County for six months prior to filing the complaint.

She asks that the court award her permanent custody of a 16-year-old daughter born to her of a previous marriage. She also asks for $45,000 in alimony.

The court approved a request for a restraining order preventing the defendant from molesting or annoying the plaintiff and from disposing of any property pending a hearing of the divorce suit.

rain of seconal, ate a breakfast of cantaloupe and egg, two strips of beef bacon, a slice of whole wheat toast and a glass of skimmed milk.

Mrs. Eisennower was permitted by the doctors to visit with the President for about 15 minutes as he ate breakfast.

Since Mr. Eisenhower suffered a coronary thrombosis here on Sept. 24, tthe medical bulletins from his bedside had been progressively optimistic. But Sunday night, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty announced that the President was feeling "a little tired" and not doing as well as indicated in prior announcements.

After the morning examination and cardiogram, the tension among the White House staff eased.

Hagerty at a news briefing which started shortly before 10 a.m. explained that the physicians told him this morning "that tiredness is not unusual in these cases."

The tiredness — the first slowup reported since the President went to Fitzsimons Army Hospital nine days ago with a coronary thrombosis—came upon him Sunday after he had eaten his supper.

Noticing the fatigue, the President's doctors gave him three-quarters of a grain of seconal, a sedative, and by 8:45 p.m., he was asleep. A report from his suite at 11 p.m. said he was still 'sleeping soundly" without an oxygen tent.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said he hardly thought the President would be subjected to examinations before he awoke.

The news of the slowup was first broken in Boston by Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famous heart specialist. Dr. White came to see the President when he was first stricken and is expected back next Saturday.

Then Hagerty, at 8:55 p.m., issued this bulletin:

"The President is a little tired this evening and did not feel as well as usual.

"Otherwise, his condition is good. His temperature, pulse and blood pressure are normal."

Hagerty acknowledged that it was the first bulletin in days that did not say "progressing satisfactorily without complications."

These have been the key words in all bulletins on the President's progress. Hagerty said the words "without complications" were left out of that bulletin because the doctors "don't know what's causing the tiredness."

Hagerty also admitted that the fatigue represented a change in the President's condition. But he said he was not going beyond the language of the doctors.

The first two weeks after the President's heart attack are the crucial ones because it is during that time that a scar forms and hardens over the damaged muscle tissue in the President's heart.

Dr. White, in Boston, said he did not think the fatigue was anything to be alarmed about, but he said "there may be a change" in the President's treatment if he continues to show fatigue. He did not elaborate on this.

It looked like a good Sunday for the President until after he had eaten dinner. He awakened from a good night's sleep early and enjoyed his breakfast. Mrs. Eisenhower had her breakfast in his room and visited him for 30 minutes.

During the rest of the morning he rested, listened to music on a tape recording machine and had Pfc. Quentin Ferrand, a medical corpsman from Olivet, Mich., read to him from newspapers about the World Series and the Army-Penn State football game.

The noon bulletin on his condition concluded with this paragraph: "As the President enters his second week he continues to be comfortable and cheerful."

Again during Sunday afternoon, he took his usual rest period—actually he is resting all the time but during the rest periods his room is darkened so he can sleep —and listened to more music.

It was after dinner that his doctors—Col. Byron E. Pollock, chief of the heart section at Fitzsimons, and Maj. Gen. Howard Mc.C Snyder—noticed that he was tired Hagerty said he could not pinpoint the time that he became tired.

One electrocardiogram was taken of the President Sunday. For the first five days, electrocardiograms, which indicate how his heart is healing, were taken twice a day. Then they were cut down to one a day.

Dr. White was expected back Saturday to help size up the President's condition after his second crucial week. Dr. White said in Boston that he expected to arrive Saturday which was no change in his plans.

The first All-Star baseball game between the American and National Leagues was played July 6, 1933, in Chicago.

Peron Flies To Exile Sunday In Paraguay

Argentine Authorities Add Expression 'Mentally Unbalanced'

BUENOS AIRES (UP) — Argentine authorities added the expression "mentally unbalanced" today to those of larceny and lust in describing Juan D. Peron, the deposed president who flew Sunday to exile in Paraguay.

Peron climbed into a Paraguayan amphibian plane, took one last look at the country he dominated for 12 years and departed. He had spent the last 13 days in Argentina in virtual imprisonment aboard an ancient gunboat.

Peron's plane, escorted by two fighters of the Argentine air force, landed at the Paraguayan capital city of Asuncion at 5:40 p.m. on the third air journey of his life—he has had a terror of flying since 1946 when a plane in which he was travelling to Cordoba lost a propeller.

The "strongman" was permitted to depart despite a warning from Rear Adm. Alberto Teisaire, Peron's vice president, that the former president was a mentally unbalanced man who would cause "serious trouble" for the regime of Maj. Gen. Eduoardo Lonardi if allowed to leave the country.

Political sources quoted Teisaire as saying the president appeared mentally unbalanced because of his increasing preoccupation with sports and teen-age girls and that his military aides ran the government to an increasing extent while Peron chased golf balls and high school girls.

The government was still deliberately blasting the myth that Peron was Argentina's No. 1 worker. In recent days there have been stories of huge sums of money sent abroad, of a 16-year-old mistress, and of wild parties at a suburban residence.

An official government announcement meanwhile said the provisional government would henceforth govern by decree.

The revolutionary government headed by Lonardi dissolved the Peronista - dominated Congress shortly after it assumed power. It said in a statement that because legislative functions must be carried out, the government will rule by decree until general elections are held.

The government ordered all judges and judiciary officials to consider themselves as temporary officials. It also implied that Peron packed the courts from the Supreme Court on down when it said the government will "study the situation of all judges and officials to achieve a completely independent (judiciary) body."

Autumn Rains Bring Flash Flood To Kansas

New Floods Threaten Mexico

By UNITED PRESS

Heavy autumn rains sent a flash flood swirling through Wichita, Kan., and new floods threatened hurricane-battered Mexico today.

Meanwhile, Los Angeles braced for an eye-smarting "smog red" alert and rains spattered the Plains states from west-central Texas to eastern South Dakota.

More than 100 square blocks were flooded in Wichita when a pounding 8-inch rain sent Cowskin Creek and a drainage ditch over their banks.

Hundreds of persons, including 60 children, had to leave their homes and seek shelter at Red Cross headquarters and an Elementary school Sunday. The water came window-high at some homes and National Guardsmen, Air Force personnel, and Red Cross and civil defense workers aided in the evacuations.

The worst appeared over today. The waters were receding and officials said the situation was under control "unless we get more rain."

The southern Plains of Texas also took a beating from the weather. Thunder and electrical storms crackled over the region and half of the city of Lamesa was plunged into darkness for four hours when lightning hit a power transformer.

Far more serious floods were threatened at devastated Tampico, Mexico. Heavy rains spewed by the killer hurricane Janet sent the Panuco River rising again, threatening thousands of refugees with new disaster just as they were returning to their homes.

Tampico was flooded by hurricane Hilda's rains during most of last month and 36,000 persons still are homeless. But Tampico officials said the latest flood threat might even be worse.

Temperatures across the nation were as much as 83 degrees apart during the last 24 hours. It was a baking 104 at five points in the southwest desert country Sunday, while the temperature fell to 21 early today at Pelston, Mich.

The Riley Presslers Seek Ejection Order Against Gene Carl Faust

Riley M. Pressier and Lola E. Pressler, R 7, filed a suit in Whitley County circuit court Tuesday requesting an order ejecting Gene Carl Faust from an upstairs apartment in the former's home.

In the complaint, the plaintiffs specify that they are the owners of the property and that defendant and family have occupied the apartment since September 6, 1955. In that time, the plaintiffs claim that the defendant has damaged the property in the amount of $25 and owes $40 in rent. The plaintiffs ask for repossession of the apartment and judgment of $100 against the defendant.

Demo Leaders Meet To Plot 1956 Campaign

Unofficially Discuss Political Effects Of President's Illness

CHICAGO (UP) — Democratic leaders from most states in the nation met today to plot 1956 campaign strategy and, unofficially, discuss the political effects of President Eisenhower's illness.

Mr. Eisenhower's illness was not on the official agenda of the two-day meeting of the 29-member Democratic advisory Committee. But it was believed certain that his possible elimination as a 1956 GOP presidential candidate would come up for closed-door discussion.

Some of the Democratic leaders were also expected to take advantage of the meeting by visiting Adlai E. Stevenson here. Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, is scheduled to announce next month whether he will make another bid for the White House.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler was scheduled to lead the discussions at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in the first official meeting of Democratic leaders since Mr. Eisenhower suffered a moderate coronary thrombosis a week ago last Saturday.

Butler appointed the advisory committee last month to advise the national committee on organizational matters and campaign procedures.

Headed by Neil Staebler, Michigan's Democratic state chairman, the committee was scheduled to take up such matters as the recruitment of campaign workers, audio-visual training aids, training conferences, and the raising of volunteers.

One of the party leaders, National Committeeman Kenneth T. Anderson of Kansas, arrived with a flat prediction that Stevenson will throw his hat into the ring next month.

Anderson, who planned to visit Stevenson, said he has been in contact with other potential Democratic candidates and most of them are waiting to see what Stevenson will do.

The Kansas leader said there has been an attempt to pit Govs. Averell Harriman of New York and G. Mennen Williams of Michigan against Stevenson "in the hope it would split the Democratic Prty."

But Anderson said "my personal representatives have talked with Williams and Harriman backers and have been assured that Harriman and Williams have given their word to Stevenson that they will support him at the convention, if Stevenson will start an intensive campaign at once."

Western Big Three Give Russia Notice

MOSCOW W(UP) — The Western Big Three formally notified Russia today that they will refuse to recognize Communist East Germany.

The statement, sent in identical notes to the Soviet Foreign Ministry, was the first formal Western response to the Russian-West German agreement to establish diplomatic relations.

The Western stand first was spelled out last week at New York after a two-day meeting of the Big Three foreign ministers.

The notes were understood to underwrite West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's reservations made at the end of his historic Moscow visit last month. That visit was followed by a Russian announcement granting East Germany full sovereignty.

The notes were reported to make these points:

1. Reaffirmation that the Western Big Three will not recognize any German government except that in Bonn.
2. Germany's frontiers will not be definitely established until a peace treaty is signed with all Germany.
3. A request for the Soviet Union to reassure the West that it will respect the four-power agreement for free communications between West Germany and East Germany.

Salk Prepares Public Tests Of New Vaccine

On Volunteer School Children

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Dr. Jonas E. Salk plans to conduct tests on volunteer school children to learn whether a new version of his vaccine will provide greater immunity to polio.

The University of Pittsburgh scientist disclosed that laboratory tests show that a new vaccine appears more potent than the anti-polio shots now being administered to school children.

Dr. Salk annunced, in an article published in the Allegheny County Medical Society's weekly bulletin, that the vaccine to be tested is basically the same as that now in use, but several different strains have been developed to bolster the vaccine's ability to halt polio.

He will ask Pittsburgh school authorities for permission to test the more powerful vaccines in "certain selected schools," which will include kindergarten pupils and children in the first three grades.

"Our plan is to initiate the new studies within the next few weeks," he said.

It will be the second time in his polio vaccine research that Dr. Salk has called upon Pittsburgh area school children for help. Approximately 15,000 were inoculated in the original tests, which were the basis for a nationwide field trial.

Results of the 1954 tests showed the vaccine was 80 to 90 per cent effective in preventing paralytic polio. Salk had been seeking a vaccine capable of producing 100 per cent immunity, even before the historic announcement of the first vaccine was made at Ann Arbor, Mich., last April 12.

Dr. Salk has indicated that some of the preparations to be tested contain strains of dead polio virus which differ from those used in the licensed product.

It was believed that Dr. Salk may have developed a substitute for the Mahoney strain which some critics contend should have been removed from the Salk vaccine because it was too dangerous for experiment.

But Dr. Salk has maintained that if the virus is killed it is not harmful, regardless of its danger when alive.

However, the scientist has announced he wants to eliminate the Mahoney strain because it does not produce the degree of immunity he seeks.

Fort Wayne Boy Burns To Death

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP)—Richard Pallone, 4, was burned to death when he apparently set a chest of drawers on fire while playing with matches, then hid in a nearby closet.

The blaze broke out Saturday while the boy's father, Anthony, slept in an upstairs bedroom and his mother was out shopping.

The boy's body was found in the blackened clost.

WATCH THAT TANK!

DETROIT —(UP)— A survey of emergency car troubles by the American Automobile Club showed that the number of motorists who ran out of gas and had to call for help in 1954 jumped 54 per cent over 1953, the highest level in history.

Spots near radiators and bright sunlight are poor places for book shelves. Heat and light will fade the covers of books and often warp their bindings.

Maryland, Michigan, Top Two Claimants To National College Crown, Are Victors

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer

Maryland and Michigan, currently the two top claimants to the national college football crown, emerged as impressive victors today from a weekend that stuck pretty close to form — but they faced mighty different prospects.

For Maryland, rated the nation's No. 1 team and looking it in a 20-6 triumph over Baylor, it looks like a downhill run from here to an unbeaten season — starting with a weak Wake Forest team next Saturday.

But for Michigan, now rated No. 2, things are getting tougher fast—starting with a Saturday clash against seventh-rated Army in what figures to be the top game of the weekend. Michigan showed good staying power in whipping Michigan State, 14-7.

Maryland and Michigan led nine of the nation's 10 top-ranked teams in the victory parade Saturday. Ohio State, ranked No. 10, was the only casualty, bowing to surprising Stanford, 6-0.

Maryland didn't have too much trouble with Baylor as quarterback Frank Tamburello pitched two touchdown passes and Dave Nusz passed for the other six-pointer. The Terrapin subs probably will see lots of action this week against Wake Forest, a 46-0 loser to West Virginia, and the path ahead holds no rivals that seem as tough a those Maryland already has passed.

Branoff Scored Twice

Tony Branoff ran to both Michigan touchdowns, one of them set up by an interception and the other by a blocked punt. But Army got set for this weekend's big clash with Michigan by crushing a strong Penn State team, 35-6, as converted All-America end Don Holleder passed for one touchdown and quarterback-sneaked to another.

Here's how the other teams in the top 10 scored their victories:

Third-ranked Georgia Tech whipped Southern Methodist, 20-7, as Toppy Vann scored all three Tech touchdowns; fourth-ranked Oklahoma ran its unbeaten streak to 21 games by downing Pittsburgh, 26-14; fifth-ranked Notre Dame continued unbeaten and unscored on (10 straight wins under Coach Terry Brennan) by downning Indiana, 19-0, as Paul Hornung ran 33 yards to one touchdown and passed to another;

Sixth-ranked UCLA rebounded from its shutout loss to Maryland to go touchdown-mad in a 55-0 romp over Washington State; eighth-ranked Texas Christian opened its bid for the Southwest Conference championship by trounching defending champion Arkansas, 26-0; and ninth-ranked Southern California beat Texas, 19-7, in a Friday night game.

In addition to Stanford's victory over Ohio State, other major upsets saw Tulane blank Northwestern, 21-0, as Ronny Quillian scored two touchdowns; Colgate down Cornell, 21-6; and Clemson beat Georgia for the first time in 41 years, 26-7, in a game that ended in a brawl among players, coaches and fans that required the playing of the National Anthem to break up.

Many Individual Stars

Among the other individual stars of the weekend were:

Larwill Wins 19-3 At Churubusco For 5th Straight Triumph

The Larwill Trojans baseball team won its fifth successive game of the season Friday afternoon, downing Churubusco by the lopsided score of 19-3 on the losers' field.

The Trojans now have a 4-0 record in county play and also have a victory over Cromwell.

Larwill scored four runs in each of the first two innings and also in the fourth and sixth and three in the sevneth to amass their total for the game. In the game, the Trojans had three doubles and one triple and their cause was also helped by five Churubusco errors. The 19 runs were scored on a total of 15 hits and six bases on balls.

The Churbuusco Eagles were allowed only six hits by Tuggle, the Trojan pitcher. They were issued two walks. Tuggle also had nine strike outs.

Reed, Geiger and Lewellyn pitched for Churubusco with Geiger and Conner behind the plate.

Charles Beck, South Whitley coach, and Dave Clapp, also of South Whitley, were the officials.

The Trojans, who are leading the county league with their perfect record for the season, will play at South Whitley Tuesday. Wednesday they will play Jefferson Center at Larwill in a game which was rained out September 27.

The S.S. United States set the world speed record for steamships on its maiden voyage in 1952. I averaged 35.59 knots (about 41 mph) crossing the Atlantic Ocean west to east in three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes.

Snider Smashes Two Homers, Double To Lead Dodgers To 5-3 Victory Over Yanks Sunday

(Editor's note: Duke Snider smashed two homers and a double to lead the Dodgers to a 5-3 victory over the Yankees Sunday as Brooklyn went ahead in the World Series, three games to two. His two homers gave him a total of nine in World Series play and he now ranks behind only Babe Ruth, who hit 15, and Lou Gehrig, who hit 10, in World Series competition. In the following dispatch, he tells how he did it.)

By DUKE SNIDER
As Told To The United Press

BROOKLYN (UP) —The first homer I hit Sunday made me feel good but the second one made me feel the proudest guy in the world.

Before I came to the ballpark someone said to me I had a chance of tying Joe DiMaggio's performance of eight home runs in World Series play.

Ever since I was a kid, Joe has always been an inspiration to me. Oh, I never got a chance to talk to him very much. We just said hello once or twice, I think. But I always considered him one of th greatest ball players ever to put on a uniform.

A Great Thrill

So you can get some idea of how I felt when I hit my second homer of the game off Bob Grim in the fifth inning and passed DiMag's record. You bet I knew it, and it'll go down as one of the greatest thrills I ever had in my life.

Maybe, if I play in another series or two I might catch up with Lou Gehrig's record of 10 homers but I don't think I'll ever get close to Babe Ruth's record of 15. That would really take some doing.

Don't let any one tell you that fellow Grim doesn't have good stuff. He threw me one helluva pitch when I hit that second homer in the fifth inning. It was as good a curve ball as I've ever seen and I was lucky to hit it.

The homer I hit in the third inning was off a curve ball, also. He threw me one of those curves high. The other low.

Big Job To Do

Everybody is asking me how come I've suddenly broken out in a rash of four homers during the series when the last homer I hit during the regular season was on Labor Day. All I can say is that I wasn't really shooting for homers after we clinched the pennant but when the series came along, I realized there was a big job to do.

And I'm confident, like all the rest of the fellows on this club, that we're going all the way this time.

I understand the Yankees are fixing to start two left-handers against us in the next two days. Well, Whitey Ford and Tommy Byrne each beat us once, but we're going to catch up with one of those southpaws this time.

I just feel it in my bones.

Lane - De Marco TV Bout Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) — Southpaw Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., will continue his busy campaign for a shot at the lightweight crown tonight in a TV 10-rounder with ex-champion Paddy DeMarco at St. Nicholas Arena.

Sixth-ranking Lane, who won 10 of his 11 fights this year, is favored at 7-5 to whip the "Brooklyn Billygoat." Lane, 22, is favored because of his speed and aggressiveness. He is a comparatively light puncher, like DeMarco.

Kenny's only defeat this year was on a disputed split decision to Ralph Dupas, No. 2, in the latter's home town, New Orleans. His 34-4-0 record includes only five knockouts. He was stopped twice.

Meanwhile, DeMarco — who held the 135-pound crown last year from March 5 to Nov. 17—won two of four bouts this year. His 70-14-2 record includes but three kayoes.

Fearless Fraley's Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — This could be the long-awaited day on which "next year" finally comes to Brooklyn.

Through years of bitter disappointment the war cry of "Wait 'til next year" has been the almost perennial promise of the Flatbush faithful. Seven times before they got almost to the summit before they were frustrated in the World Series.

But only once before have they been as close as they are today when they go out needing one win the remaining two games to take that world championship for the first time. They stood at this same spot in 1952 — but lost the next two games.

It's been a long, long wait, as for 55 years the Dodgers knew nothing but frustration. That's how long they've been waiting to win a World Series.

First Try In 1916

Boston's burly Red Sox applied the crusher for the first time back in 1916. That was the year when Uncle Wilbert Robinson's heroes, men like Fred Merkle, Zack Wheat—an outfielder named Casey Stengel — Rube Marquard and Nap Rucker lost by four games to one.

Four years later they tried again, with a gent named Burleigh Grimes added to the cast. So Cleveland threw the only triple play in series history at them in beating them, five games to two.

The wait got longer then and it wasn't until 1941 that the guys from the Gowanus finally rolled into the series again with a band of battlers which included such as Mickey Owen, Hugh Casey, "Koiby" Higbe, Whit Wyatt, Dolph Camilli, Billy Herman, Joe Medwick, Pete Reiser—and a sprout named PeeWee Reese.

They lost, four games to one, to the New York Yankees. Those are the same Yankees who beat them in four more series—1947, 1949, 1952 and 1953—and who will try to stop them again today.

Lost In 1947

Reese had been joined by such of the current crop as Gil Hodges, Jackie Robinson and Carl Furillo when they tumbled, by a heartbreaking four games to three, in 1947.

Of the guys bringing joy to Flatbush today as they try to cap a three-straight game comeback with that long-awaited complete victory, Roy Campanella, Carl Erskine, Don Newcombe, and Duke Snider were among those subdued, four games to one, in 1949. Sandy Amoros had joined the disillusioned Dodger cast which lost, four games to three, in 1952. And Russ Meyer, Johnny Podres and Junior Gilliam were in that 4 to 2 rout in 1953.

But this is 1955, the Dodgers lead three games to two going into action at Yankee Stadium, and almost everybody on the club has reason for revenge. This could be that "next year" which some thought would never come!

Five Upsets In Six NFL Games This Weekend

By TIM MORIARTY
United Press Sports Writer

Otto Graham, Cleveland's returning warrior, was back on the beam today and so were the defending champion Browns following another wild weekend of upheavals in the National Football League.

Six games were played Saturday and Sunday, with five ending in upsets. The Browns, with Graham chucking passes in his old-time style, snapped a five-game losing streak by walloping the San Francisco Forty-Niners, 38-3, while the suddenly-aroused Green Bay Packers whipped the Chicago Bears, 24-3, for their second straight upset of the new season.

In other Sunday games, the Chicago Cardinals ignored the odds as they handed the New York Giants a 28-17 pasting and the Los Angeles Rams, a 14-point favorite, needed a last second field goal by Les Richter to defeat the Pittsburgh Steelers, 27-26.

Surprises On Saturday

Two Saturday night games also wound up in surprise decisions. The Washington Redskins took over undisputed possession of first place in the Eastern Division by edging the Philadelphia Eagles, 31-30, while the Baltimore Colts remained in a tie with Los Angeles and Green Bay for first place in the Western Division by turning back the Detroit Lions, 28-13.

Graham, recently coaxed out of retirement, scored one touchdown and set up two other scores with passes in leading the Browns to their victory over the Forty-Niners at San Francisco.

A strong defense helped the Packers turn back the Bears in their clash at Green Bay. The Bears gained only 85 yards rushing, while Tobin Rote sparked Green Bay's offense by plunging for one score and tossing two touchdown passes.

Alex Webster kept the Giants in the game by scoring once on a 16-yard run and setting up another touchdown with a 71-yard gallop. However, New York's attack was hampered by four pass interceptions and two lost fumbles.

The Rams were trailing the Steelers, 26-24, when a 30-yard pass from Norm Van Brocklin to Bob Boyd, plus a costly Pittsburgh penalty for a personal, carried Los Angeles to the Steelers' 28-yard line. With only two seconds remaining, Richter then booted his game-winning field goal.

Pittsburgh Coach Walt Kiesling was so incensed over the crucial, last-minute penalty called against his team that he publicly berated an official after the game and had to be led from the field by assistant coaches.

Connie Mack Fractures Hip In Fall Saturday

PHILADELPHIA (UP)— Dr. Ilarion I. Gopadze planned to examine the fractured right hip of Connie Mack, 92-year-old former owner and manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, today to decide whether an operation or "something more conservative" would be necessary to mend the injury.

Attendants at Presbyterian Hospital said Mack, who was injured Saturday afternoon in a fall at his Germantown apartment, rested "comfortably" during the night.

Mack, who fell while getting out of bed after his usual afternoon nap, was taken to Chestnut Hill Hospital where X-rays disclosed the fracture. He was removed to Presbyterian Hospital where Dr. Gopadze, the Mack family doctor, is staff physician.

The physician said he wasn't sure whether an operation would be necessary but that, in any case, he would not decide until Mack had rested for the weekend. He said that "barring complications, we can look forward to a speedy recovery."

Mack, whose full name is Cornelius McGillicuddy, was active in baseball for 71 years and the Athletics' only manager until he retired in favor of Jimmy Dykes in 1951. He was named honoary board chairman of the Kansas City A's after the Mack family sold the team to Arnold Johnson of Chicago, last Nov. 4.

Under Mack's 54-year reign, the Philadelphia Athletics won nine American League pennants and five world championships. The club began to decline during the depression when Mack was forced to sell his top player talent to make expenses. Slumping attendance and poor teams since then resulted in the sale of the franchise.

Rites For Mrs Mary Rarick Will Be Held Tuesday Afternoon

Was Born In Switzerland; Came To U. S. At Age 14

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 1:30 p.m, for Mrs. Mary B. Rarick, 87, whose unexpected death came Saturday afternoon at 3:15 at the Bakle Nursing Home. The rites will be held at the J. A. DeMoney and Son Funeral Home, the Rev. Verlin O. Vernon officiating, Burial will be in South Park cemetery.

Born Marie Beta Helblig in Switzerland, November 20, 1867, Mrs. Rarick came to the United States with her parents, Rudolph and Margaret Spaetic Helblig, and the family settled on a farm near the S. J. Peabody farm south of Columbia City.

May 13, 1888, she was married in Noble county to John VanSwearingen who died December 25, 1921. October 25, 1923 she married Isaac Rarick of Noble county who died October 12, 1924. A resident of Whitley and Noble counties, Mrs. Rarick had been a resident of this city since October 1915.

She is survived by one brother, Charles Rarick of Roanoke and a number of nieces and nephews. Mrs. Rarick had long been a member of Trinity Methodist church.

Friends are being received at the J. A. DeMoney and Son Funeral home.

Cabinet

does President Eisenhower. But as presidents grow stronger their cabinets become weaker.

The cabinet cannot compare with the National Security Council as an institution of government. The council was created by law. It has wide and specific authority to advise the President on the integration of domestic foreign and military policies relating to security. That covers just about everything.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon sits at the cabinet table—and just now presides—as an invited guest of the President. But Nixon sits at the council table — and just now presides—because that is the law.

The libraries sag with memoirs of cabinet officers telling of tiresome, trivial sessions and of many presidents who sought advice outside the cabinet circle, often failing to advise members of what was coming next.

It is history that Woodrow Wilson did not read his 1917 war message to the cabinet before its delivery to Congress. Lincoln was guilty of numerous such by-passes.

There has been much talk of legislating bone and sinew into the cabinet, but nothing has come of it.

Most Of Nation Will Have Colder Than Usual October

WASHINGTON (UP)—Most of the nation will have colder-than-usual weather during October.

But the Weather Bureau predicted above-normal average temperatures in the South and near-normal in the North Atlantic states, Ohio Valley and Far West.

"Coldest weather is indicated in the northern Plains and warmest in the extreme southeast," the bureau said in its 30-day forecast.

Precipitation—snow or rain—is expected to exceed normal over most of the country except for subnormal amounts west of the Continental Divide and along the Gulf and Soutn Atlantic coasts, the forecast said.

THE Front Page of a newspaper brings you the world. You can see just so much of your community from your home. But each day a big window opens up. It is your newspaper and through it you may see many things. They're amazing, inspiring or informative. Some, frankly, are dingy. But even they, in their way, help avoid pitfalls of life. We live but once. The daily opening of the big window interprets life, draws you out as a part of it.

Clugston Block

O. Flox family and ownership now is vested in a corporation.

Over the Flox store are located the office of the Columbia Township trustee and two apartments.

To Retain Name

The hotel property which joins the Flox store on the south, will retain the name of the Clugston hotel, according to Mr. Daseler, the owner.

Remodeling of the hotel front in the near future and installation of a new marquee next year are contemplated, along with a new heating plant in the hotel basement to serve the public and guest rooms with the cessation of heating service from the city utilities plant next spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Daseler, new owners of the hotel property, have operated the Clugston Hotel since 1950. Mr. Daseler had previously been in hotel management with his brother-in-law, Elmer Lohman, at Marion, and later at St. Johns, Michigan.

The hotel had been leased by D. B. Clugston heirs for many years. The building was owned by Mr. Clugston, later by his sons, Ben and Bert Clugston. Herbert Clugston of St. Cloud, Minn., and Mrs. Ella Smith, wife of Rev. Ben Smith of Warsaw, children of Benjamin Clugston, and Mrs. Helen Clugston of Columbia City and her children, Mrs. Lois Craven of Miami, Fla., and David Clugston of Fort Wayne, widow and children of Bert Clugston, held title to the hotel property until the sale, just consummated.

The hotel, known to several generations of the traveling public as the Clugston House, had been operated since the turn of the century by Mr. and Mrs. Ben Warren, Edward Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lohman who now reside at Lake Wawasee, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Daily now living at Peru. Mr. Daily sold his lease to Mr. Daseler in 1950 when Mr. Daseler took over management of the hotel business.

Quarrel Ends In Fatal Shooting

MUNCIE, Ind. (UP)—A quarrel at a Muncie drive-in restaurant Saturday night ended in the fatal shooting of Holland A. Upchurch, 39, Indianapolis machinist.

Held on an open charge of murder at the Anderson jail is Johnni Jomonez, 18, who police say signed a statement admitting the shooting.

Jiminez' statement said he and a friend stopped at the drive-in for a soda. A few minutes later Jiminez said, the waitress handed him a note written in a "language I didn't understand."

He checked several cars to find the writer of the note. As he approached the Upchurch car Jiminez said, "he jumped out and hit me."

According to the statement, Jiminez then pulled a gun and fired in the air to "warn" Upchurch. Upchurch jumped on him and Jiminez shot him "two or three" times. He died half an hour later.

World Series

Sunday's loser, beat the Dodgers in the first game, 6-5. He won 18 games while losing 7 for the American League champions.

Ready for Tuesday Too

Until an hour before game time Alston was undecided on whether to start Spooner or Don Newcombe, the Brooks' 20-game winner who was the losing pitcher in the series opener last Wednesday. Newcombe, however, has a sore shoulder.

Both managers had their pitching plans set if a seventh game should be necessary Tuesday. If it is, it will be southpaw Johnny Podres, winner of the third game, against another left, Tommy Byrne winner of the second game.

Thus Stengel was going with his two southpaws who turned back the right-handed power-packed Dodgers in the first two games at the stadium. When the series scene shifted to Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on Friday, it was a different story, with the Dodgers winning all three games as Casey started right-handers against them.

But Stengel—and the results of the first two games bore him out—figures that southpaws have a better chance against Brooklyn in big Yankee Stadium than in little Ebbets Field.

Alston went with the same lineup he used for the last three games. That meant Sandy Amoros stayed in leftfield and Junior Gilliam at second base. Uusually when the Dodgers face southpaws, Gilliam, a switch hitter goes to left with Don Zimmer, a right-handed hitter, taking over second base with the left-handed swinging Amoros going to the sidelines.

But Amoros has been going great guns since he was put in for the third bame and his home run with a teammate on base Sunday go the Brooks off to a winning start.

Stengel Juggles Lineup

Stengel juggled his lineup as rightfielder Hank Bauer, who has a pulled thigh muscle, returned to rightfield.

He had shortstop Phil Rizzuto leading off with second baseman Billy Martin batting second. They had been eighth and seventh in the batting order, respectively. Bauer will hit fifth with third baseman Gil McDougald batting third and catcher Yogi Berra in the cleanup spot.

With a southpaw going for the Dodgers, Stengel loaded his lineup with as many right-handed hitters as possible. Bill Skowron was sent to first base and Bob Cerv, who hit a pinch-hit homer, to centerfield. Skowron will bat sixth and Cerv seventh with Elston Howard dropped down to the eighth slot.

Thus Berra and Ford will be the only left-handed hitters against Spooner.

It was a warm, sunny day with a breeze blowing in front leftfield. The bleacher seats in the huge stadium filled early, but the reserved and box seats, which were sold out before the series started, were slow in filling up. However, the crowd was expected to approach or exceed 65,000.

The play-by-play:

Dodgers First

Gilliam lined to Howard on the second pitch.

Reese was called out on strikes.

Snider, with the count at three-two struck out, swinging at a low pitch.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Yankees First

Rizzuto, working to a three-two count, walked on a high pitch.

Newcombe started to warm up for Brooklyn.

Menon Of India Calls On France To Return To The United Nations

By BRUCE W.W MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—India's V.K. Krishna Menon, an acknowledged leader of the powerful Arab-Asian group which fought successfully to put the Algerian question on the agenda of the General Assembly, called upon France today to return to the United Nations.

French Prime Minister Edgar Faure ordered his entire delegation to return to Paris after the General Assembly voted, 28-27, last Friday to put the Algerian issue up for debate. The French contend that Algeria is an integral part of metropolitan France and that the U.N. is prohibited from interference in domestic affairs of any country.

For the second day, the 10-place French desk in the assembly hall was vacant. Krishna Menon said that despite this, he wanted to assure the French that the motive raising the Algerian questionwas in raising the Algerian question was "not in the slightest degree intended as a slight to the French government."

The Indian ascetic, final speaker in the assembly's annual policy debate, delivered a rambling review of world affairs in which he:

Called upon the major powers to "throw the hydrogen bomb away." As far as India is concerned, he said, the U.N. is "fully committed to the total prohibition of the atomic weapon."

Saluted President Eisenhower's proposal for an exchange of military blueprints and aerial inspecand said "it must be a matter of relief and congratulations for all of us that the other party concerned, the USSR, has also expressed the view that in principle there is no objection."

U. S. Carries Food, Medicine To Flood Victims

Provides Lifeline For Hundreds

TAMPICO, Mexico (UP)— U.S. Navy helicopters and Air Force C46s carrying food and medicines provided a lifeline today for hundreds of persons marooned throughout the Gulf Coast zone flooded by the big Panuco and Tamesi rivers.

An area of 30,000 square miles was reported flooded in the wake of two hurricanes with the water still rising at the rate of two inches per hour. Tropical storms Gladys and Hilda last month took almost 300 lives and hundreds of others are still missing. At least 75,000 persons were reported homeless.

The 14 helicopters arrived Saturday afternoon on the aircraft carrier Saipan with huge stores of food and medicines for the stricken port city of Tampico, which has been inundated for 32 days.

A fleet of C46s were shuttling between Harlingen and Ellington Air Force bases in Texas to the stricken area. They carried flour, rice, beans, milk, cheese butter and canned meats for the thousands of homeless.

Rear Adm. M. P. Miles, Navy relief director for the area, said he had "never seen a disaster of such proportions."

Eisenhower Gives Nixon His Vote Of Confidence

President Shows Satisfactory Progress

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower gave Vice President Richard M. Nixon a vote of confidence today in his conduct of the government during the Chief Executive's illness.

The "fatigue" that possessed the President Sunday disappeared with a night of good sleep and turned out to be restiveness at having to lie in bed more than physical tiredness. Examinations showed his recovery from a heart attack Sept. 24 is back on schedule.

This was strengthened today by the first bulletin of the day on the President's condition, issued by Mr. Eisenhower's doctors at Fitzsimons Army Hospital at 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST).

They reported the President had "another good night" and awoke at 5:30 a.m. after a full eight hours of sleep feeling rested and refreshed. Again the physicians said Mr. Eisenhower was showing satisfactory progress and that there were no indications of any complications.

This was similar to Monday's reports after the brief scare over the touch of "tiredness" reported the night before.

In fact, Mr. Eisenhower did

French Troops Equipped With Modern Arms Battle Tribesmen In March Of Vengeance

By WILBUR LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent

FEZ, Morocco (UP)—Sweating French troops equipped with modern cannon, tanks and jet planes battled savage Berber tribesmen today in a march of vengeance across the dusty slopes of the Atlas Mountains.

The French were driving the rebels slowly backward toward the border of Spanish Morocco but new reports rolled in of the bearded tribesmen galloping into native villages in new orgies of rape and murder against pro-French Moroccans.

It was a battle of modern weapons against the tribesmen's long rifles and swords but the red clay foothills of the Atlas Mountains gave the rebels the advantage of mobility. They further harassed the French with roadblocks and trenches.

Plane Hit 25 Times

There were isolated battles between men armed with old-fashioned rifles and modern jet fighters and bombers. One bomber returned to base with 25 bullet holes in its tail and fuselage.

The rebellion against French rule in the protectorate came soon after Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Moulay Arafa fled his throne to the safety of international Tangier. The rebels said the French let him go without setting up the regency council they had been promised.

The death toll in fighting of the past three days was estimated at home than 200. The official figures were only 24 dead but some garrisons were still cut off and French troops have been unable to reach the scene of some reported massacres.

Long French columns snaked through the hill country past Berber villages of mud and straw and gas cans left over from the war, heading into the hill country to seek out and destroy the enemy. The French wore modern battled dress; the rebels long flowing robes of grey and tan and cowls which hid their faces.

Reports today indicated the French had regained control of the situation, and Brig. Gen. Henri Bertron, commanding the First Military District, said, "with reinforcements arriving we have enough troops to handle the situation."

7 Children In Family Believed To Have Polio

May Have Caught Disease At Funeral Of Grandfather

MONTEREY, Ind. (UP) — Mrs. Francis Ruschau, whose seven children are all hospitalized for polio observation, said today the youngsters might have caught the disease at their grandfather's funeral.

Mrs. Ruschau's five daughters and two sons, ranging in age from 6 to 18 years, are all in a South Bend, Ind., children's hospital. One of them, 10-year-old Margaret, definitely has polio, doctors said. Three others are suspect cases, but the remaining three may be released soon.

The farm wife revealed that she and her husband passed up a chance to let their 6-year-old daughter, Dorothy, receive a Salk vaccine inoculation last spring because "we just didn't know how it would work out."

Stayed Near Home

The children had rarely left their home community during the past few months until their maternal grandfather died two weeks ago, the mother said.

"We took the children to his home in another part of the county and to the funeral," she said. "My husband and I believe that is the only place they could have been infected."

Last Thursday, Margaret was admitted to the Northern Indiana Children's Hospital. Two more were hospitalized on Friday and the remaining four of the Ruschau brood joined their brothers and sisters Saturday.

Mother Was Horrified

"We were horrified," the mother said. "We had read about the Illinois family whose children were polio victims a couple of weeks ago and we considered ourselves so fortunate that nothing like that happened to us."

(Mrs. Ruschau referred to the Keron Walsh family of Durand, Ill. Eight of the 14 Walsh children caught polio, two of them the bulbar type. All survived.)

But the distraught Ruschaus were comforted by the assurance that none of their children had paralytic polio and none was in serious condition.

Hospital superintendent Dr. John C. Van Metre said laboratory tests on all the children but Margaret are not yet conclusive, but he hoped "we may be shooting them out of here in a day or so."

Cement Truck Driver Hurt As Vehicle Upsets

George Burns Has Neck Injuries

George Burns, 41, of North Webster, suffered a neck injury and cuts and bruises Monday afternoon when the ready-mix cement truck he was driving overturned northwest of South Whitley.

Mr. Burns, an employee at the Carey Construction Company for about five years, was westbound on the county blacktop road, which leaves South Whitley at the trailer factory. According to Danny Holler, foreman at the ready-mix plant, the accident happened at about 1:30 p.m. at the crossroad by the Harbert Richards farm. Mr. Holler stated he did not know the cause of the accident, and Burns was not able to explain exactly what had happened either. One report was that a tire had blown out, but Mr. Holler stated all tires were still inflated.

The foreman reported that a wheel of the truck had apparently run off the road on the north side, and the heavy vehicle then veered back into the center of the road, crosswise, and rolled completely over, coming to rest on its side.

The truck was loaded with cement at the time, and the gross weight was estimated at about 12 tons. The mixer on the truck and the truck itself were totally destroyed.

Mr. Burn was brought to the Whitley County Hospital in the Miller Ambulance. His condition was reported as "fairly good" this morning.

New School Will Be Discussed At Wolf Lake Meeting

This meeting will begin with a potluck supper at 6:30, and the general meeting will convene at about 8:00. The meeting will be open to anybody interested.

At the present time, the Wolf Lake school corporation is in the process of organizing a holding company and is selling shares of stock at $10.00 each to raise a "hoped for $2,000" with which preliminary, incidental expenses can be paid. A report of the progress made at this stage will be made.

Members of the advisory board, Don Edwards, chairman; Harold Seymoure, and Carl Huntsman, are selling the shares of stock. The holding company will finance the building of the school, and persons buying the $10 shares will have the money returned to them when the school is paid for.

$15 Missing After Break-In At Dues Shop

Money Taken From Coin Machines Monday Night; Attempt At A&W

An estimated $15 was missing from two coin operated machines Tuesday morning at Dues Coffee Shop, 314 West Van Buren street, after city and State Police received a reported break-in to the establishment some time Monday night. The theft was discovered about 5:30 a.m. Tuesday when the owner, Joe Dues, opened the back door of the restaurant.

Both a juke box and a cigarette machine had been broken into and the money taken from the coin boxes. Dues noticed the theft when he entered and found the cigarette machine had been dragged across the floor about 10 feet from its usual position.

He reported the break-in to city police and also to State Police. City policeman John North and Technician Howard Lightfoot and Trooper Norman Pierce are investigating.

North said that nothing else in the coffee shop appeared to be disturbed. He said that whoever commited the theft used a spoon, knife, meat cleaver and an ice pick from the shop in breaking into the machines. The juke box front door was opened so neatly, he said, that it only had one small dent in it. A similar job was done on the cigarett machine.

North said that someone gained entrance into the restaurant by prying a screen from an unlatched rear window and opening it. Dues told police that he closed the establishment at about 8 p.m. Monday. He said that he usually checks the shop later in the evening, but that he failed to do so last night.

The officials were also investigating a second near break-in which was evidently foiled when the culprits were scared away from the A. and W. Root Beer stand on U.S. highway 30 west. The stand, which is closed for the winter, is operated by Floyd Baker, a teacher at Cromwell school.

A hole was broken around the latch in a rear window of the stand, but police could not find anything missing and it was believed that the person or persons had not entered the place. Foot tracks leading down the dirt embankment in the rear of the stand appeared as if who ever made them was in a hurry, North said.

The officials are continuing the investigation of the theft and as yet have no leads or suspects, they said.

State Law On Vehicle Turn Signals Given

A new State Law which requires the installation of directional turning signals on certain vehicles went into effect this month.

The law, which was passed by the '89th General Assembly earlier this year, requires, as of October 1, the use of such signals on all vehicles except farm tractors and farm implements and motor cycles and motor-driven cycles. The majority of passenger cars are also excluded by the requirements of the law.

The law specifically requires that all other vehicles in use on a highway, and which measure more than 24 inches from the center of the top of the steering post to the left outside limit of the body, cab or load or which measure more than 14 feet from the point of the steering post to the rear limit of the body or load, must have directional turning signals at both the front and rear of the vehicles. The latter measurement applies to any single vehicle or to any combination of vehicles.

The signals may be of any shade of colored light between white and amber and must be visible from a distance of 100 feet from the vehicle in "normal sunlight".

A section of another law passed by the assembly prohibits the sale or operation of "any motor vehicle, trailer or semi-trailer" registered in the state and manufactured or assembled after January 1, 1956, unless it is equipped with mechanical or electrical turn signals meeting the above requirements. This requirement does not apply to any motor cycle or motor-driven cycle.

Arms Delivery To Egypt Won't Relax Tension

Secretary Dulles Tells Molotov

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today he has told Russian Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov that delivery of arms to Egypt would not contribute to relaxing world tensions.

Dulles said he voiced the warning during two talks with Molotov in New York last week.

Dulles conferred on the Egyptian arms issue Monday with British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan. Western diplomats are concerned that the proposed sale of Communist arms to Egypt will encourage more fighting between Egypt and Israel.

Egypt recently announced that it had agreed to buy arms from Communist Czechoslovakia. It maintained it took the action only after the United States and other Western powers had turned down its plea for arms to defend itself.

Dulles disclosed his talk with Molotov at a news conference. He also appealed anew for support of his proposal for the United Nations to underwrite security guarantees in the tense Middle Eastern area.

Dulles was optimistic about the prospects for President Eisenhower's recovery from his recent heart attack.

Dulles said there was every reason to anticipate that he would be able to talk with the President on any matters which might become urgent in the field of foreign affairs.

But the secretary emphasized that so far no emergency has developed in the foreign affairs field and that there has been no cause for alarm.

Asked when he might go to Denver to see Mr. Eisenhower, Dulles said two factors are involved—the President's health and a need to go to discuss any urgent matter.

Indiana Governmental Departments Will Move To Nine-Story Building Near Statehouse

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—In a few weeks eight or 10 Indiana governmental departments will begin moving from their cramped, makeshift offices to a recently-leased nine-story building near the Statehouse.

William Clarkson, director of state works and supply, said the Employment Security Division will be the first to move about Nov. 1-5. Remodeling of the former furniture store is due to be finished soon after that, and the building should be filled by Dec. 1.

"We've given this project emergency priority," Clarkson said, "but we haven't decided on all of the departments to be moved."

Employment Security, which pays out unemployment compensation, locates jobs and maintains records, has spilled over into two large rental properties, but still is hard pressed for space. It will occupy about 60 per cent of the space in the new building, Clarkson said.

Others to Move

That will leave about 50,000 square feet, enough room for about nine smaller offices. These will include the Employes Retirement Board, Medical Registration Board, Nurses Board, Pharmacy Board and Office of Traffic Safety. Most of them now occupy scattered rental space in the downtown area.

"We also hope to move some of the departments now located in makeshift plywood offices in the Statehouse corridor," Clarkson said.

The Statehouse, built for beauty not utility has long been bulg-in but not utility, has long been bulging at the seams. To keep pace with expanding services, the state has been forced to rent outside offices for more than $400,000 yearly.

Repeatedly, pleas for an appropriation to build a new state office building for an estimated 5 million dollars have given way to more urgent demands for state funds.

Basement Is Cramped

Departments still critically pressed for room include the Motor Vehicles Bureau, now sandwiched between stuffed owls, skeletons and other relics which go to make up a museum in the Statehouse basement.

"There's no hope for moving the Motor Vehicle Department to a more spacious location in the near future," Clarkson said.

But he said the museum may be moved to one of the state parks, probably Brown County, where exhibits could be maintained properly. That would give Motor Vehicles more room.

The state has a four-year lease on the new annex for $42,000 a year, Clarkson said. This will save e state money in the long run.des the state money in the long run, despite remodeling cost, he said.

Podres Clinches Brooklyn's 8th Try For Title

Hodges Drives In Two Runs In Deciding Game

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, crippled by the loss of Jackie Robinson, called on 23-year-old Johnny Podres today in an attempt to win their first World Series.

Facing the New York Yankees in the seventh and deciding game in big Yankee Stadium, the young southpaw carried Brooklyn's hopes for triumph in its eighth try for the title.

Opposing Podres was another southpaw, 35-year-old Tommy Byrne, whom the Yankees rescued from the obscurity of the minor leagues just a little more than a year ago.

Byrne beat the Dodgers on a five hitter, 4-2, in the second game of the series at the stadium, while Podres turned back the Yankees in the third game, and the first at Ebbets Field, 8-3.

Although hurt by the loss of Robinson, the Dodgers received some cheering news when their home run slugger, Duke Snider, who popped a muscle in his left knee Monday while catching a fly ball, would be able to play.

"I'm all right," Snider said curtly, but it was obvious that he was worried over his left knee.

"But he'll start and go as long as he can," Manager Walter Alston of the Dodgers said.

Aly Khan Begins Second Courtship Of Rita Hayworth

PARIS (UP)—Prince Aly Khan began his second courtship of actress Rita Hayworth today with a midnight champagne supper and an hours-long tete a tete behind the drawn curtains of her hotel suite.

The dashing prince told friends he planned to woo the red-haired actress with a full schedule of theater plays, night clubs and ballets and a side trip to the Eiffel Tower for young Princess Yasmin, their daughter.

Aly was almost ecstatic over his daughter when Rita showed him the child sleeping in a hotel room converted into a nursery.

"She's terrific, simply wonderful," Aly cried, "I can hardly wait for her to wake up and play with me."

Both Rita and Aly were smiling and happy after their first reunion and Paris gossip insisted a reconciliation might be in sight following the breakup of Rita's marriage with singer Dick Haymes.

De Marco Outroughs Lane For Decision

NEW YORK (UP) — Ex-champion Paddy DeMarco, who outroughed contender Kenny Lane Monday night for a split decision, declared today, "I'm shootin' straight for the lightweight championship again."

His next fight may be at Los Angeles with Don Jordan, California state champ in late October or early November.

DeMarco, the "Brooklyn Billy-goat," used a headlong attack to the body to upset southpaw Lane of Muskegon, Mich., before 1,700 in their television 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena.

Lane, sixth ranking contender and the 11-5 favorite, weighed 140½ pounds; DeMarco, 141.

It was a dull bout with no knockdowns. Lane's nose began bleeding in the fifth round, and DeMarco suffered a dash on his swollen left cheek in the seventh.

It was Lane's second defeat in 12 bouts this year, and his fourth in 39 professional fights. DeMarco, 27, registered his 71st victory in 87 scraps.

Ray Eliot Enjoys Ride In Clouds

By ED SAINSBURY
United Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (UP) — Ray Eliot knows the football bubble he's blown up at Illinois will bust pretty quick, but he can't help enjoying a ride in the clouds at the moment.

"We won't be any contender for the championship," he said today, "but at least we've had some good games, and maybe we'll have some more."

Eliot's eleven, which last year failed to win a Big Ten game and beat only Syracuse along the nine game schedule, so far is undefeated this season in two starts with triumphs over California and Iowa State.

Each victory came as somewhat a surprise to the veteran coach, beginning his 14th season with the Illini, because he completely revamped his line in practice, putting reserves from last year in strange positions to get the benefit of as much experience as possible.

Can Keep Improving

"What we've been trying to do," he said, "is to get our football players in the lineup. We've made our mistakes and we've got our weaknesses. We're green in a lot of places. But if we can keep improving, maybe we wont' disgrace ourselves."

The major talent displayed by Eliot's eleven so far has been speed. Even the line, a trifle larger than Illinois teams in the recent past, has good speed and has been blocking expertly.

Though sophomore Rod Hanson has started both Illini games at end, Sophomore fullback Ray Nitschke proved the biggest surprise among the newcombers. Saturday against Iowa State he scored three touchdowns and made 88 yards rushing.

First Time At Fullback

"That was Nitschke's first at fullback," Eliott said, "and he did very well. But we know he's not that great. But he's a substantial boy and we know he will develop.

"We've only played two games, and perhaps we haven't played against the best teams. Wait until we play a good team. This is the week we get our test."

This Saturday the Illini travel to Ohio State to face the defending conference champions while in other Big Ten games Wisconsin plays at Purdue, Indiana at Iowa and Minnesota at Northwestern. Non-league affairs match Notre Dame at Miami, Fla., Friday night, Stanford at Michigan State and Army at Michigan.

Wiley Batters Linton 43-0

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Lloyd Robbs romped to three touchdowns to lead Terre Haute Wiley to a 43-0 battering of inexperienced Linton Monday night in a skimpy Indiana high school football card.

Wiley thus moved to within a half game of Sullivan's Western Conference lead and remained on the state's list of major unbeaten and untied crews.

In the West NIHSC, Gary Emerson destroyed Gary Wallace's perfect record with a 13-0 defeat. Wallace was No. 9 in last week's United Press Coaches Poll.

Fort Sill Seeks 17th Straight Win

FORT SILL Okla. (UP)—The Fort Sill Cannoneers, defending service champions, seek their 17th straight victory this weekend against Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D.C. Fort Sill is sparked by former Oklahoma University backs Buck McPhail and Merrill Green.

210 Eligible

BALTIMORE (UP)—The Maryland Jockey Club revealed Tuesday after final eligibility payments were made that 210 two-year-olds remain eligible for the 33rd running of the Pimlico Futurity on Nov. 19. The stake will be worth $80,850 if 12 of the 210 horses reach the post.

Colts Good Team

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Baltimore Colts were given a good chance today to win the National Football League's Western Conference title, Coach Buddy Parker whose Detroit Lions were beaten, 28-13, Sunday by the Colts, said, "The Colts have a really great team."

Freshman Football Team Loses 31-6 To New Haven

The Columbia City freshman and reserve football team lost its fourth game of this season in a night game at DeVol Field Monday evening to New Haven 31-6.

Kniss scored the only Eagle touchdown after the local team had driven deep into the New Haven territory. The game was played under the lights at 7:00.

Last week, the team traveled to Garrett for a night game and lost 21-6.

Next Monday Decatur plays here at 4:30.

Jerry LeRoy Millington, 17, Warsaw, charged by State Patrolman J. W. Reese with operating an auto on a county gravel road Sept. 25 and failing to yield the right-ow-way to a vehicle approaching on State Road 9, was fined $5 and costs totaling $21.75. Dedicate Elevation At Fort Wayne

FORT WAYNE (UP)—An eight million dollar railroad track elevation was dedicated today ending a 30-year traffic bottleneck in downtown Fort Wayne.

The over pass is on the Nickel Plate Railroad. It first was proposed about 1925 when traffic problems arose with the arrival of the automotive age.

Secretary of State Crawford Parker joined city and state officials participating in the dedication, which included the first ride over the overhead tracks on a special train.

Charge Fort Wayne Man With Forgery

FORT WAYNE (UP) —Charges of forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses were on file today against a food supplier accused of collecting $25,549.50 from a Catholic hospital for produce never delivered.

The defendant is Frederick A. Schlup, against whom the charges were filed in Allen Circuit Court Monday.

Prosecutor Glen Beams said St. Joseph Hospital authorities reported to him that Schlup made weekly trips to the hospital to collect sums on vouchers signed with the forged name of Sister M. Jolandis, kitchen supervisor at the hospital.

The money was collected over a three-year period ending last Saturday, according to John H. Fitzgerald, business manager of the hospital, although the hospital did not patronize Schlup since last November.

Amazed hospital authorities said Schlup's presenece at the bookkeeping office never was questioned because he had made weekly calls there for 12 years and was well known to the employes.

Mrs. Alfred Cripe Seeks Divorce

Suit for divorce was filed in circuit court yesterday by Biddle & Meyers for their client, Mrs. Lois L. Cripe, Tri-Lakes. Defendant is Alfred L. Cripe, Sr. Cruel and inhuman treatment of the plaintiff is alleged.

The couple was married March 17, 1951 and separated October 3, 1955.

Mrs. Cripe secured a temporary restraining order to prevent her husband from taking custody of their child, Alfred L., Jr., aged 3, and from disposing of personal property accumulated by the couple during their marriage. Hearing on a permanent restraining order has been set for Oct. 13 by Judge Lowell Pefley.

Mrs. Cripe seeks custody of the child and a property settlement.

James F. Biddle, local attorney, was appointed guardian of two minor heirs of Mrs. Orpha Shephard. They are Fontanella Rose Loe and April Elaine Loe of Mineral county, Nev., children of Ralph Loe and Alice M. Hanifan. The appointment was made by Judge Lowell Pefley.

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (UP)—Chief engineer John Randolph and a relaxed station WISE-TV crew reported to work today without the assorted rakes, hoes, pistols and rifles they have been carrying for the past two days.

Randolph shot a 27-inch copperhead in the control room Monday.

The snake had disappeared into a cable housing two days ago when Randolph frightened it with a TV floodlight.

U. S. Scientists Strive To Create Artificial Star

To Generate Vast Supplies Of Energy

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—A handful of America's most brilliant scientists are striving to create an artificial star capable of generating limitless supplies of energy for power-hungry man.

They are working against great odds but with boundless enthusiasm. They think they will succeed.

Their artificial star would be a "thermonuclear machine" under control—in contrast to the H.—bomb which is an uncontrolled thermonuclear machine, a man-made sun that blows up with incredible violence the moment it comes into being.

It has long been known and often reported that the United States, along with Russia and Great Britain, is trying to tap for power purposes the practically inexhaustible energy reserves locked up in the nuclei of hydrogen and other elements This is the kind of nuclear energy that makes the sun and stars pour forth constantly their incomparable radiance.

"Pie-in-the Sky" Project

Both the United States and Russia have triggered thermonuclear (or fusion) reactions violently, as in the H-bomb, and Britain has said she can do it, too.

But not until Monday did any of the three nations report in any detail the scope of its efforts to tame the H-bomb fo rpeace.

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission disclosed that this country is doing both theoretical and experimental work in five different research centers on "the controlled fusion reaction."

The project has been nicknamed, for no good reason, "Operation Sherwood." It is truly a pie-in-the-sky operation. Atomic energy promises to multiply man's power resources perhaps 1,000-fold. Fusion energy would make atomic power seem like the flapping of a broken wing by comparison.

What science must do to put fusion energy to work is to figure out how safely to generate temperatures of "several hundred million degrees," maintain and contain it until an appreciable amount of material has been fused, and then extract in controlled and useable form the incomprehensibly vast amount of energy thus released.

This admittedly sounds like a recipe for the impossible. As Strauss siad at a news conference Monday, "We don't know how to do it."

2 Divorces Awarded In Court Last Week

Two divorces were awarded in Whitley county circuit court last week.

Mary K. Mettler was granted a divorce from James L. Mettler. She was awarded custody of five minor children born to the couple.

The court also approved a property settlement entered into between the parties August 29, 1955 and ordered Mettler to pay $40 weekly support to the plaintiff.

Marilyn Jean Shaffer was awarded a divorce from Paul Dean Shaffer on her cross-complaint. She was also given custody of two minor children born of the marriage.

Council Ignores Request To Put Indianapolis On CST

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —The Indianapolis City Council ignored Monday night a request it put the Hoosier capital back in the Central Standard Time zone for the winter.

A movement to persuade the Council to change its mind about staying on Daylight Saving Time the year round blossomed last week when the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce said a poll of members favored a return to CST.

The subject was not brought up at the meeting. But that was no surprise as most councilmen indicated previously they did not favor an about-face.

A telegram came from the Bloomington City Council urging Indianapolis to discontinue DST. However, it was merely "filed away" unanswered.

Most central Indiana cities and towns feel obliged to abide by the Indianapolis decision with regard to time standards.

Duck Soup

FAIRLAWN, N.J. (UP) — Atty. Samuel Black has been appointed "Ambassador of Good Will" in a court case that may prove to be duck soup.

Irving Leibowitz complained Monday that a pet duck owned by his neighbor Clarence Hartwick went "quack - quacking" around the neighborhood all the time.

Hartwick countered that because Leibowitz didn't like the duck he stood outside his house at mealtime and "quack-quacked" himself.

Neither Johnson Nor Eisenhower Should Be Counted Out Of 1956 Presidential Picture

By JOHN W. FINNEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Mike Mansfield said today that neither Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson nor President Eisenhower should be counted out of the 1956 presidential picture because they suffered heart attacks.

The Montana Democrat said their "abilities and statesmanship should not be lost to our counry, but should be available in these critical times if at all possible."

Mansfield said he sees no reason why Mr. Eisenhower should not seek a second term if he "wants to re-run and the doctors advise accordingly."

Johnson NOT Counted Out

He pointed out that Johnson recovered from a heart attack suffered last summer and added: "I do not by any means count out Sen. Johnson as a potential candidate on a presidential ticket."

Mansfield said he expects Johnson to resume "complete charge" of Democratic leadership in the Senate when Congress reconvenes in January.

"We Democrats are not writing off Lyndon Johnson," Mansfield said. "Why should the Republicans write off Mr. Eisenhower."

Mansfield said heart attacks are becoming "quite common," but that there are "many men who have much to offer their country after an illness of this kind."

On the Republican side, GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall continued to keep the door open for a second term race by Mr. Eisenhower. While refusing as "inappropriate" to speculate on the President's 1956 plans, Hall said Mr. Eisenhower himself must determine whether a sense of duty should compel him to seek reelection.

Image Of Ike

Hall, in a radio appearance Monday night, emphasized, however that even if Mr. Eisenhower does not run again, the Republicans will be campaigning on the Eisenhower record. The Republican Party he said, "has taken on the image" of Mr. Eisenhower and there is no division in Republican ranks today "like there is in the Democratic Party."

Both Hall and Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler, meanwhile, expressed confidence over their party's political prospects in the South.

Butler, preparing for a "fence-mending" trip to Dixie, predicted "a very solid South" for the Democrats in 1956. Hall predicted the GOP will pick up additional congressional seats in the South — whether Mr. Eisenhower runs or not.

Yankee Southpaw Whitey Ford Tells How He Evened The Series At Three Games Apiece

Editors Note: Southpaw Whitey Ford evened the World Series at three games apiece Monday by leading the Yankees to a 5-1 victory while beating the Dodgers for the second time in the classic. In the following dispatch, he tells how he did it.

By WHITEY FORD
As Told To The United Press

NEW YORK (UP)—They credited me with the victory Monday but they ought to give credit to Casey Stengel, too.

From the sixth inning on, Casey kept after me to get out of the dugout as soon as possible each inning we took the field so that I could throw extra warm - up pitches and loosen up more.

He told me to be ready to pitch to the first batter in every inning. Don Zimmer led off the sixth with a walk but in the seventh, eighth and ninth, Casey's advice paid off and I got each of the leadoff hitters.

I had much better control against the Dodgers than the first time I worked against them in the series opener. My control was so good that I never had to come in with a fat pitch. The best pitch I had going for me was a curve but I also threw a little sinker now and then.

I was very glad that I went all the way. This was my fifth World Series start and the first one I finished. The closest I ever came before was 8 2-3 innings against the Phillies in 1950.

Frankly, I was sorry to see Duke Snider leave the game. I'm serious about that. If we win this series—and I fell we will — I'd like to think we beat their best. And Snider is one of the best, there's no doubt about that.

I threw him six pitches when he struck out in the first inning and they were all curve balls. I also threw him a curve the first day and he hit the ball in the upper deck about five miles up. But there was a big difference.

The curve ball he hit for a homer in the opener was on the inside; all six curves I threw him Monday were away where it was tough for him to pull them.

Jefferson Center Ruins Larwill's Clean Season Record 8-3

The Jefferson Center Tigers baseball team upset the chances of the Larwill Trojans for an undefeated county season Monday afternoon by trouncing the Trojans 8-3. The game was played at Larwill.

It was a case of too many errors by the Larwill nine plus some excellent pitching by the Tigers' Max Aker which decided the game. In going the distance in the game, Aker walked only five men and struck out seven and his fielders cimmitted only two errors behind him. Jerry Bolinger was the catcher.

Each team had the same number of hits as it did runs as both pitchers held opposing batsmen to scattered singles. Bolinger for Jefferson had the only extra base blow, a double in the sixth inning but it did not contribute to the runs scored.

Lowell Bennett was the pitcher for the losing Larwill team until the seventh inning when Larry Woll took over. Both did a creditable job. In the six innings that he worked, Bennett walked four men and struck out nine. Woll struck out three in his lone inning. Fred Cornelius was behind the plate. Coach Roger Zwayer of the Trojans was forced to keep his ace pitcher, Roger Tuggle, out of the game because of a leg injury he suffered last week in the game with Churubusco.

The Whitley County high school baseball league season ended Tuesday. Both South Whitley and Larwill, each of whom has lost one game, will meet at 3:30 p.m. to decide the championship. Jefferson Center will play host to Churubusco in a fight for the second and third places in the county. The winner of the South Whitley-Larwill game will receive the county trophy.

Brilliant Clocking

BUCHAREST, Romania (UP)—"I gave it all I had," commented Vladimir Kuts, Russian long-distance runner, after his brilliant 28:59.2 clocking in a 10,000-meter run Monday. Kuts was only the second man in track history to break 29 minutes for the distance.

Terrapins Increase Their Margin Atop UP College Ratings

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Maryland's terrific Terrapins, who should find the 1955 schedule a lot easier now that they've beaten their three toughest opponents, increased their margin atop the United Press college football ratings today.

Michigan, Oklahoma and Georgia Tech were bunched closely behind Maryland, while Wisconsin was a newcomber among the top ten teams in this week's ratings of the 35 leading coaches who comprise the United Press rating board.

Coach Jim Tatum's Terrapins, who added Baylor to their vanquished list after beating Missouri and UCLA on the previous weekends, attracted first-place votes from 18 of the 35 coaches. Michigan was the top choice of six coaches, Oklahoma had five No. 1 ballots, Georgia Tech three, seventh-ranked Texas Christian had one, and ninth-ranked Wisconsin two.

Army In Top Ten

Notre Dame, Army, Texas Christian, UCLA Wisconsin and Southern California filled the last six places among the top ten in that order.

Wisconsin vaulted into the select group from 14th place last week, replacing Ohio State which dropped from 10th to 17th.

Maryland, seeking to regain the national championship it won in 1953, now appears to have comparatively easy going to an undefeated season. The Terrapins play Wake Forest next Saturday, then follow with North Carolina, Syracuse, Louisiana State, Clemson and George Washington. The only one of these opponents with a ranking this week was Clemson (tied for 22nd).

Terps Widened Gap

The Terrapins' total of 292 points was eight less than the previous week's, but their margin over runnerup Michigan increased from 38 to 50 points. Michigan had 242 points; Oklahoma 229 and Georgia Tech 226. The Sooners and Georgia Tech exchanged the spots they held last week.

Army moved up one notch to sixth behind Notre Dame, and TCU advanced two places to seventh. UCLA, the 1954 national champion, and Southern California each fell two places to eighth and 10th, respectively.

Duke, advancing five places, headed the second 11, with Navy 12th and Miami (Fla.) 13th, Michigan State, Stanford and West Virginia were tied for 14th place; Purdue 18th, and Auburn and Colorado tied for 19th.

Other teams that received votes this week were Illinois, Clemson, Mississippi, Rice, Pittsburgh and Texas.

NEW YORK (UP)—The United Press college football ratings (First-place votes and season's records in parentheses):

Team	Points
1—Maryland (18) (3-0)	292
2—Michigan (6) (2-0)	242
3—Oklahoma (5) (2-0)	229
4—Goergia Tech (3) (3-0)	226
5—Notre Dame (2-0)	199
6—Army (2-0)	154
7—TCU (1) (3-0)	125
8—UCLA (2-1)	123
9—Wisconsin (2) (2-0)	99
10-Southern Cal. (3-0)	98

Second Ten: 11, Duke, 34; 12, Navy, 29; 13, Miami (Fla.), 14; 14 (tie), Michigan State, Stanford and West Virginia, 9 each; 17, Ohio State, 7; 18, Purdue, 6; 19 (tie), Auburn and Colorado, 5 each.

Others: Illinois, 3; Clemson, Mississippi and Rice, 2 each; Pittsburgh and Texas, 1 each.

11 Down, Seven To Go For Penn And Coach Sebo

By RUSS GREEN
United Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—It was 11 down and seven to go today for Penn and Coach Steve Sebo, but there was a faint stirring in red and blue hearts that "maybe" the victory drought would end next Saturday in the Ivy League came against unbeaten Princeton at Franklin Field.

Penn lost its second game of the year Saturday, to California, 27-7, and its 11th in a row batting through last year's winless record, the worst season in the school's history. Matters have reached the point in this era of famine where it's a question of when Penn will win a game.

But an understandingly serious Sebo, jolted by the series of losses after the horn-of-plenty successes at Michigan State, said his club will be "better for Princeton" because of the game with the Golden Bears.

Showed Much Improvement

"We showed much improvement over the past week," stocky Steve maintained. "The boys need experience," and they got it against a team better than was rated.

"We're gonna surprise somebody," he added.

It's tough to be optimistic in the face of impending tragedy, but a dead-game Sebo is trying to drag Penn up by its bootstraps against overwhelming odds.

Penn, paying the penalty for its abrupt about - face in football, which left it bound by Ivy League restrictions and big name schedule commitments before the Ivies function as a group next year, still has Notre Dame, Army, Navy and Penn State to face among future opponents.

It hasn't won since Oct, 24, 1953 when a last period field goal upset Navy. The best since that time was a tie with Cornell.

Opened Season With Loss

Penn opened this season with a 33-0 loss to Virginia Tech, But Steve said it was the best game Penn had played since he came to the university. He admitted there were mistakes, but not "boners." They came from lack of experience.

The Penn-Princeton game is one of the four Ivy League contests on the weekend schedule. The others are Columbia at Yale, Cornell at Harvard, and Dartmouth at Brown. In other major Eastern games, Villanova is at Boston College, Holy Cross at Colgate, Pitsburgh at Navy, Boston University at Syracuse and Muhlenberg at Rutgers. Army travels to Michigan and Penn State goes to Virginia for intersectional clashes.

Max Baer Dons Pith Helmet For New Kind Of Fight

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Max Baer used to pummel Jim Braddock and Primo Carnera in championship fights while the crowds roared, but today he donned a pith helmet for another kind of battle.

Barrel-chester Maxie announced from now on he's going to trade punches with crocodiles and gorillas on the nation's television screens.

The man who held the heavyweight crown in 1934 has been brought out of semi-retirement and lured back to Hollywood for the first time in six years. He'll play a whip-toting villain in a kiddies' jungle TV series, "Sheena, Queen of the Junge."

"I like to work with gorillas and crocodiles—they remind me of my ex-managers," growled Maxie.

The last time he faced a camera was for "Skipalong Rosenbloom." He also appeared in various other pictures down the years, including sports commentator in Oakland he's been a TV disc jockey and "Africa Screams." in recent years and his home town of Sacramento.

He lives in Sacramento because "I wanted to raise my three kids, my cub bears, up there, and besides I like to emcee the governor's banquets."

My oldest boy is studying to be an attorney in college now,' he said proudly.

"Neither of my two boys will be fighters. I don't like the fight game. It's too tough. Dempsey and Rocky Marciano are the only two fighters I allow in my home."

But Baer admits he can't stay out of harness "because to retire is to deteriorate." When an old friend, Producer Ed Nassour, told him about the TV jungle series, Baer jumped to Hollywood.

Baer explained, "I wanted to do this because I like entertaining the kiddies. . ."

"I get almost as much fan mail now as when I was champ," he said.

"I comes from all over the world, some of it addressed just, 'Max Baer, the champ U.S.A.'

"Why, I walk down Vine Street and the kids still say 'Hi-ya champ.' I like that."

Eisenhower

more executive work Monday night than he has done since he entered Fitzsimons Army Hospital. It will be the end of this week, however, before the damaged area in his heart is properly protected by scar tissue and physicians consider him "out of the woods."

After consultation among the high powers of the administration, Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President, submitted Monday night to Mr. Eisenhower a draft copy of a letter instructing Nixon to continue holding meetings of the National Security Council and the cabinet.

Prepared In Capitol

The letter was prepared in Washington under the supervision of Adams and telephoned to Denver for Mr. Eisenhower's signature, as the President began to resume the operating details of the government. The letter arrived before Adams, who reached Denver Saturday.

Nixon knew months ago that he was expected to hold the meetings; that was shown by the President's phraseology. But among the early business duties of the Chief Executive in his recuperation was a need to reinforce Nixon's current position with the administration and the Republican Party.

The White House staff took noticeable comfort from the fact that the President, after an irritable period Sunday which was translated by his doctors as normal fatigue, was "cheerful" Monday night.

Mr. Eisenhower spent 10 minutes with Adams and the taciturn former governor of New Hampshire confined his session with the President to submission of official papers that were not pressing in themselves, but important in the administration of a federal establishment.

Signed Letter First

First, the President, reaching over a rollaway table provided for hospital patients, signed the letter to Nixon. Then he wrote his name at the bottom of a memorandum to Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey which concluded the American agreement with Japan for Japanese membership in GATT, the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade.

Mr. Eisenhower also signed a routine authorization for John B. Hollister, director of the International Cooperation Administration, to submit a quarterly report to six congressional committees.

Without actual signature, but with verbal approval, Mr. Eisenhower also extended the time for the report of a presidential emergency board on a labor dispute between the Pennsylvania Railroad and the CIO Transport Workers Union.

The special board, was originally scheduled to report Oct. 1, and the President deferred the time to Oct. 21.

The final bulletin of the day on his condition, issued at 8:45 p.m., MST (11:45 p.m., EDT), said:

Had Good Day

"The President had a good day. He was in a cheerful mood. There was no evidence of fatigue. The President had supper and again visited with Mrs. Eisenhower. His condition continues to be satisfactory without complication."

Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famous Boston physician, who has sometimes beaten the temporary White House medical bulletins with reports on the President's progress, refused monday night to talk about it.

His wife answered phone calls in Boston and said: "From now on, I think everything will come from just one place and avoid this duplication."

What she meant by "one place" was Denver. Dr. White came to Denver early in Mr. Eisenhower's illness and returned to Boston. He was able to comment on his condition because Mr. Eisenhower's physicians telephone him twice a day with reports.

Dr. White is scheduled to return to Denver Saturday to examine the President again.

WANT ADS PAY!

A Wheelbarrow Ride Around Square Payoff On World Series Bet

The payoff will come at 10 o'clock Saturday morning for two local men who bet right on the outcome of today's World Series game between the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The winners will occupy wheelbarrows pushed by the losers around the courthouse square. The losers who have to provide the wheelbarrows, have threatened such things as letting the air out of the tires or finding steel-rimmed wheels to assure the winners of as rough a ride as possible.

Betting on the Yankees were Thomas Swing, Moose clubrooms employee, where the bet took place last night, and Chester Arnett, damage controilman 1st class, USN, Fort Wayne recruiting officer now on leave prior to bring transferred to Norfolk Va., October 10, and now the guest of the Charles Londt family. Betting on the Dodgers were Arlo Sheets and Paul Snepp.

As the result of today's series game the lineup for Saturday's payoff episode will be:

Riders: Arlo Sheets and Paul Snepp.

Pushers: Thomas Swing and Chester Arnett.

Due to certain legal technicalities no odds are published as to which pusher will cross the finish line first.

day's game that his right heel began hurting Sunday night. It is an old injury to the Dodger sparkplug, a strain of the Achilles tendon in the right heel.

Don Hoak, who shared the job with Robinson most of the season, was sent to third base and will bat seventh in Jackie's slot.

Alston made another lineup change, benching leftfielder Sandy Amoros, a left-handed hitter, and putting Junior Gilliam in his outfield post. That put Don Zimmer, a right-handed hitter at second base.

Thus Snider and Podres were the only left-handed hitters against Byrne.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees went with the same lineup which evened the series at three-all Monday behind the four-hit pitching of Ed (Whitey) Ford.

That meant Hank Bauer in rightfield, with Mickey Mantle still on the bench.

Stengel put all the right-handed hitters he could into the lineup. Catcher Yogi Berra and Byrne will be the only Yankees swinging from the left side of the plate against Podres.

Both managers said they would have all their pitchers available in the bullpen.

It was a clear, warm day with a light breeze blowing from home plate out toward centerfield.

The play-by-play:

Dodgers First

Rizzuto threw out Gilliam, the Dodger leftfielder going after Byrne's second pitch and hitting a high bouncer.

On a one-one count Reese sent a high fly to Cerv.

Martin moved quickly toward first to take Snider's sharp grounded and throw him out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Yankees First

After fouling off four pitches Rizzuto pop-fouled to Campanella.

With the count two and two Martin flied to Gilliam near the leftfield foul line.

McDougald worked the count to three and two, fouled off two pitches, and was called out on strikes.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Dodgers Second

Campanella hit a three and one pitch for an easy grounder to Martin who threw him out.

Furillo lined the first pitch sharply to Howard.

Hodges took three balls, then a called strike, and walked on a wide pitch, becoming the game's first base runner.

Martin tossed out Hoak, the ball almost hitting Hodges heading for second.

Yankee Second

Berra lined to Snider who made a running catch.

Bauer hit a slow pitch for a grounder to Zimmer, who tossed him out.

After throwing his bat and almost hitting Coach Crosetti at third on a second strike, Skowron bounced a ground rules double into the rightfield stands for the first hit of the game.

Reese tossed out Cerv.

Dodgers Third

Rizzuto tossed out Zimmer.

Martin threw out Podres.

Gilliam walked on four pitches.

Reese lined to Cerv.

Yankees Third

Byrne took three pitches for balls, then two for strikes, then was called out on strikes.

Rizuto walked on four pitches for the first base on balls issued by Podres.

When the first two pitches to Martin also were balls, right-hander Bessent started to warm up for Brooklyn.

Martin singled to right, Rizzuto stopping at second.

Manager Alston went out to talk to Podres. He kept him in the game.

McDougald's grounder hit Rizzuto going into third and Rizuto was automatically out although McDougald was credited with a single.

No runs, two hits, no errors, two left.

Dodgers Fourth

Snider struck out.

Campanella doubled into the leftfield corner for the first Dodger hit.

The count was three and two when Furillo bounced to Rizuto who scooped up the low bounder and threw off balance to retire him as Campanella went to third.

Hodges singled to left, scoring Campanella and making it 1-0 for Brooklyn.

McDougald threw out Hoak.

One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Yankees Fourth

Berra's easy fly ball fell safely between Snider and Gilliam for a double when both stopped at the last instant and neither touched it. Snider shrugged his shoulders in disgust.

Bauer lined sharply to Furillo, Berra holding at second.

Zimmer tossed out Skowron and Berra advanced to third.

Cerv popped out to Reese on the grass in short left center.

No runs, one hit, no errors, on left.

Dodgers Fifth

Zimmer struck out on four pitches.

Podres hit the first pitch for a pop foul to McDougald.

Martin tossed out Gilliam.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Yankees Fifth

Hoak threw out Rizuto who swung at the first pitch.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Brooklyn Sixth

Reese singled over Rizzuto's head.

Grim, a right-hander, began to warm up for the Yanks.

Snider, bunting, was safe at first when Skowron took Byrne's throw and Duke twsited the ball out of his glove as he went into first base.

It was an error for Skowron and Snider was credited with a sacrifice. Reese held up at second on the error.

Campanella sacrificed, Byrne to Martin, who covered first.

Furillo was purposely passed, filling the bases.

Stengel again went out to the mound and this time he called in Grim to pitch.

Hodges, with the count one and one flied deep to Cerv in right center, Reese scoring. after the catch and making it 2-0 for Brooklyn. Snider took third after the catch but Furillo held first.

On a short wild pitch which Berra trapped, Furillo went down to second but Snider held third.

Hoak walked on five pitches, again filling the bases.

Shuba, a left-handed swinger, batted for Zimmer and grounded out to end the rally, Skowron to Grim, who covered first.

One run, one hit, one error, three left.

Yankees Sixth

Gilliam moved to second base and Amoros went in to left field for Brooklyn.

Martin walked out four straight pitches.

McDougald beat out a bunt down the third base line for a hit, Martin holding up at second.

Amoros made a spectacular running catch of Berra's long fly to left near the foul line, sticking out his glove at the last instant, then firing a throw in to Reese, who threw to Hodges and doubled up McDouglad at first, Martin holding second.

Reese tossed out Bauer.

Dodgers Seventh

Martin tossed out Podres.

Gilliam singled sharply to right, Bauer trapping the ball and throwing quickly to hold him at first.

Gilliam was out stealing, Berra to Rizzuto.

Reese struck out.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Yankees Seventh

A man in a gray suit ran on to the field and tried to get Snider's autograph in center, Snider shrugged him off and two policemen marched him off the field.

Skowron grounded out, Reese to Hodges.

Reese took Cerv's bad-hopping grounder and also tossed him out.

Howard singled between Hoak and Reese.

Campanella hit a high fly to Howard.

Furillo flied to Cerv.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Furillo made a good running catch of Martin's sinking line drive to right, Rizzuto holding first.

Lonardi Says He Wants To Go Quietly Home

As Soon As He Hands Government Over To Officials

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UP)—Provisional President Eduardo A. Lonardi assured the nation today he wants to "go quietly home" as soon as he can hand over the Argentine government to elected officials.

In a statement issued to a group of trade union leaders the retired artillery officer who assumed government leadership after the ouster of President Juan D. Peron said, "I have not come to waste time in government."

Lonardi and Labor Minister Luis Cerruti, in a move to calm labor unrest, reassured the trade leaders that all union organizations will be respected. Cerruti suggested that all unions apply for amnesty for all members as a contribution to political peace.

Lonardi told the trade unionists one of his aims is to get unions out of plitics but at the same time to restore freedom to unions to manage their own affairs and elect their own officers without state interferences.

BLANKS YANKS—This is how the Dodgers Johnny Podres looked to the New York Yanks as he shut them out 2-0 in the seventh and finale World Series game at Yankee Stadium. Violent Gun Battle Breaks Out At Strikebound Hoosier Factory

NEWCASTLE, Ind. (UP) — A violent gun battle broke out at a strikebound foundry today and police reported many persons were shot.

Police radio reports from squad cars believed wedged in throngs of hundreds of demonstrating labor union members said one person was killed and "five or six" known to be wounded.

However, plant officials in nearby Hagerstown said as far as they could learn only one person was shot and nobody was killed.

The shooting climaxed a huge demonstration erupting from the discharge Tuesday of 35 striking CIO United Auto Workers at the Perfect Circle Corp. plant where a strike has been in progress since July 25.

Earlier, reports said union leaders asked all organized laborers to stay off the job today in a mass protest against the firings.

Indiana state police troopers sped to the scene on orders of Gov. George N. Craig's aides, who also alerted officers of the Indiana National Guard for possible duty.

A report that Lt. Robert Dillon, a high-ranking state police officer, was hit in the head during an exchange of shots were labeled as false by police headquarters at Indianapolis.

Pickets and non-strikers holed up inside the foundry were believed to have exchanged shots, although police said the situation was so confusing they could not get a clear picture of what happened.

"There was a heck of a lot of shooting going on," one policeman said.

Demonstrators were said to have shot at a water tank towering above the foundry and to have set fire to a small building used as a shelter for police on guard in the strike area the last few weeks.

Another report said the demonstrators demanded that non-strikers leave the plant within an hour or the plant would be dynamited.

Swihart Family Re-United At Lord's Acre Festival

Children of the late Isaac and Alice Martin Swihart were re-united Saturday at the Lord's Acre Festival at Etna where they all had lived at one time.

A well-known family in the Etna community many years ago, members of the family became scattered and some have since died. Some members of the family had attended the festivals in previous years and were so pleased at seeing old friends, that they prevailed on other members of the family to come this year.

Saturday two brothers and two sisters were re-united as well as nieces and nephews who had come from considerable distance.

They were Steve Swihart, Kenosha, Wis., and Jim Swihart, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Dorothy Swihart Walker, Milan, Ohio, and Mrs. Lucile Swihart Knopp, Dallas Texas.

Nieces and nephews of the four were Victor Musser and George Musser from Marion, and Mrs. Kathryn Daughtery of Willmette, Ill., the children of the late Anna Swihart Musser of Marion, also Mrs. Jules Swihart Briggs of Crown Point, daughter of the late Charles Swihart, and her mother, Mrs. Maude Grady of Mt. Zion, Ill., the former Mrs. Swihart.

Heart Disease Research Aided By Money Contributed To Whitley Community Chest

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles describing a county-wide agency which is participating in the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc.)

Diseases of the heart and blood vessels are the leading killers among diseases, according to information compiled for the Northeast Indiana Heart Foundation.

Nearly 800,000 persons in the United States died in 1953 from diseases traced directly to the heart and blood vessels while, by comparison, only 100,000 died from accidents, according to available statistics.

The tremendous toll in lives attributed to heart conditions surpasses any other type of disease. It is this high toll which the Heart Foundation attempts to cut down through his program of research and education.

The Foundation had been a member of the Whitley County Community Chest for several years and again has been included among the nine agencies to benefit from the 1956 budget.

Because so many of us have known people with heart ailments, the Foundation has a tremendous appeal to Americans, Miss Mary Anne Evans, executive secretary of the Northeast Foundation explains. "Nearly everyone has had a personal experience with one form or another of heart disease," she said.

A realization of the effects of the disease was made known to all Americans recently because of the heart attack suffered by President Eisenhower. The idea that such a disease could overtake even our President emphasizes the present danger of the illness.

Highlight of the Heart Foundation program in Whitley county this year was a series of weight control classes given during February and March. The classes were sponsored by the Foundation with the assistance of several other organizations and drew attendance from throughout the county.

Education and research are the big keynotes in the Foundation's efforts. Aid to universities and medical centers to carry on continued efforts at finding reasons for and controlling heart ailments comes from the Foundation. The Foundation, through such programs as the weight control classes, serves to educate more people in controlling heart conditions.

The Foundation will receive a $600 share of the results in the Community Chest of Whitley County campaign next month in Whitley county.

Keller, 53, of 208 South Walnut Laura Lewis, R 4, facial abrasions, street, facial cuts and broken ribs; cuts of the legs and back injury; and Gerald Birkhold, 33, of Trilakes, compound fracture of the lower right leg. Birkhold was later transferred to the Lutheran Hospital, Fort Wayne, where surgery repaired the fracture.

The accident happened as Keller, the driver of one car was southbound on the state road and Birkhold was driving his car north. The left front of each car met tearing off the tire from the wheel of the Birkhold vehicle.

The Birkhold car was forced off the road on the berm for a distance of about 100 feet before turning over about twice, according to Trooper Wayne Reese, of the State Police who investigated the accident. The automobile came to rest of its top. The Keller vehicle ran off the east side of the road but remained upright.

Two occupants of the Birkhold car, Albert F. DeMeerlee, R 4, proprietor of the Beechwood Motel, and Leota Kline, 39, suffered minor cuts and bruises in the accident. The Lewis woman, 36, was also a passenger in the Birkhold car.

An estimated $400 damage was caused to the Keller car and the Birkhold car, a 1955 Ford, wa damaged an estimated $1,600.

Trooper Reese and Glenn Pierson, a recently assigned State Police Trooper, are continuing the investigation of the accident to determine the exact cause.

Swollen Flood Waters Drive 500 From Homes

Hundreds Of Persons Are Evacuated

By UNITED PRESS

Rain-swollen flood waters drove 500 persons from their homes in Wichita Falls, Tex., today and an even greater flood threatened to spill out of the rising Red River.

To the south, meanwhile, the disaster at flood-devastated Tampico, Mexico, mounted. Fourteen U.S. Navy helicopters flew hundreds of persons from a tiny island in the heart of the city. But there were 60,000 persons in the area and the waters were rising.

Rains in this country continued from the Mississippi Valley to central Oklahoma and spread over most of the Great Lakes region today. The heaviest recent rains included 1.99 inches at Hobart, Okla., and 1.50 inches at Lawton Okla.

The autumn rains had already done their flooding work at Wichita Falls, where water spilled over the banks of Holiday Creek and spread over 100 residential blocks.

The creek, fed by a swollen Lake Wichita, rose steadily and was expected to reach a 21.22 crest today. It was the highest flood stage since 1950 and water already stood seven feet deep on two golf courses.

On the Red River, the principal boundary between Texas and Oklahoma, the water was running 18 feet deep and rose 11 inches within three hours. Worse floods could follow if the river keeps rising and thus turns back the runoff from the swollen Wichita River.

More flooding was feared in Oklahoma along the Wasita River from Clinton to Carnegie.

Death Of Premier Leaves Greece Without A Leader

Of Government In Midst Of Crises At Home And Abroad

ATHENS (UP) — King Paul today delayed selection of a new premier to succeed Field Marshal Alexander Papagos whose death Tuesday night left Greece without a government leader at a time of grave domestic and international crisis.

Papagos, 72, hero of Greek resistance to the Axis invaders in World War II and commander of the loyal forces that crushed the Communist rebels in the postwar civil war, died shortly before midnight at his suburban villa in Ekali. He had been suffering for the past nine months from tuberculosis, contracted in his youth.

Dominant leader of postwar Greece, Papagos had refused to the very last to surrender his office in the midst of cries both at home and abroad. Greek demands for independence of Cyprus from Britain and union with Greece were reaching a climax. Relations with Britain and Turkey and, even more important, with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization itself, had become tense.

The anti-Greek rioting in Turkey, a fellow NATO member, over the Cyprus issue provoked much stronger condemnation among the public than the Athens government could afford to express.

Papagos' illness was the root of the domestic troubles in which the cabinet was torn by dissension over internal problems. Papagos had been confined to his home outside of Athens for six months and the cabinet had not met for three months.

Clung To Power

King Paul earlier this week had politely inquired of Papagos whether the time had not come for him to give up the strain of his official duties. But Papagos refused to step down. In one of his last acts before he died, he signed a decree naming Foreign Minister Stephanos Stephanopoulos as acting prime minister "until my complete recovery."

But Papagos' death cancelled the appointment. Stephanopoulos and Deputy Premier Panayotis Kauellopoulos said the question of a successor will be decided after Papagos' funeral Friday. The constitution provides for the King to name the prime minister.

Inspection Of Highway Work Made By Board

The county commissioners devoted Tuesday mainly to inspection of work performed by the county highway department and reviewing drainage problems along county highways.

Among the places visited was Dunfee where the commissioners viewed drainage problems near the Road King Trailer plant. The board members, at the request of a delegation of landowners living on the Harshbarger road, went over this highway from State Road 9 east.

Also inspected by the commissioners was the blacktop resurfacing accomplished during the 1955 season. About six miles of new blacktop was added to the county highway system, the mileage being limited due to the need for expending considerable money on resurfacing work.

The highway department is to continue ditch and berm repairs for the next six to eight weeks. Elimination of standing water on county roads is expected to result from this program.

Runaway Truck Smashes Into Freight Train

Five Persons Dead And Two Injured

WEST NEWTON Pa. (UP) — This Western Pennsylvania community counted five dead and two injured today in a mighty collision caused when a runaway truck smashed into a slow-moving freight train and sent box cars tumbling wildly through two brick buildings.

The victims included the driver of the truck and residents of the town who were in or near the track-side buildings when the box cars roared into them. Both the two-story brick buildings were demolished. Nine box cars piled up in a heap on the freight struck by the truck.

Witnesses said a heavily laden lumber truck driven by Claude Brandt of Warrentown, N.C., was speeding at 80 miles an hour on a steep down grade just before it hit the train late Tuesday. They said the truck brakes apparently failed as it approached the tracks.

The truck hit the second car of the freight train which was moving at 25 to 30 miles an hour. Many of the 70 cars in the Cumberland, Md., to Chicago express freight train were driven from the tracks and sent careening down the store lined street.

"The freight cars seemed to go in all directions," said Frank La Salle, a service station attendant. "They smashed into stores on both sides of the track."

One of the smashed freight cars was labeled "explosives." It was roped off and the scattered contents removed.

Railroad crews worked round the clock in order to clear the tracks by late today.

Victims of the wreck, besides Brandt, were Jake Casale, 50, proprietor of a fruit market near the tracks; Sheryl Ross 6, of Buena Vista; Mrs. Dora Whiteman Industry, Pa., Sheryl's grandmother; and Mrs. Elizabeth Messner, West Newton.

The injured were Mrs. William Ross, Sheryl Ross' mother, and Emily Paternel of Collinsburg, Pa.

Would Like To Bring France Back Into Fold

Problem Assigned To Committee

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) — United Nations diplomats sought today to sidetrack debate on Algeria and bring France back into the world body.

The explosive Algerian problem was assigned to the U.N. Political Committee which held its organizational meeting following the close of policy debate in the General Assembly.

France walked out of the United Nations after the General Assembly decided by a one-vote margin to debate the Algerian crisis. France objected on the grounds that the North African territory is a party of metropolitan France and therefore not a subject of international consideration.

Three Possible Solutions

Diplomats who sought to end the rift between France and the U.N. had three possible solutions under consideration.

President's Recovery Coming Along So Well Plans Made To Keep Him From Being Bored

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower's doctors said today he spent an "excellent" night—only the third time that term has been used in his recovery—and that his condition continues to "progress satisfactorily without complications."

The chief executive apparently is coming along so well that his aides and doctors are planning varied activities to keep him from becoming bored and fretful in the latter stages of his hospital stay.

In their 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST) bulletin, the President's physicians said Mr. Eisenhower had an "excellent night" and "slept soundly from 9:15 p.m. to 6:45 a.m."

Since he entered the hospital Sept. 24, the cautiously worded medical bulletins had contained the word "excellent" only twice previously. It was used to describe the President's condition last Thursday night and again for Saturday. However, on the following day after that, the President had caused some concern when his doctors reported he was suffering from "fatigue," although it later turned out that the "tired feeling" mainly resulted from the restlessness of a normally active man at having to stay in bed.

Continues to Progress

Text of the 7 a.m. bulletin:

"The President had an excellent night. He slept soundly from 9:15 p.m. to 6:45 a.m. His condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications."

The planning of activities for the President's later recuperation applies to recreation as well as to work. It is aimed not only at letting his swing gradually back into exercising the duties of his office but also giving as much diversion as possible without undue strain.

One example of this is the movie equipment installed in a small auditorium on the eighth floor of Fitzsimons Army Hospital where his suite is. It is ready for use whenever his doctors feel that their movie-loving patient can be moved, possibly by wheel chair, into the auditorium.

Boredom is something the doctors have to fight in the case of a man who has always led an active life. As case in point was Sunday night, when the President was reported to be "fatigued." As it turns out, this was plain boredom at being bed-bound as much as anything else.

Details of the agreement were not revealed pending the ratification vote in a mass meeting at the Richmond High School gymnasium. Should the pact be approved, production is expected to be resumed Monday.

The agreement was reached by negotiators late Friday following a marathon bargaining session under the auspices of the Federal Mediation Service. The final session lasted about 19 hours.

State Gross Income Tax Collections Boom; Treasurer Warns Surplus Is Being Drained

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —State gross income tax collections are booming, but one official fears the increase will not be enough to save Indiana from the brink of bankruptcy.

For the past six months, revenue from the state's principal money-maker has been higher than in the same period a year ago. During the July-through-September quarter, the gain was $1,357,000.

But State Treasurer John Peters warned that even if the margin of increase is constant through mid-1957, Indiana's surplus will be drained to almost nothing by the end of this current biennium.

At the same time, Peters announced the state has taken a unique step to offset higher government spending, transferring 10.5 million dollars from reserve to active bank accounts.

His financial predictions were prompted by the quarterly report of tax collections from State Revenue Commissioner Frank Millis. Millis said gross income collections this past quarter totaled $18,543,560.

Early Slump Offset

Also during the past three months, motor fuel taxes—the No. 2 money-maker—went up 1.2 million dollars over the same 1954 period to 16.9 million. All that money is dedicated for highway use, and the collection which means the most to state budget-makers is gross income.

In the January-March period, there was a gross income slump. Collections were down $1,141,000 from the same period the year before. A $251,000 gain in the April-June period coupled with the July-September gain made the total for the first nine months $467,575.25 higher than a year ago.

Peters pessimism was based on these figures: the 1955-57 state budget, he said, is 70 million dollars higher than the 1953-55 budget. Since 1953-55 tax collections were 5 million below expenditures, that leaves 75 million dollars in new money the state needs during the current biennium.

Gross income collections this first quarter of the biennium were up about eight per cent, he said, and if that remains constant—and it might not because of slumping farm prices—it would add about 15 million to collections during the biennium.

"Cut Spending" :Peters

Indiana therefore would have to dip into its surplus, which Peters said was 66 million at the start of the biennium, to make up the difference. That would leave the state with a 6 million surplus and a need for new taxes.

Peters' suggested remedy: Reduce spending. He said that would take the cooperation of all state officials and department heads.

Governor Craig, whose budget staff points a brighter picture, has indicated no need nor favor for such a plan.

Peters said two days ago he had to transfer $10,547,000 from reserve accounts in more than 400 banks to active accounts in four banks at South Bend, Fort Wayne, Evansville and Indianapolis ti insure that Indiana had enough available money to pay its bills.

Such a transfer has not been made for at least six years, he said.

Peters said the necessity for the transfer indicates Indiana has a "big budget" and is "spending more money" than ever before.

South Bend Girl Dies Of Cancer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP)—Brown-haired Kathy Allison, a courageous little girl who said she was "anxious to meet Jesus and the little angels," lost her long battle against cancer and died in her sleep Monday.

The death of the six-year-old child came as a blow to residents of South Bend who have been praying for her recovery ever since she was stricken early last year.

Her death ended an uphill fight she seemed to be winning as recently as two weeks ago.

When early x-ray treatment by local doctors failed to check the growth in Kathy's chest, she was sent to the Harry M. Hoxey Cancer Clinic in Dallas, Tex., as a last resort.

She appeared to be responding to treatment until she took a turn for the worse last week.

"This is an awfully good time for all Republicans not to discuss politics," Craig said. "I am uot a candidate for any public office."

Craig, former national commander of the legion, was mentioned as a posibility for the nomination in the event President Eisenhower does not run for reelection.

Police Cancel Scheduled Concert

WATERLOO, Iowa (UP)—Police have cancelled a scheduled concert of church songs by two county jail prisoners because the chorale was to be the signal for an escape attempt.

Authorities said the prisoners passed a note to friends that "we will be singing church songs if we leave on Tuesday."

The note, written by Robert Lee Warren and Joe Bezdneick, instructed the friends to have a get-away car waiting at the rear of the courthouse if they heard the prisoners' voices lifted in song Tuesday night.

The plot was foiled when County Atty. Kay Kober noticed two suspicious-looking men near the county jail Monday night. He called police, who arrested Richard Sheridan, 24, and Duane Fairbanks, 22.

Police said Sheridan had the note from the prisoners. The two men were charged with conspiracy to aid in an escape.

Fort Wayne Visit By Red Housing Experts Resented

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP) The Allen County Council of Veterans Organizations says it "resents" a planned visit of Russian housing experts to Fort Wayne until their leaders conform to "civilized principles."

The council, representing about 15,000 veterans, adopted a strongly-worded resolution against the Russians Monday and made it public Tuesday. Ten Russians are due here Sunday for a three-day visit on their whirlwind tour to inspect American housing and living standards.

"We resent the acceptance by the United States...of any Communist mission until and unless the Communists comply with basic civilized principles," the resolution said.

"From long past as well as recent relations with the Communists," it said, "we know that they have no integrity, that their acs and words deserve no reliance and that such a mission will have within it elements dangerous to our country."

The "basic civilized principles" included an end to shooting down of American planes, immediate release of more than 6,000 Americans held prisoner by Communists, removal of Red forces from all satellite states, and restitution for violations of accepted human principles.

The resolution said the "age-old Russian dream of world conquest" has been reaffirmed in this generation. It said if the Russians are entertained they will use it for "propaganda purposes."

assistant, the Chief Executive signed three recess appointments, a letter accepting an ambassador's resignation, a letter authorizing agricultural conservation aid for three flood and hurricane ravaged states, and a sixth routine document.

His doctors said in their final medical bulletin at 8:45 p.m. MST (11:45 p.m. EDT) Tuesday that "the President had another good day. His condition continues to be satisfactory without complications."

The tone of the bulletins for the past 48 hours indicated that the Chief Executive is well back on the recovery road after a slight slowdown from fatigue Sunday night. He will not, however, be out of what his doctors call the "woods" until Saturday.

Mr. Eisenhower got another lift from a big photograph, in color, of his grandson, David, seven wearing a black cowboy hat and holding a fishing rod. It was presented by Life Magazine and the President proudly had it installed in his hospital room.

Taken In August

The picture was taken in August when David visited his grandfather at the ranch of Aksel Nielsen Denver businessman, at Fraser, Colo.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who has remained at the hospital near the President since he was stricken, was visited by her sister, Mrs. George Gordon Moore of Washington.

The temporary White House emphasized that the signatures signed by the President involved no exertion and were matters that did not require long consultation or explanation.

Adams will fly to Washington tonight for meetings of the National Security Council Thursday and the cabinet Friday.

He will fly back Saturday with Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famous Boston heart specialist who has been receiving daily reports on the President's condition. White who flew to Denver the day after Mr. Eisenhower was stricken, will confer with the physicians who have been attending the President regularly.

We announced the 1956 Lincoln early this year. We just couldn't wait.

For this Lincoln sets a new standard for fine car styling and performance—proves conclusively that a car can possess length and luxury and still be as lithe as the most cat-like of sports cars.

This is a truly long Lincoln . . . over a foot longer in the frame. And it's a lean, crisp length.

This is a truly luxurious Lincoln. Incomparably rich in fabric and color and detail.

And this is a Lincoln with unprecedented maneuverability. The 1956 Lincoln's new V-8 engine turns out 285 horsepower with scarcely a whisper. An advanced automatic transmission puts that power to work with a smoothness unequalled in any motor car. And improved suspension makes even country roads seem like superhighways.

We invite you to break with the past. Drive the completely new 1956 Lincoln and prove to yourself that length and luxury can, at last, be as maneuverable, as easy to handle as a sports car.

The new 1956
LINCOLN
The only completely new fine car

Coterie Observes Its 60th Anniversary With Tea At The Dr. John Langohr Home

Coterie, oldest literary club in the city, observed its 60th anniversary Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Langohr on North Main street. Mrs. Carl Arntson, the club's president for 1955-56 greeted the club members and Mrs. W. A. Clugston, oldest member of the club in the most years of service, gave a history of the club.

Mrs. Clugston told how in 1895 seven women met and discussed an orginization and they decided that each woman would invite one, and the club was organized with 14 members. The club has since functioned with changes only in personnel and size of membership.

The seven women who met to discuss the organization were the Mesdames Thomas R. Marshall, Ivers Leonard, Simon J. Peabody, Alfred Hilbert, E. H. McLallen, Andrew J. Adams, and Miss Elizabeth Wunderlich.

The seven women invited to join were the Mesdames Anna Hildebrand, H. DeWitt McLallen, William H. Magley, Arthur Hoover, Samuel Shirley, Jessie Faust, and Miss Jennie Collins. Of the 14 charter members only one survives. Mrs. Marshall, wife of the late Thomas R. Marshall vice-president of the United States, now residing at Hotel Westward in Phoenix, Arizona. Mrs. Marshall still maintains a keen interest in Coterie, it is stated.

Coterie is not a philanthropic organization but has always given generously to various drives conducted in this city, according to Mrs. Clugston. Not being state federated the club does not follow federation lines but tends toward miscellaneous subjects and book reviews with frequent social meetings, such as president's day, a Christmas party and a spring guest day.

In closing Mrs. Clugston stated "I feel Coterie history would not be completed without paying tribute to our 22 members who have gone to their reward. "Yet to live in the hearts we leave behind is not to die."

On a large silver tray were arranged 22 individual crystal candlesticks holding white candles. Around the tray violets, the club flower were arranged wit hlavender ageratum which carried out the club colors. As Mrs. Clugston read the names of deceased members, Mrs. B. F. McNear, for many years a member of Coterie, lighted the candles.

The Langohr home was decorated with roses, mums, and gladiolus, Mrs. Orville Briggs presided at the tea table. Tall white candles in silver candelabrum on a silver tray which held white, lavender and violet asters, formed a lovely centerpiece.

Officers of the club this year are Mrs. Arntson, president; Mrs. Edwin Pugh, vice-president, Mrs. Murray McLean, secretary-treasurer.

Ike's Illness May Make Nation More Age-Conscious

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Pat McNamara said today President Eisenhower's illness may make the nation more age-conscious in selecting presidential candidates next summer.

The Michigan Democrat said he personally believes President Eisenhower was reluctant to run before his recent heart attack and probably will decide not to do so now.

But he said he does not believe Mr. Eisenhower's heart seizure automatically ruled the President out as GOP candidate. Nor did a similar heart attack rule out the possible presidential candidacy of Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas who was similarly stricken McNamara said.

He made the statements after two Republican senators cautioned against premature speculation on presidential candidates. Both Sen. John Bricker (R-Ohio) and Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif) held out the hope that Mr. Eisenhower might make the race.

In a separate interview McNamara expressed the opinion that Mr. Eisenhower's illness, whatever other effects it has on the political scene, will make the nation more conscious of the tremendous demands the office of the presidency makes on its occupant. That, he said, may make people give more thought to the age of prospective candidates.

Such an attitude might react to the advantage of Democrats like Adlai E. Stevenson and Michigan's Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams, the senator said. It might not help the candidacy of Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, McNamara said. Harriman is about Mr. Eisenhower's age.)

Still A Faint Whiff Of Ammonia In Air In Iowa

GIBSON, Iowa (UP)—There was still a faint whiff of ammonia in the air today to remind Gibson's 100 residents of the choking fumes which forced practically all of them to clear out of town Tuesday.

It became practically impossible to stay in Gibson when a pipe broke while pressurized liquid anhydrous ammonia was being transferred from a 10,000-gallon railroad tank car to a fertilizer company storage tank.

Within minutes, 3,000 gallons of ammonia vaporized and spread over an area four blocks wide and 300-feet long—which takes in most of this tiny farm community.

Townspeople didn't need any warning to know what had happened. They could smell it. And they got out.

Store keepers closed up shop and jumped in their cars. Housewives took one sniff, took off their aprons and headed for the garage. About 100 school children, most of them from surrounding rural areas, were piled into school buses and driven away from the big smell.

Some of the residents weren't so lucky. Mrs. Jim Dismore, wife of the high school basketball and baseball coach, found herself trapped on the second floor of her home with her three small children.

The Dismore home was located at the point where the fumes were thickest and they were too dense on the first floor for Mrs. Dinsmore to risk a run for freedom.

Her husband heard of her plight and, puckering up his nose, drove to his home. There he met Bill McCoy who, as one of the men who had been unloading the ammonia, was just about the luckiest guys in town. He had a gas mask.

Adults Stage Rescue

Dismore and McCoy dashed into the home. Each grabbed a child and Mrs. Dismore stumbled out after them, carrying her 6-month-old daughter.

Nearby, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Keller and their daughter were holed up in their basement. They never did get out and required medical aid for attacks of nausea Tuesday night.

Meanwhile, Gibson residents were streaming for the open road. Most of them parked on a highway two miles east of town to sit it out.

Firemen from the nearby town of What Cheer, together with fertilizer company employes, finally managed to cap off the escaping ammonia. But it was about two hours before a man came out to announce that Gibson was fit to live in again.

Returning residents found that the ammonia fumes, held close to the ground by damp, cloudy weather, had blackened trees and shrubs.

There were no injuries among the Gibsonites, but, as banker Louis Arndt said, "there's several people who aren't feeling too good."

Designer Says Lady Sit Down Before You Buy That Dress

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—Sit down before you buy that dress.

This advise comes from a designer known internationally as Mainbocher. His name, he explains, really is Main Bocher in honor of his Scottish grandfather, Hawley Main. He changed it when he went to Paris in the 1920s.

Anyway, the Chicago-born designer is paid staggering amounts for his knowledge of clothes by a variety of famous customers, including both society women and actresses who insist they cannot step on a stage for their roles without Mainbocher - designed clothes.

His is almost the last of the big-name private custom salons where absolutely no designing is done for clothes sold in stores and no original models are sold for copying.

Has To Sit Well

A dress has to sit well, to get back to Mainbocher's advice, or the results can be unfortunate when you stand up again.

He explained that wrinkles across the front of a skirt are a sign it is too tight. Women get bigger when they sit down, he hinted tactfully, and if you buy a dress only looking at it standing up you won't realize that the girth is sufficient for your sitting - down size.

Each afternoon promptly at 3 p.m., just as Mainbocher did in his Paris salon, he has models show the complete collection, "in the same order and the same way whether there is one woman here or there are 50."

Designing Actresses' Clothes

Mainbocher is designing the stage wardrobe for Lynn Fontanne in "The Great Sebastians" and the wardrobe for Mary Martin's TV appearance later this month with Noel Coward.

To be well dressed takes time, lots and lots and lots of time, he admitted quite frankly. Then, most women are afflicted with prejudices.

"The important thing is to express the person you are in the clothes you wear. Extreme simplicity is not right for all women. Yet there are others who have so much authority as a person they could come out in a shirt and look well dressed."

When in doubt, sit down. If not to test the dress just to think about the purchase, the business-like designer advised, because:

"Snap decisions do not make for good choice."

Before washing a blouse or dress with shoulder pads, run several lines of basting stitches through them. This will prevent lumps forming during laundering.

Notre Dame - Miami Game Opens College Games For Weekend

By JOE SARGIS
United Press Sports Writer

A couple of intersectional games, involving three of the top 10 ranked teams, feature this coming weekends college football program beginning with the Notre Dame-University of Miami clash Friday night.

The Irish, ranked fifth and nursing a 10-game winning streak carrying over from the 1954 season, are only two-point favorites over the Hurricanes, who are banking on a win to gain national recognition.

Michigan, ranked second behind Maryland, meets sixth - ranked Army in the second big intersectional game of the weekends. The Wolverines, leading contenders for Big Ten honors, have never beaten Army and the game is rated a tossup.

In three other interesting games Friday night, the odds makers have installed SMU a 14-point choice over Missouri, picked Houston by six over Detroit in a Missouri Valley Conference game and made UCLA's Bruins, the defending national champions who currently are ranked eighth, solid 27-point favorites over Oregon State in a Pacific Coast Conference game.

In games which will be telecast regionally — there'll be no national telecast of any one game — the odds makers look at it this way: Holy Cross and Colgate, strong Eastern candidates, are rated even; Wisconsin, which moved up from 14th to ninth in the rankings this week, is a seven-point pick over Purdue, ranked 18th, in a Big Ten game, and Colorado is a seven-point choice over Oregon in a game which can be seen in the Rocky Mountain and West Coast areas.

Here's how other leading games figure according to area:

East: Penn State 13 over Virginia; Dartmouth and Brown even, Harvard seven over Cornell, Princeton by 13 over Pennsylvania and Yale by 13 over Columbia in Ivy league action; 12th ranked Navy by seven over Pittsburgh, and Syracuse by 13 over Boston University.

Midwest: Cincinnati by six over Xavier; Minnesota by six over Northwestern, Ohio State by seven over Illinois and Iowa by 13 over Indiana in Big Ten games; Kansas by seven over Iowa State in a Big Seven game; an dMichigan State by seven over Stanford in an intersectional clash.

South: Maryland by 21 over Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast conference game; Auburn by seven over Kentucky, Mississippi State by seven over Tulane and Georgia Tech, ranked fourth, by 10 over Louisiana State in Southeastern Conference meetings; Georgia by six over North Carolina; Florida by 14 over George Washington and Duke, ranked 11th, by 19 over William and Mary.

Southwest: Baylor by seven over Arkansas in the Southwest Conference Oklahoma A&M by seven over Wichita in the Missouri Valley Conference, and Oklahoma by seven over Texas; Rice by seven over Clemson; Texas A&M by seven over Nebraska and Texas Christian by 14 over Alabama.

West: Southern California by seven over Washington and California by 19 over Washington State in the PCC and Wyoming by seven over Colorado A&M.

Stengel Is Sadder, Wiser Man Today

NEW YORK (UP)—Casey Stengel, a losing manager in a World Series for the first time, was a sadder and a wiser man today.

All through the night the 65-year old manager, who led the New York Yankees to five World championships and six American League titles in seven years, was his own greatest "second guesser."

"I played the game wrong," Stengel said, following Tuesday's 2-0 loss to the Brooklyn Dodgers. "I had my hitters 'taking' on Johnny Podres and I shoulda had 'em hitting.

"I knew the kid hadn't pitched a complete game in his league since mid-July," Stengel explained. "So, I figured he couldn't last and I had our hitters taking the pitches. But he did last and I was wrong — they should have been up there swinging from the first inning on."

Casey, who said he'd be back next year to "try to make the Yankees world champions again," picked Duke Snider, the Dodgers' slugging center fielder as the man who hurt the Yankees the most.

"He hit four home runs against me," Stengel said, "and you gotta say anybody who does that hurt you the most."

The average new house built last year had 1,140 square feet of floor area, making it 5 per cent larger than the average house built in 1941.

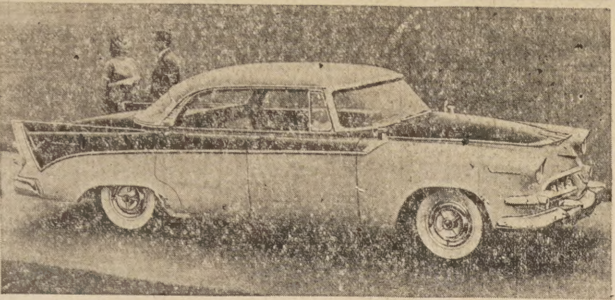
Dodge Introduces New 4-Door Hardtop



One of the newest, most exciting automobiles to appear on the American motoring scene in recent years is the glamorous 1956 Dodge Four-Door Lancer hardtop. All of the youth and vigor of true hardtop styling has been skillfully combined with the comfort and convenience of the four-door sedan. While the car shown above is in the Custom Royal series, the same body style is being offered in the lower priced Royal and Coronet series.

Pee Wee Reese Says He Can Hardly Believe It's True

BROOKLYN (UP) — Pee Wee Reese, a man who was beginning to believe the worm never would turn, pinched himself today to make sure that it really had.

"Honest, I can still hardly believe it's true," smiled the veteran 36-year-old shortstop who played on five World Series losers with the Brooklyn Dodgers and looked like he was going to make it six until they beat the New York Yankees Tuesday for their first world title.

"As the game went on and we were leading by two runs, I was afraid something was going to happen. . . I didn't know exactly what but I was sure it would be something bad."

Reese had a right to feel apprehensive. He joined the Dodgers in 1940 and starting in 1941, he watched Brooklyn fritter away World Series after World Series in one manner or another.

"I never really thought I'd get another chance to be on a winning World Series club after that 1953 series," Reese admitted. "And brother, how badly I wanted one of those World Series rings."

The popular Dodger captain referred to the rings which are annually awarded to each member of the world championship club from Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick's office.

Frick personally came over to congratulate Pee Wee in the roaring Brooklyn dressing room Tuesday, shaking Reese's hand and saying, "You waited so long that maybe you ought to get two diamonds in your ring instead of one."

Chavez - Flanagan 10-Rounder Tonight

RICHMOND, Calif. (UP)—Eddie Chavez and Glen Flanagan, two of the nation's more-durable lightweights, clash in a nationally-televised 10-round fight tonight—with the winner hoping to step up a notch in the world rankings.

Flanagan, a top-rank battler for 10 years, is substituting for Cisco Andrade, who came down with a strep throat Tuesday and had to cancel out.

Glen, member of the famous boxing family, has been in the ring since 1946 and during that time he has had 92 fights, winning 68, losing 14 and drawing in 10. He has scored 20 knockouts and been knocked out only once himself.

Chavez has been fighting seven years and this will be his 64th professional fight. Under the managership of Sid Flaherty, who also has a guy named Bobo Olson in his stable, Chavez has won 52, lost eight and had three draws.

27 U. S. Army Players Burned In Football Game

FT. LEE, Va. (UP)—An Army spokesman at Ft. Lee revealed Tuesday that 27 U.S. Army football players were burned by a mixture of rain and lime in a football game here Friday night. Eleven of them were hospitalized with second degree burns.

Among them was Johnny Lattner, a former Notre Dame back who won the Heisman Award as the nation's top football player in 1953. Lowell Perry, All-America candidate in 1952 at the University of Michigan, and six other former college players were also hospitalized.

The lime apparently came from markers that were drenched by rain during a football game between teams from Ft. Lee and Bolling Field, Washington.

The spokesman said the lime was of a type that will burn the skin when mixed with water. He promised a complete investigation of the incident.

Tiger Errors Are Costly In 8-4 Loss To Churubusco

Churubusco invaded the diamond of Jefferson Center Tuesday evening and tripped the Tigers for an 8-4 score. Three errors and a hit batsman by Jefferson Center in the opening inning helped the Eagles jump into a 3-0 lead. Errors by the Tigers proved costly, as they committed 8, while the Eagles had no bobbles chalked against them.

Jerry Hollenbaugh, the losing pitcher, registered a hitless game until the fourth frame, when Paul Geiger, center fielder, doubled. Hollenbaugh gave up eight hits for the game and walked four players. Geiger, winning pitcher, allowed five hits and walked to Tiger batters. Both pitchers fanned 12 batters.

Steve Dygert, M. Aker, J. Bollinger, and Clark headed the batting list for Jefferson center. Bollinger slammed a home run in the sixth, with nobody on base, but failed to tag second and was called out.

The loss gives Jefferson Center a record of 2-4, while Churubusco has won four and lost two.

U. P. Correspondent Describes Fighting In Barren Desert Areas In Northern Morocco

Editor's Note: The French outpost of Aknoul in northern Morocco was reported under attack today by rebel riff tribesmen swooping down from the Atlas Mountains. United Press Correspondent Wilbur G. Landrey reached Aknoul Tuesday in a daring trip through rebel - infested areas without military escort. In the following dispatch he describes the fighting in the barren desert areas.

By WILBBUR LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent

AKNOUL, Morocco (UP)—The sweating French commandant of Spahis — tough Algerian armored cavalry — shouted into his field telephone:

"I'm stripped bare. I haven't got a single tank left. I just ordered the last one out."

The scene Tuesday was at field headquarters of Maj. Francois Garout — a plaster-smeared rock structure on a barren hillside in the wild riff country.

Garout's men were holding a position on the French line from the constantly moving front to the supply base at Taza, 30 miles south.

On the dusty roadside below, Spahi tanks, jeeps and weapon carriers got set to roll up the winding asphalt road pockmarked with rebel tank traps and relieve the besieged garrison town of Boured.

Rained In Morning

It had rained in the morning but the desert sun was beating down again and a blue-eyed lieutenant was sweating in his open-collared khaki uniform.

"I was up a road with two platoons yesterday," he said. "We came to a wooden bridge that had collapsed under the weight of a foreign legion weapons carrier. About 50 tribesmen — judging by be-hind rocks up on the hills. The hind rocks up on the hills. The bullets started smacking into the vehicles and we took to the ditches.

"There we were with our shiny modern weapons pinned down by a native snipers.

"It only takes two of them, one down close where he can draw a bead on you and one behind him further up to pick off anybody going after the first man.

"You seldom ever see them. You have to blast away at them all afternoon with your tank guns and mortars."

Same Old Story

It's the same old story as Indochina," said a third trooper.

"A few rebels with small arms can take high ground and pin down a whole company of mechanized troops."

While they spoke Riff tribesmen in white headdresses and Dejallabas idled by the roadside. Probably some of them had sons and brothers fighting in the hills against the French, but their faces expressed no emotion.

On the trip up we had to ford a stream called M-Soun Oued. The rebels had burned the wooden bridge and cut the telephone wires.

When we passed, a French patrol was keeping watch on the surrounding hilltops while native workmen sweated to repair the bridge.

Occasionally the road, washed out by sporadic rains and landslides, were mere mud and rock.

Police Seek Hammer Slayers

TOLEDO, Ohio, (UP) Police today sought the hammer slayers of William B. Tadlock, 30, a hotel cook whose brutally beaten body was found in a lovers lane section near here.

Lucas County Corner Paul Hohly said Tadlock was beaten severely about the face and clubbed to death with a hammer and his body taken to a lonely spot on the banks of the Maumee River southeast of here Tuesday.

Hohly said there was no apparent motive for the murder of Tadlock, married and the father of two children, who came here from Fort Wayne, Ind., three months ago.

The coroner said marks on the throat indicated two persons were involved in the slaying one holding the victim while the other beat him. The fingertips had been cut off in an apparent attempt to avoid identification, he said.

Hohly theorized the murder was committee elsewhere than where the body was found only about an hour later, because blood had dripped on tire marks apparently made when a vehicle hauling the body backed up to the river.

Tadlock was identified by his belt buckle, which bore his name, and from a check at the state motor registrar's office, which showed he held an automobile license.

Trial Slated For Fort Wayne Woman

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP)—Mrs. Lucy L. Baysinger, accused of the ax slaying of her husband, Clarence, is slated for a first degree murder trial Dec. 20.

Baysinger's body was found along a St. Joseph river bank near the couple' home last June, and police said the woman admitted the slaying because her husband "mistreated me."

The trial date was set Tuesday in Allen Circuit Court.

Benson Says Farmer Not Getting Equitable Return For His Work

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UP) — Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said today "it is a hard, cold fact" that the farmer is not getting an "equitable return for his time and money."

"This administration is determined to do what is right and fair to alleviate that situation," Benson said. But he emphasized there will be no stampede toward "hastily-conceived, unrealistic programs which destroy farm markets."

"If we are to achieve solid farm prosperity," he said, "more emphasis must be placed upon abundant consumption and reduced costs — greater efficiency in both production and distribution."

He said the world needs a strong, productive American farm economy for the years ahead.

"We can best assure this," he said, "through a program which helps the farmer to help himself, rather than with a system that regiments him to a point where he must consult with Washington even on simple management decisions."

Benson spoke before the American Bakers Association and again plugged for the flexible price support program.

Nixon Receives Grassroots Report

WASHINGTON (UP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon received a "grassroots" report Tuesday from Republican House Whip Leslie C. Arends on the politically explosive farm problem.

The Illinois Republican called at Nixon's office to talk over a personal study he made of farm problems in the Midwest.

The meeting with Arends was one of several Nixon held with GOP leaders on administration and political problems.

The drop in farm income in recent months looms as a hot election campaign issue in 1956. Arends said the price-cost squeeze on farmers is a "difficult situation."

He told reporters after his conference with Nixon that Midwestern farmers are more concerned about increases in the prices of things they buy, such as tractors, than they are about the slipping prices on the things they sell.

Trainmen Get Wage Increase

CHICAGO (UP)—An agreement was reached early today granting a 10½ cent hourly wage increase to trainmen on the nation's 130 Class I railroads.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen said that 175,000 members would benefit, but a spokesman for the railroads said the raise would affect 110,000 employes.

A negotiation session of nearly 15 hours produced the agreement shortly after midnight.

The settlement with the trainmen came as another operating union, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, was taking a strike vote among members on most of the nation's major railroads.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the largest union among the operating brotherhoods, originally demanded an acrss-the-board increase of about 31 cents an hour.

The trainmen's agreement provides what the union said was an extra 13½ cent hourly increase for 45,000 members who will shift Dec. 1 from the 48-hour to a 40-hour week.

A railroad spokesman said that the additional payment for workers changing to the 40-hour week would be $1.30 a day for yard conductors, $1.13 a day for yard brakemen and 82 cents a day for switch tenders.

Backstairs At The White House

B WARKEN DUFFEE
United Press Staff Correspondent

DENVER (UP)— Backstairs at the temporary White House:

Most people would agree that Mamie Eisenhower has a better view than the President from the eighth floor rooms they occupy at Fitzsimons Army Hospital east of Denver.

From her room, Mrs. Eisenhower can look west to the majestic main range of the Rockies rising behind Denver. Some of the peaks are already snow- capped and glisten white in the early morning sun.

The view from the President's own room also is impressive. It is more to the south and doesn't include the majestic sweep of the main range. But on clear days he can see Pike's Peak towering above the lower Rockies 60 miles away.

Sherman Adams, the President's top assistant, threw a couple of air policemen into confusion the first morning he turned up for work at the temporary White House headquarters at Lowry Air Force Base.

Adams walks to work from his quarters a few blocks away and arrives shortly after 7 a.m., the time the President usually showed up before his heart attack.

As the stern-faced former New Hampshire governor approached the headquarters building the first morning, the two air policemen on duty at the front door didn't know whether to salute Adams or not. One did and the other didn't.

They soon found out that Adams does not rate a salute, although the President always does as commander- in - chief of the armed forces.

Mr. Eisenhower didn't listen to the World Series, for there is no radio in his room. However, Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said, the President kept in touch each day with the outcome of the game. He didn't say where the President's sympathies lay.

Special Schools Should Include Area Children

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Schools establishing special classes for handicapped children should offer those facilities to children in a general area around the school and not just to those within the school unit, Atty. Gen. Edwin Steers ruled today.

His opinion, written for State School Supt. Wilbur Young, said the 1947 law authorizing establishment of special classes provided that they be available to handicapped children "in the general area" whose own schools do not offer such a program.

If the school unit refuses to accept transfer students because of over-crowded conditions, Steers said, such refusal is subject to review by Young's staff.

Actor Leaves $105,000 Estate

HOLLYWOOD (UP) —Actor James Dean, killed in an auto crash, left an estate valued at $105,000, court records indicated today.

The 24-year-old Hoosier actor one of Hollywood's fastest-rising stars, was killed Friday when his $7,000 German racing sports car crashed into a sedan 28 miles east of Paso Robles, Calif. Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at Fairmont, Ind., with burial in Marion, Ind., where Dean was born.

Attorney L. Dean Petty filed a petition for letters of administration to Dean's estate. The attorney named Carl Coulter and William Gray as the administrators requested by Dean's only heir his father, Winton A. Dean, 48.

Favor World Series

NEW YORK (UP) — Juvenile Court officials in New York are all in favor of the World Series.

Atty. John A. McAvinue noting the small number of juvenile cases on the usually heavy court calendar said "the World Series must have them nailed to radios and television sets."

John L. Lewis Can Continue Life As Usual

WASHINGTON (UP)—John L. Lewis can continue his "life as usual" as head of the United Mine Workers union despite his recent heart attack, his physician said today.

Dr. John Minor said the attack, which occurred about two weeks ago, was "very minor," that the 76-year-old labor leader is "dong wonderfully" and that he can resume his "lfe as usual."

"I've told him so and that's my opinion," Minor said.

But disclosure of the attack Tuesday raised again a long-unanswered question: Will Lewis retire?

He has never indicated that he has any plans to relinquish to someone else his 35-year job as chief of the UMW.

News of the heart attack took UMW officials by surprise. Lewis' health has been good, except for a slight proneness to the common cold.

When he entered Emergency Hospital here two weeks ago, Minor said it was for a rest, check-up and observation. But he said Tuesday that he ordered Lewis to the hospital because of some "very slight symptoms which were suspicious." He said the evidence showed that Lewis had had a "very minor heart attack" which left a "very minute coronary damage."

But he said there have been no complications and that Lewis probably will return to his home in nearby Alexandria, Va., at the end of this week.

Safety Spokesmen Meet To Study Program Errors

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Indiana safety spokesmen went into action today to study methods of reversing a traffic accident trend which has killed at least 89 persons in the last three weeks.

The Indiana Legislative Traffic Study Commission met on the spur of the moment Tuesday night in a session prompted by newspaper headlines telling of 34 traffic deaths in five days, 17 of them during the last weekend.

The meeting was held at the Mooresville home of Rep. Phillip C. Johnson, chairman of the commission, who said members decided to hold an inquiry early in November to question traffic safety officials on why their program to save lives suddenly has gone awry.

"What we want to know," Johnson said, "is what has happened, so we can report to the public."

The traffic death toll in the five-day period from Sept. 28 to Oct. 2 was the worst of the year. Besides the 34 dead, dozens were injured, including a member of the Indiana Legislature which studied much traffic safety legislation last winter. Rep. Robert Rock (D-Anderson) was hurt seriously in a Miami County crash last Saturday.

State Police provisional totals showed the wave of deaths raised the year's total to 810, considerably above the 776 killed in a similar period last year.

Three weeks ago, the state death toll was almost identical with fatalities for the same period in 1954. But during the last three weeks, 89 deaths were added to the list compared with 58 in a similar period last year.

That sent th etoll soaring so high it appeared the state will pass the 1,000 mark in November this year instead of mid-December, as last year, unless the trend is reversed.

Once again males far outnumbered females among the week's wreck victims. State Police listed 36 victims, 28 of them males and eight females. That was better than a 3-to-1 ratio, same as the last previous week.

Victims ranged in age from four to 83 years. One-third of them were children and teen-agers.

Young Pitchers to Make Dodgers Contender To Retain World Championship, Says Alston

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

BROOKLYN (UP)—Walt Alston, the man who was hired to "beat the Yankees" and did it, declared today his world champion Brooklyn Dodgers should continue their domination the next few years on the strength of their brilliant young pitchers.

"I'm very optimistic about the club's future," said Alston, who accomplished the job he was hired for when he led the Dodgers to their first world championship in history Tuesday.

"We have so many fine young pitchers," Alston pointed out, "that I don't anticipate any serious trouble in that department for a long time to come."

One of the youngsters he had in mind principally was Johnny Podres, the steel-nerved 23-year-old southpaw who throttled the vaunted Yankees 2-0, on eigth hits in the seventh and deciding game of the 1955 World Series before 62,465 fans at Yankee Stadium Tuesday.

"Podres was magnificent," Alston said. "He did everything anyone could ask of him and then some."

Thinking in terms of the future, Alston said Podres will have such youthful running mates on the Brooklyn pitching staff as right-handers Roger Craig, Don Bessent and Ed Roebuck, along with left-handers Karl Spooner and Sandy Koufax.

Craig, the "surprise starter" and winner of the fifth game of the World Series, is only 24, as are Bessent, Roebuck, and Spponer. Koufax the bonus lefty who showed so well near the end of the National League season but saw no action in the series hasn't reached his 20th birthday yet.

Podres, who celebrated his 23rd birthday with his first series triumph over the Yankees in the third game of the classic, was mobbed by his hysterically happy teammates after beating the Bronx Bombers in the wrap-up again Tuesday.

The victory by the Dodgers was history-making in many respects. Not only had they licked the Yankees after five fruitless tries previously but they also won the biggest box-office series ever. When the total net receipts were counted they came to $2,337,513.34, a new series record.

Brooklyn's comeback triumph was also precedent shattering in that the Dodgers became the first team in history ever to win a seven-game series after dropping the first two contests.

Southpaw Tommy Byrne, who won the second game of the series and started for the Yankees Tuesday, matched ciphers with Podres until the fourth inning when the Dodgers scored their first run on a double by Roy Campanella, an infield out and a single by Gil Hodges. A sacrifice fly by Hodges brought in Pee Wee Reese with an insurance run in the sixth inning.

Podres was in only two real tight spots but worked his way out of both of them. With two men on and none out in the sixth, Yogi Berra hit a ball along the left field foul line that threatened to drop for extra bases. But speedy Sandy Amoros, who had replaced Junior Gilliam in left field during that same frame, came from nowhere to grab the ball and relay it back to the infield for a double play.

Struck Out Bauer

Berra came up again with two men on and one out in the eighth but Podres induced him to hit to Carl Furillo in short right field, then struck out Hank Bauer to end the Yankees' final threat.

Both Alston and Yankee Manager Casey Stengel agreed that Amoros' catch of Berra's smash in the sixth inning was the key play of the game. Oddly Amoros entered the game only because George Shuba had batted for Don Zimmer in the sixth and Gilliam moved to second base in place of Zimmer.

Amoros, an amiable little Cuban who is much more at ease in the field than he is with the English language, got the message across later that he never made a better catch in his life. He said he was no more than a yard from the left field fence when he grabbed the ball.

Stengel, a gracious loser, praised Podres' pitching but said the four home runs by Duke Snider during the series "hurt us the most."

Connie Mack To Have Surgery

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Connie Mack, 92-year-old former owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, will undergo an operation today to speed healing of his fractured right hip.

Dr. Illarion Gopadze, Mack family physician, said the surgery will be performed at Presbyterian Hospital, where the grand old man of baseball is reported in satisfactory condition.

Mack fractured the hip when he fell getting out of bed from his usual afternoon nap at his apartment last Saturday. Mack and his two sons, Roy and Earle, owned the As until the franchise was sold to Kansas City, Mo., last November.

Podres Tells How He Pitched Dodgers To Championship

Editor's Note: Southpaw Johnny Podres pitched the Dodgers to their first world championship Tuesday by beating the Yankees for the second time in the World Series, 2-0. In the following dispatch, he tells how he did it.

By JOHNNY PODRES
As Told To The United Press

NEW YORK (UP) — I'm glad there's no law against happiness because man, oh man, I'd sure be exceeding the legal limit.

A numb feeling took hold of me as soon as Pee Wee Reese threw the ball to Gil Hodges for the final out and to tell you the truth, I'm still in some sort of a daze.

All of a sudden everybody was grabbing me after that last putout. Somebody had my head, some one else had my leg and a third guy was grabbing my arm. Jeepers, I didn't know where I was

I don't want to sound like one of those know-it-alls, but I knew we were going to win the series all the time. Ask Pee Wee. I told him we were going to win.

My change-up was the pitch that beat the Yankees in the third game of the series but it was my fast ball that got the job done today. I wasn't especially worried when Mickey Mantle came up as a pinch hitter with one on in the seventh inning. I simply kept the ball up on him and got him to pop the ball up to Pee Wee.

My curve ball wasn't especially good so I let my fast ball do most of the work.

What did the skipper (Walt Alston) say to me when Yogi Berra was up with two on and one out in the eighth? He told me Berra was going to go all out for the long ball and I told him I knew it. So I worked on him especially carefully.

Sandy Amoros made the play of the game out in left field in the sixth inning when he grabbed Berra's shot near the left field foul line and turned it into a double play. That was the play that really saved the day.

My dad came down special from our home in Witherbee, N.Y., to see me pitch today and I'm glad I didn't disappoint him.

Triumph Signals Official End Of Domination

NEW YORK (UP) — National League President Warren Giles said today that the Brooklyn Dodgers' World Series triumph over the New York Yankees "signalled the official end of more than two decades of domination by both the American League and the Yankees."

"We beat an American League team when the Giants defeated the Indians last year," Giles said. "But everybody said that you don't beat the American League itself until you beat the Yankees.

Giles pointed out that Tuesday's National League victory marked the first time the circuit had won two straight World Series since 1933 and 1934 when the Giants beat the Washington Senators and the famous "Gas House Gang" St. Louis Cardinals downed the Detroit Tigers.

In addition, Giles pointed out, the National League has won three of the last four All-Star games played between the two leagues.

"There should no longer be any doubt that the National League is the stronger league," he said. "The Dodgers' victory this year proved it."

THE BIG PLAY—Sandy Amoros, Dodger left fielder, makes probably the most important defensive play of the 1955 World Series, as he makes a brilliant running catch of Yogi Berra's fly ball near the foul line with two Yanks aboard in the sixth inning of the finale World Series game. Amoros then fired to Pee Wee Reese who relayed to Gil Hodges to double Gil McDougald off first. It was the Dodgers 12th double play of the series, a new record. Brooks won, 2-0, at Yankee Stadium for their first world title in 53 years. Ump is National League's John Flaherty.

South Whitley Wins County Baseball Title From Larwill 5-3

The South Whitley Bulldogs baseball team defeated the Larwill Trojans 5-3 Tuesday afternoon to win the Whitley County high school championship. It is the third straight year the Bulldogs have won the classic. This is also the third year the event has been played.

Mickey Evans, the South Whitley pitcher, held the Larwill nine to only two hits as the losers' runs were all unearned. While going the route in the game, he struck out seven men and gave up the same number of bases on balls.

South Whitley had nine hits off two Trojan pitchers. Woll started on the mound for Larwill and was relieved in the fifth inning by Tuggle. Woll was charged with the loss.

This was only the second loss of the season for Larwill and both of them came in the last two games. They lost to Jefferson Center 8-3 in a game played Monday.

South Whitley had the psychological edge in playing the game on their home field. However, Larwill had defeated the Bulldogs in a previous encounter this season September 16 at Larwill.

The loss was the only one suffered by the Bulldogs this season and since Larwill lost to Jefferson Center, it was winner-take-all in the final game. Each team played six games over the season.

By finishing on top of the league, South Whitley will receive the 1955 baseball trophy.

George Humbarger was the South Whitley coach while Roger Zwayer coaches for Larwill.

Peron Gives His Version Of The Argentine Revolution And Events Leading To His Exile

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the following interview with United Press, former President Juan D. Peron gives his version of the Argentine revolution and the events leading to his exile. He described it as the "first and only" such statement he will make.

By GERMAN CHAVES
United Press Staff Correspondent

ASUNCION, Paraguay (UP) — Ousted President Juan D. Peron today described himself as a man without wealth, double-crossed and forced into exile by his own generals. He said he still is the "constitutional president" of Argentina.

He never resigned his office, he said.

He said he could have continued to resist the revolution and that "the chances of success were absolute."

But he said it would have meant "the chances of success were absolute."

But he said it would have meant "prolonging the struggle, killing many people and destroying that which it cost us so much to build."

He did not rule out the possibility that "some day it would occur to me" to return to Argentine politics but said that for now he intended to remain quietly in Paraguay.

The former dictator spoke in answer to a written series of questions put to him in his Paraguayan exile by United Press and then continued his conversation for another 45 minutes. The declaration he was making, he said, would be his "first and only one" because "it is not my purpose to blow my own horn."

Cites Class Struggle

Peron charged that the revolution leading to his exile "represents the struggle of the parasitic class against the producing class.

"The oligarchy contributed their money, the clerics their sermons, a section of the armed forces, dominated by the ambition of certain chiefs, contributed the arms of the republic," he said.

He said that "despite the wealth attributed to me by my occasional detractors," he did not have the money to go to Europe and "play the tourist."

(In Buenos Aires, Peron's former vice president, Rear Adm. Alberto Teisaire, described the ousted dictator as cowardly, disloyal, hypocritical and immoral. He said that since 1952 Peron practically had ceased to govern, spending most of his time with high school girls, labor unionists and actresses, or in sporting activities.

Reported Hidden Fortune

(The Argentine provisional government claims to have uncovered hidden treasure valued at upwards of 30-million dollars tucked away by Peron in the various hideaways where he and his friends conducted their revels.)

Peron said that after the revolution broke out on Sept. 18 and after the rebel navy threat to bomb Buenos Aires and the oil installations at Eva Peron (La Plata), he wrote the note "suggesting the need to avoid the massacre of innocent and defenseless people and the disaster of destruction, offering, if necessary, to withdraw from the government."

He said that his own generals under Gen. Franklin Lucero chose to interpret his "offer" as a formal resignation.

He said that at dawn on Sept. 20, his aide was summoned and told by the ruling generals that they "had accepted my resignation (which I had not submitted) and that I should leave the country.

One proposal would put Algeria at the top of the Political Committee's agenda. Then a resolution would be forced through declaring that debate at this time would serve no purpose. A similar shelving tactic was used on the Cyprus issue last year.

A second suggestion would place Algeria at the bottom of the agenda. This would delay debate until December with the hope that the touchy situation would ease during the interim period.

Also there was some support for a move to defer the Algerian debate and ask the International Court of Justice to rule on the Assembly's right to discuss the issue. France contends such debate would violate the U.N. charter.

Has Heavy Agenda

The Political Committee had a heavy agenda in addition to the Algerian problem.

Its first substantive debate, once it arranges its order of business, was expected to cover President Eisenhower's atoms for peace plan. Disarmament, another major item, was scheduled for debate after the Big Four foreign ministers' conference at Geneva beginning Oct. 27.

Other top items on the Political Committee's agenda included a Soviet resolution to relax international tensions, Indonesia's claim to Dutch-held West New Guinea, the Moroccan question and the problem of charter review.

U. S. Renews Her Demands For News Of Missing GIs

GENEVA, Switzerland (UP) — The United States today renewed demands on Communist China for information on the fate of nearly 500 American servicemen missing in the Korean War.

The talks between the ambassadors of the United States and Communist China, which resulted in the release of a number of Americans from Red China, went into the 10th week today.

The United States was standing fast on questions it wants to discuss before considering Peiping' uggestions for a meeting between the foreign ministers.

American envoy U. Alexis Johnson put the question of the missing American servicemen at the top of the U.S. draft for an agenda at the last session Sept. 27.

U.S. records list 470 American ground troops and 11 coast Guardsmen as missing, for a total of 481. The Coast Guardsmen were aboard a downed plane.

No Comment To Butler's Offer To Off-Key Demos

BATON ROUGE, La. (UP)—National Chairman Paul Butler's invitation to off-key Democrats to sing the party hymn in '56 was echoed today by the words, "no comment," from two big voices in the southern rebellion of 1952.

Butler announced that all who switched to the Republicans are welcome to "sing the Democratic hymn" again, "but not to occupy that exalted spot of singer in the choir loft."

Butler said political harmony now seems to prevail in Louisiana but his remarks drew from Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, "no comment," and from former Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, "I have no comment to make."

The Democratic chairman, swinging through the South to start the 1956 presidential campaign on the right note, discussed such 1952 bolters as Shivers, Byrnes and Gov. Robert Kennon of Lousiana with reporters before addressing a Governor's Day rally Tuesday night.

"We welcome any and all who left the fold to see the light, walk in grace and again sing the Democratic hymn," Butler said. "However, I don't think these persons should be put in places of high position."

Kennon, who attended the rally, was one of many bolters to the Republicans in dissension over their own party's civil rights stand and the loyalty oath demand. The state party used the national Democratic ticket officially but refused to endorse it.

Foreign Legion Pursues Outlaw Bands In Valley

Finally Shatter Iron Manacle

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent

TAZA, Morocco (UP)— Foreign Legion tank and infantry relief columns ground their way from Taza into the Riff valley of death and routed fierce Berber tribesmen besieging two flaming French outposts, officials disclosed today.

Resident General Pierre Georges Boyer de Latour took personal command of the French counter-offensive and poured all his reserves into pursuit of the outlaw bands.

Legionnaires finally shattered the iron manacle that the savage tribesmen had clamped on the outposts of Boured and Tizi Ouzli four days ago.

Their breakthrough saved the survivors of the outnumbered garrison who had fought a no-retreat action while their battlements burned around them.

The two outposts about 40 miles from here were little more than smouldering ruins when the French troops reached them. But the relief forces found defiant defenders still holding out in both places.

The legion's relief columns cracked through briefly at Boured Tuesday and hammered at the edges of beleaguered Tizi Ouzli. But only after another day and night of fighting did an official spokesman here announce the final—and major—French victory.

Newsmen gathering in Taza were barred from going up front today along the bloody valley road to see the pursuit beyond the recaptured outposts.

But the Foreign Legionnaires were reported moving into the barren Riff Mountains after the retreating rebels.

Gunman Returns Most Of Loot

ST. LOUIS (UP)—The gunman who robbed the Mount Olive, Ill., bank returned most of the $4,700 loot with a note saying "God knows I'm sorry," but FBI agents still hunted for him today.

A man believed to be the remorseful bandit telephoned the bank Tuesday and told cashier Roy Robinson to go to the Famous Bar Department store in downtown St. Louis.

"See the manager and you will get your money back," the man said.

FBI agents went to the store and opened a rented locker box. They found $4,495, along with the repentant note.

The bandit, described as a bearded, swarthy man dressed in work clothes, entered the National Bank of Mount Olive Monday. He pulled a revolver and shoved a note to a teller telling her to fill a paper bag with money "or you will get hurt."

The gunman then outdistanced Robinson in an automobile race. FBI agents said the search for him is continuing, despite the recovery of the money.

Truman Strikes New Blow In Feud With Byrnes

Tells 'Inside Story' Of Their Rivalry

WASHINGTON (UP) — Former President Truman struck a new blow in his bitter feud with James F. Byrnes today by telling his "inside story" of their rivalry for the 1944 Democratic vice presidential nomination.

He said that although he (Mr. Truman) was the late President Roosevelt's choice for the No. 2 spot on the Democratic ticket, Byrnes telephoned just before the convention and "told me that President Roosevelt had decided on him as the new nominee for vice president, and asked me if I would nominate him at the convention."

"I believe," Mr. Truman said, "that Byrnes knew that the President had named me at the time he called me."

(Brynes told the United Press at Columbia, S.C. that he had no comment "at this time . . about any statement Mr. Truman makes about me . . .").

Mr. Truman's version of one of the most sharply disputed chapters in American politics was contained in the third installment of his memoirs.

WASHINGTON (UP) — Former President Truman believes vice presidents should be selected and kept in training as "spare" chief executives.

"It is a mighty leap from the vice presidency to the presidency when one is forced to make it without warning," said Mr. Truman, who made the leap himself when President Roosevelt died in 1945.

In the third installment of his memoirs published by Life magazine, Mr. Truman said ideally the vice president "should be equipped for the presidency at the time he is elected."

The voters "instead of considering a vice presidential candidate as a sort of appendage to the presidency, should select him as a spare chief executive," he said.

Then, Mr. Truman said, a vice president should be kept fully informed of all business transacted by the man he might have to succeed at any time.

L. L. Colbert, President of Chrysler Corporation, who served as 1955 Chairman of the Special Gifts Committee of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will serve in the same capacity in 1956, with the NCCJ. Mr. Colbert will lead a country-wide effort to raise funds to help finance the Conference's program for building good will and understanding among Protestants, Catholics and Jews. The safer car wins . . . and Chevrolet's the winning car

Every checkered flag signals a Chevrolet victory in official 1955 stock car competition—not only against its own field but against many American and foreign high-priced cars, too!

Let's translate these Chevrolet victories into your kind of driving.

You've got to have faster acceleration to win on the tracks. And that means safer passing on the highways. You've got to have better springing and suspension. Again, safer and happier motoring for you. You've got to have big brakes that act fast and smooth . . . and easy, accurate steering. More things that make your driving safer.

But it's more fun to try these things out than just to talk about them. So come in and let's take a ride.

NURSE'S AID—Science has come up with this answer to the national shortage of hospital nurses. It's a monitor scope which enables one nurse to sit at a desk and look into each room, checking the patients. Images of the rooms rotate on the screen at regular intervals. With switches at left of scope she controls the cameras in the various rooms, and she can talk to the patients through the speaker. A patient can have privacy by switching off the camera and speaker in his room. The device was shown recently at the American Hospital Show in Atlantic City, N.J.

Faure Fires 4 Ministers Whose Threats Jeopardize Government

PARIS (UP)— Premier Edgar Faure today fired four of his rebellious Cabiet ministers whose threatened walkout over his North African policies jeopardized his tottering coalition government.

The four ministers were Republican Socialist political heirs of Gen. Charles De Gaulle. They had threatened to resign in hopes of forcing a new government on France.

An official government spokesman said the harassed premier fired the four mutinous Cabinet members including Minister of Defense Pierre Koenig, a longtime opponent of Faure's Africa policies. The Gaullists maintained the ministers had resigned.

The premier swung into action against the Gaullists as the right-wing group mounted a determined offensive to pull down his loosely knit coalition and replace it by a broad "public salvation' government such as ruled France during the 1789 revolution.

France was rapidly running into its worst governmental crisis since the fall of Dien Bien Phu and there was growing belief Faure's 8-month-old Cabinet would be unable to survive another week.

The National Assembly, reconvening after its summer recess, was busy for the moment with organization detail. But angry members introduced 42 questions on Faure's handling of the Moroccan and Algerian crisis.

The previous government, that of Pierre Mendes-France, fell eight months ago because of dissatisfaction with handling of North African affairs. The outcries against Faure were even louder, especially from the right - wing group led by Koenig.

The Gaullists sent a delegation to see President Rene Coty at the Elysee Palace this morning and were reported to have told him of their decision to walk out of the government unless they can win a Cabinet reshuffle.

The five Gaullists, four of them carrying their resignation letters, called on Faure and officials said the premier asked them to leave before they had time to announce their resignation.

Bulletins Report Steady Progress Of President

Atmosphere Seems More Cheerful

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP)—The news from President Eisenhower's hospital bedside continued to report progress and sound, refreshing sleep today as the atmosphere around the chief executive seemed to be more cheery by the day.

The medical bulletin issued at 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST) said the President was refreshed and relaxed after a good night's sleep.

Text of the bulletin:

"The President had another good night. He slept soundly and almost continuously for 8½ hours, from 9:30 p.m. until 6 a.m. He awoke feeling refreshed and relaxed. The President's condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications."

Mrs. Eisenhower even had a small movie party Wednesday night for six officers of the Fitzsimons Hospital staff and their wives in Bushnell Auditorium, on the eighth floor of the hospital, near the President's room.

The president did not attend, however, nor could he hear the sound track from his room. The auditorium has been fitted with the latest movie projection equipment so the President can see a movie if he wants to later in his recovery.

The party was not entirely indi-

Sister Of Ralph Johnson Dies In Gary Hospital

Death Followed Brain Operation

Word was received here today of the death late Tuesday night of Mrs. Floyd Davis, a sister of Ralph "Boag" Johnson. Mrs. Davis died in Gary Hospital at about 11:30 p.m. Tuesday a few hours following surgery for the removal of a brain tumor.

According to Mrs. Donald Burnau of Etna-Troy township, a sister of Mrs. Davis, the surgery had been completed at about 8:00 p.m. Mrs. Davis was breathing normally and her pulse was normal following the operation. Her condition was regarded as satisfactory, and members of the family at the hospital returned home. Later in the night hospital attendants called, informing them of the change in the patient's condition, but she was dead before they could reach the hospital.

Another sister, Mrs. Orville Tuggle, also lives in this community, in Etna-Troy township.

Floyd Davis is the basketball coach at Hobart, where they reside, and both he and his wife are well know in Huntington county. Both attended school there, and Mr. Davis coached at Banquo, Union Township, Roanoke, and at Warren before going to Hobart last year.

The Davises are parents of two boys and a girl.

The body of Mrs. Davis is being returned to the Robbins Funeral Home in Huntington. Funeral arrangements are not complete.

A police radio report was misinterpreted this morning, and a rumor was out over Northern Indiana that Ralph Johnson had been killed in an automobile accident. At the time, "Boag" was here to disprove it.

Argentine Government Moves To Halt Rising Labor Unrest Caused By Seizure Of Unions

BUENOS AIRES (UP) — The Argentine provisional government moved today to halt rising labor unrest brought on by seizure of various unions by anti-Peronist leaders.

Labor Minister Luis Benito Cerruti Costa announced that all secretaries of the General Confederation of Labor had resigned and that new elections would be held within 120 days without interference by the Labor Ministry.

Cerruti Costa promised the "amplest amnesty" for all union members in Argentina effective immediately.

He added that the workers themselves reached the decsion for no government interference and said this "means evidently a democratic solution and a guarantee that workers rights will be respected in the future."

The announcement of union elections came after a sitdown strike by some 8,500 meat workers at three large packing houses in Avellaneda, a town south of here, to protest seizure of their union by anti-Peronistas.

Army units were standing by in Avellaneda, but no violence was reported.

More than a dozen unions with an estimated membership of nearly two million have been taken over in the past 48 hours by anti-Peronist leaders.

CGT leaders protested vigorously to President Eduardo A. Lonerdi against such acts and demanded reinstatement. The CGT leaders said they were ready to hold new union elections if necessary to oust undesirable leaders but voiced their "strong disapproval" of violence in ousting elected officials.

Former President Juan D. Peron drew much of his political strength from the CGT, which claims six million members. Anti-Peron union leaders were ousted years ago.

Riddick Urges Good Attendance At Public Forum

Committee Chairman Says Current Issues Are 'More Meaningful'

Foster Riddick, chairman of the Public Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, urges that a large number of persons attend the public forum Sunday afternoon from 2 to 4 in the City Hall.

Congressman E. Ross Adair of the Fourth Indiana District will be the speaker and will answer questions on current issues which will face the next session of Congress.

"With the United Nations and wider means of communication and transportation, national and international affairs have been made more meaningful to us all," Riddick said. "It is in such public discussions as the one here Sunday afternoon that we add to our knowledge of these affairs and that our national government representatives learn what we are thinking," Riddick continued.

The public forum, sponsored by the Public Affairs Committee of the Columbia City Chamber of Commerce, will begin at 2 p.m., in the Council Chambers of the City Hall. Following opening remarks by Congressman Adair, the forum will be open for questions from those attending.

International affairs, federal finance, agriculture and highways will be stressed at the forum for Whitley County residents.

Congressman Adair will be accompanied to the forum by his secretary Richard Prickett.

Residents from throughout Whitley County are urged to attend the meeting by Riddick. He suggested that persons residing outside of Columbia City arrange car pools and travel to the meeting in groups.

Woodfin B. Jones, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, will serve as the moderator while John Whiteleather, Columbia City attorney, will preside. Whiteleather is special chairman for the forum.

The forum will be another in a series of public meetings with Whitley County representatives in state and national governments. Two such meetings were held during the Indiana General Assembly in February.

One Car Damaged In Collision At 30, County Farm Road

One car was damaged an estimated $150 at about 6:45 p.m. Wednesday when it rammed the rear of another at the intersection of U.S. highway 30 and the County Farm Road near the Crystal Dairy Bar.

The accident happened when Otto Frederick Schrader, 17, of R 7, stopped his westbound automobile on the highway to make a left turn onto the side road. A car driven by Glenn Stanley Chappel, 26, of R 5, also westbound, struck the rear of the Schrader vehicle. It was raining and the pavement was slick at the time of the accident, according to the city police report.

Damage to the Chappel car was to the left front fender and door, grill, hood and bumper. Damage to the Schrader car was negligible.

Israel Formally Tells U. S. She Needs Arms Aid

To Counterbalance Weapons Egypt Will Get From Reds

By WILLIAM GALBRAITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Israel has formally told the United States it needs new arms aid to counterbalance weapons Egypt will get from the Soviet bloc, it was learned today.

The notification came within the past week.

Israel did not request specific military equipment. But the action indicated the Israeli government will follow up its formal notification with a request for new military aid.

Diplomatic sources said Israel is convinced that only the United States would be in a position to supply it with enough arms aid to restore the balance of Middle Eastern power after a Czech offer of arms to Egypt is carried through.

Furthermore, Israel feels it would need so much military help that the United States would have to supply such arms free or sell them on very liberal terms. In the past the United States has sold limited quantities of weapons for security purposes to Middle Eastern nations only on a strictly reimbursable basis.

Apparently Israel is waiting to learn details of the Czech-Egyptian arrangement before submitting a detailed request for weapons.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles declined to tell a news conference Tuesday whether the United States would be willing to supply Israel with arms to balance Soviet bloc shipments to Arab nations. Officials said any decision most likely will depend on what kind of report Dulles gets when Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen returns from his trouble-shooting mission to Egypt next week.

Allen rushed to Cairo last week for talks with Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser almost immediately after Egypt announced she would get arms from Czechoslovakia in exchange for cotton and rice.

Some diplomatic officials said they expect Nasser to carry throgh the Czech arms deal but not to buy any more weapons from the Soviet world. They said Nasser would avoid further deals because he does not want to go too far in antagonizing the West.

Meantime there were reports that Russia already is negotiating with Syria on another arms deal.

Dulles is determined to do everything possible to avoid an arms race in the Middle East which could explode into a new war. He is expected to put new pressure on Soviet Premier V. M. Molotov, possibly at the Oct. 27 Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Geneva, to avoid any further Soviet bloc arms shipments to the Middle East.

Monday Deadline For City Voters To Register

Party Registration Officers Listed

Next Monday, October 10, is the deadline for registration of voters who wish to cast ballots in the November 8th election for city officers.

Those attaining the age of 21 by election day, those who have moved into the city since the last general election, and those who have moved from one precinct to another since 1954, are required to register.

Registration can be made at the county clerk's office where the voter's registration will be taken by Kenneth Nichols, circuit court clerk, and his deputy, Miss Mary Leffel, or the voter may contact party registration officers as follows:

Republicans: Paul Windemuth, Jr., Clarence Jackson, Randall Gregg, and Walter Scott.

Democrats: Mrs. Margaret Burnham, Mrs. Garland Stickler, Mrs. Harry Rhoads, and Mrs. Hugh Jacobsen.

Both party chairmen may also register voters. These are Charles H. White, Republican county chairman, and Merl O. Plattner, Democratic chairman.

It is only in Columbia City that registration is necessary for the 1955 election for city officersl according to County Clerk Nichols. In the other incorporated towns of the county, voters on election day will be permitted to vote by their declaration of residence when they present themselves at the polls. They must, however, be residents of the corporation. Town elections are to be held at South Whitley, Churubusco.

Larwill's present town officers will continue in office as no opposition ticket was filed this year.

Costs of each city and town election will be met by the corporations where elections are held. In the case of Columbia City the county governmental unit accumulates the election cost but it is later reimbursed from the city treasury.

Work Begins On The Project To Hurl Small Artificial Earth Satellite Into Far Space

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Defense Department announced today that "work has begun" on the project to hurl a small artificial earth satellite into far space to circle the earth.

The department said that Glenn L. Martin Co. of Baltimore, Md., has been awarded the prime contract for "a major part of the project" — development of a rocket launching vehicle.

Glenn L. Martin is the builder of the Viking rocket which holds the world altitude record of 158 miles for a single-stage rocket.

The General Electric Co., the department said, will supply the rocket motor which will be used in the first stage of pushing the earth satellite—which is expected to be about the size of a basketball — into outer space.

The department said that other important parts of the launching vehicle will come from different industrial sources.

The Defense Department announcement lifted some of the secrecy around the space satellite project, first announced by the White House on July 29.

The earth satellite — perhaps the forerunner of space travel by humans — is due to be launched sometime in 1957-58. It has been given the name of "Project Vanguard."

The announcement said that a site will be selected "soon on a scientific and functional basis" for the launching of the small, earth-circling unmanned satellite.

Guardsmen With Halftracks And Tanks Keep Order

At Scene Of Bloody Gun Battle

By KEITH L. MARTIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP)—Striking CIO United Auto Workers and spokesmen for the Perfect Circle Corp. neared an agreement today on a compromise plan to keep the firm's foundry in limited production with a small force of non-union employes.

The foundry was the scene of a bloody gun battle yesterday which drew hundreds of National Guardsmen with tanks and halftracks to keep order in a 10-week strike over a union shop clause.

The compromise was discussed at a meeting called by Lt. Gov. Harold W. Handley and presided over by Mayor Paul McCormack, who opened the session by reading a Bible passage and calling the riot "the darkest day New Castle has had since the tornado in 1917."

Would Limit Pickets

William Caldwell, a CIO international representative, said the union would obey a court order by limiting its picket line to five men if the company permitted entry to the plant by those workers on the payroll before the strike began last July 25.

Clyde Hoffman, attorney for the company, said the company wanted the old employes plus about 20 hired as replacements for workers who normally would quit their jobs

Number Of New Polio Cases In U. S. Fall Off Rapidly

WASHINGTON (UP) — The number of reported new polio cases is continuing to fall off rapidly.

The U.S. Public Health Service said today that 1,260 cases were reported in the week ended Oct. 1. This is 21 per cent below those reported in the previous week and is lower than the number reported in any of the previous five year.

Decreases were reported in most geographic divisions. However, Massachusetts showed less decrease as compared with the previous week.

The service said the total paralytic polio cases reported among persons vaccinated with Salk vaccine is 239. The non - paralytic cases total 478.

There were 23,018 polio cases reported this year compared with 28,292 in the same period of 1954. During the disease year beginning April 1 there were 21,955 cases reported compared with 26,739 in 1954.

Pilotless Plane Crashes In Iowa

CARROLLTON, Ill. (UP)—A jet airplane which headed west without its pilot today crashed at Manchester, Iowa, the CAA at Springfield Capital Airport reported.

The CAA said it had received a report of the crash via St. Louis, but did not know whether anyone was hurt when the plane crashed.

Test pilot George Mills, 33, was flying the plane on a routine mission for McDonnell Aircraft Corp., St. Louis when he had "difficulty" and bailed out at 20,000 feet.

The last Mills saw of his plane it was "heading west."

Mills landed on a farm about five miles east of here, unhurt except "for my pride."

Mills said a "chase pilot" accompanying him in another plane followed the runaway craft for a while but lost it.

Death Comes To Ernest L. Phillips Of Near This City

Rites To Be Satudray In St. Paul's Church

Ernest L. Phillips, 81, Columbia township farmer, died at 3:05 Wednesday afternoon at the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne. Mr. Phillips had been in failing health for several months and entered the hospital September 27.

He was a native of Mt. Carroll, Illinois, and was born January 28, 1874, a son of Joseph and Katherine Schneuer Phillips. At the age of seventeen, he accompanied his parents to Whitley county, and they settled on a farm two miles west of this city on Old U.S. 30. Following his marriage to the former Josephine Stiner, they continued to make their home on the Phillips farm. Mrs. Phillips preceded him in death in the year 1946.

Mr. Phillips was a member of the St. Paul of the Cross Catholic Church and the Holy Name Society.

The surviving relatives include one son, Vigillius Phillips, Webster Groves, Mo.; three grandchildren, Susan Joe, Timothy, and Thomas Phillips; one brother, Othmer Phillips, Parma, Mo.; four sisters Miss Mary Phillips, who made her home with her brother and Mrs. Frances Webber, Mrs. Rose Buckeit, and Mrs. Bertha Brinker, all of Fort Wayne. One sister, Mrs. Cecelia Miller is deceased.

The body has been removed to the Smith and Sons Funeral Home where friends may call after 10 o'clock Friday morning. Requiem High Mass will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Paul of the Cross Catholic Church with the Rev. John J. Frawley, celebrant. Interment will be in the Catholic cemetery.

Recitation of the Rosary will be Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Funeral Home.

Rites Held Today For A. L. Obenchain, South Whitley Man

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Klink Funeral Home in Angola for Abraham L. Obenchain, 92, former South Whitley resident. The committal service followed in the South Whitley cemetery.

Mr. Obenchain died in Cameron hospital at Angola after a long illness. A resident of South Whitley for many years, Mr. Obenchain moved to Angola in recent years.

His wife survives, also a daughter, Mrs. Edith Harshman of Sidney, Nova Scotia, who was at her father's bedside when death came, a stepdaughter and a step-son.

Columbus Man Is Under Indictment On Murder Charge

SEYMOUR, Ind. (UP)—Felix J. Donnelly, 31, Columbus accused of slaying a state police trooper while "hunting Communists" was under indictment today on a charge of first degree murder.

Donnelly was indicted Wednesday by a Jackson County Grand Jury in the Aug. 31 fatal shooting of trooper Earl L. Brown.

Authorities said Brown and Columbus city policeman William Weddle attempted to disarm Donnelly as he walked along a highway. They took a shotgun away, when Donnelly suddenly pulled out a pistol from his pocket and shot Brown, according to Weddle.

Weddle returned the fire, hitting Donnell three times. Physicians said Donnelly is paralyzed from the waist down as as a result and

Police quoted Donnelly as saying that "Columbus and Seymour are full of Communists," and he shot Brown because he "was one of them."

President

cative of Mr. Eisenhower's progress, but it did reflect a lighter attitude on the part of the people around the Chief Executive, who was stricken on Sept. 24.

The 9 o'clock bulletin on the President's condition last night said:

"The president continues to progress satisfactorily without complication. He spent a comfortable day."

Other evidence of easier feeling about the president came from several sources. It was reported late Wednesday that the physicians treating the President said they had found medical evidence that the "healing process" in Mr. Eisenhower's heart was "taking place."

The President also seemed to be picking up a little every day in his work schedule. While his time for business remained quite limited, he seemed to be exerting a small amount of additional energy daily in consideration of official affairs.

Wednesday he signed four recess appointments and initialed two other administrative documents during a 10-minute conference with Sherman Adams, the assistant to the President.

Adams returned to Washington for meetings of the cabinet and National Security Council. He will fly back to Denver Saturday with Dr. Paul Dudley White, the famous Boston heart specialist.

Returns On Saturday

Dr. White's return to Denver will signal what the White House staff and Army physicians hope will be the end of the crucial period in the President's recovery. Normally, if a heart patient does as well as the President has been doing for two weeks after an attack, he is considered "out of the woods."

After Dr. White examines the President and confers with his other physicians, the President's medical future for the next few weeks will be mapped out; that is, how much longer he will have to remain in Denver before he can be flown east to recuperate.

Eagles Will Host Garrett In Fourth Conference Game

The Columbia City football team will host the Garrett Railroaders Friday night, and the Eagles will be seeking their first grid win of the season. Garrett will be the fourth Northeastern Indiana Conference foe faced by the Eagles this season. The Eagles have lost to Concordia, New Haven, and Bluffton in loop play, and the opener to Nappanee.

Garrett also is hungry for a conference victory, having previously lost to New Haven and Concordia. At the present time, Concordia and New Haven are leading the conference race, both with perfect seasons, and it might be that the Bulldog-Cadet game could decide the championship.

The Railroaders have a 2-2 season record.

Columbia City coaches are still shifting players. This week, Whetstone, who has been playing quarterback, is being moved to the fullback post and will probably alternate with Randall Carpenter, who broke his little finger this week. Carpenter saw his first action at Bluffton last Friday, after recovering from a broken nose earlier in the season.

Ron Yant quarterbacked his first game last week, and will again be calling the signals against Garrett. Freshman Jeryl Kniss will alternate with Yant.

In the line, Dick Loe has convinced the coaches he should be seeing more action—and that is what he will be doing Friday night. Jay Smith will take over one tackle position, replacing Barry Brennan, who has a sore leg. Phil Fry, Larry Conrad, Roger Bridge, and Gerald Schrader will continue to be called upon to bolster the center of the line, while Link, Bates, and Simmers see action at the end positions.

French Column Attempts Rescue Of Legionnaires

Surrounded By Rebel Tribesmen

By WILBUR LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent

FEZ, Morocco (UP) — A reinforced French armored column fought northward toward the Spanish Moroccan border at dawn today in an attempt to rescue a French Foreign Legion garrison surrounded by rebellious riff tribesmen.

French authorities believed they had broken the back of the rebellion, but legionnaires at Tizi Ouzli were still cut off and much heavy fighting remained before peace can be restored to the bloody triangle north of Fez.

Resident General Pierre Boyer de Latour took off on a sweep to the south—the area in which he fought 30 years ago—to keep the rebellion from spreading. He decided to arm certain loyal tribesmen to help in the defense of the area.

French troops won an initial victory Wednesday when an armored tipped column punched through rebel-held areas and reached Boured, another outpost town. The French hoped to trap the rebels in a triangle formed by Boured, Tizi Ouzli and the French operational headquarters at Aknoul.

Already white flags were fluttering over some tribal villages in the southern sector where residents asked the French for forgiveness. Brig. Gen. Henri Berton, in charge of the French armored columns, said some of the rebels appeared to be losing faith in their uprising.

French Arabic-speaking officers circulated through the region south of the heaviest fighting in a campaign of psychological warfare aimed at winning over more villages.

The heaviest fighting has been in the Boured-Tizi Ouzli-Aknoul triangle just below the Spanish Moroccan border, with the biggest victory thus far coming at the burned-out post of Boured where 500 legionnaires fought their way out to link up with a relief column.

The successful drive Wednesday was from Aknoul to Boured. Today's attack pushed up from Aknoul toward Tizi Ouzli. Once that road is open the French can launch clean up operations and drive the rebels back into Spanish Morocco.

The French charged officially the rebels were getting help from the Spanish zone, and the Spanish ambassador in Paris was given a verbal protest. French officers believed the rebels were inspired by exiled Riff leader Abd El Krim, the "Lion of the Atlas" who led Riffs against France and Spain a decade ago. He is now in Cairo.

Strikers

nearly two hours after the meeting opened represented considerable progress from opening proposals.

At first, the union demanded the plant close completely. The company demanded the truce be discussed for all four plants in three Indiana cities but later agreed to limit the talks to the New Castle plant.

Gov. George Craig sent the 600 troopers rolling into New Castle before dawn to put down any sequel to the wild gunfight in which nine persons were injured at the plant Wednesday.

Four pickets and four non-strikers were shot and a state police captain was clubbed over the head before state police ended the two-hour battle.

A sullen peace ruled in New Castle as the armed guardsmen took up posts outside both the Perfect Circle plant and a Chrysler Corp. plant where violence had also been feared.

There were no new outbreaks in the face of the 75 guardsmen at Perfect Circle and the 50 at the Chrysler Corp. plant. Police said there had been no reports of violence in this city of 18,000 since a shotgun blast ripped into the home of a non-striker late Wednesday.

Lieutenant Governor Objects

But a new crisis threatened to develop later, when representatives of the striking CIO United Auto Workers and of Perfect Circle meet in the City Council chambers in an attempt to work out some kind of a truce.

It was reported that Governor Craig ordered the troopers into New Castle for fear that new battles would break out if the meeting failed. He did so over the objections of Lt. Gov. Harold Handley, who rushed to the scene and voiced fears that the presence of the guardsmen might incite more violence.

The 75 guardmen at the Perfect Circle plant ranged themselves at the gates and alongside entrances. They were backed up by two 49-ton M47 Sherman tanks, each armed with a 90-millimeter gun and three machine guns.

At the Chrysler plant, the troopers stationed themselves across the street, along with two half-tracks. The 4000 Chrysler employes had stayed away from work Wednesday in a sympathy demonstration and it had been feared that violence would break out between workers who wanted to return and those who wished to stay out.

The threat appeared ended however when most of the 11700 early shift employes reported peacably for work.

Limited Martial Law

Meanwhile the guardsmen clamped "limited" martial law on New Castle and set up road blocks outside the city limits to keep trouble-makers away.

All taverns were closed and a 9 p.m. curfew was imposed. The guardsmen had orders to keep everyone except non-maintenance personel out of the Perfect Circle plant ad to break up any picketing or demonstrations in the city.

Craig directed the operation through his secretary Horace Coats. Craig himself is on a fishing vacation in the Gulf of Mexico.

U. S. Now Urges Britain, France To Join Canada

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The United States today urged Britain and France to join Canada in strong support of President Eisenhower's "open sky" plan to hasten Soviet acceptance of the arms inspection scheme.

American officials hailed the firm stand of Canadian disarmament expert Paul Martin on Mr. Eisenhower's plan for a Soviet-American exchange of military blueprints and aerial and ground inspection of each other's territory.

They said Canada's decision to openly support the plan considerably brightened hopes for Soviet acceptance and added that a similar stand by Britain and France would increase still further the chances of Russian approval.

Canada "came all out for the Eisenhower plan and urged Russia to accept it," in Wednesday's secret session of the five-nation U.N. disarmament subcommittee, American sources said.

Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev declined to answer Martin's urging, sources said. Sobolev has refused during the five weeks of subcommittee meetings here to give any indication of Soviet feelings on the Eisenhower plan.

Sobolev raised no objection when Martin said he interpreted Premier Nikolai Bulganin's letter to President Eisenhower as "acceptance in principle" of the military inspection scheme, it was reported.

Presidential aide Harold E. Stassen urged the subcommittee to make a strong effort to reach "significant results" before the year's end lest the advance of science on such things as intercontinental missiles make the current work of disarmament negotiations as outmoded as the initial arms reductions talks here nine years ago.

But he also warned that the United States believes that arms reduction without a foolproof inspection plan, the point on which Russia balks, actually would increase the danger of war.

Flood Waters Are Falling Back In Texas Today

By UNITED PRESS

Flood waters fell back in WWichit Falls, Tex., today, but there was no stopping the mounting death and horror in devastated Tampico, Mexico.

At Wichita Falls most of the 500 persons who fled the surging waters of the Wichita River returned to their homes. More rains were expected today, but forecasters said they would have to become extremely heavy to send more floods swirling through the city.

About 150 city blocks were under water at the height of the flood Wednesday, but only about 50 of them were in the residential district. The river itself was expected to go back below flood stage today.

But at flood-battered Tampico the flood waters held no mercy fr an estimated 80,000 homeless persons.

Food supplies were not expected to last more than a day and a half longer and the milling refugees had a new horror to deal with — hordes of poisonous snakes swarming out of the flood waters onto the few remaining patches of dry ground.

ments and retail employees; Edward Barton, schools; Mrs. Doyne Butt, clubs and organizations; Mrs. Ruth Hensel, house-to-house, and the Rev. Henry Uhrich, churches and ministers.

Pledges and gifts to the Community Chest can be given to the individual agencies by specifying the agency on the pledge cards, the Community Chest president said. The gifts will be channeled directly to the agency.

Gall also suggested that Whitley county residents employed outside of the county make a special effort. "Give where you live" is a slogan in the campaign. The gifts made in Whitley county remain in the hands of the Whitley county agencies, but donations made in other counties are not returned here, according to Gall.

The kickoff in the Columbia City campaign will be made Friday and Saturday when members of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs will sell Red Feathers, symbolic of the Community Chest, on street corners of the downtown area. The Red Feathers are signs that say the wearer supports the idea of the Chest and will actively support the campaign, Gall concluded.

Ag Department Gives Farmers Fact Sheets

Lists Developments Of Agriculture

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Agriculture Department today distributed 3,000 copies of a fact sheet designed to acquaint farmers with developments affecting agriculture since the beginning of the Eisenhower administration.

Heading the list of 39 "facts important to farmers" is this paragraph: "There is peace."

The fact sheet from the "office of the secretary " bears the name of True D. Morse, undersecretary of agriculture and president of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

A department aide said the sheet was distributed to its regular mailing list. This includes persons who get copies of all department policy statements both within and out of the department; editors of farm papers and magazines; trade-publications; women's page editors; persons who get all releases on Commodity Credit Corporation activities; state extension editors, radio farm directors; and members of "two or three" advisory committees.

The aide said the regular mailing list also includes the Republican and Democratic national committees.

Fact No. 2 on the sheet reads: "There is record high business activity and income." Fact No. 3 states: "Farmers have not shared fully in the great prosperity of the nation. More farm products are being consumed because of high level incomes."

Fact No. 4 is a long paragraph quoting Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson. It reads, in part: "This administration is not content with the general level of farm prices today or with the present income of our people. We will seek earnestly, energetically, and constantly to do everything that is fair, right, and economically sound to improve this situation. . ."

Tri Lakes Lions Club Will Stage Chicken Supper

The Tri Lakes Lions Club will stage its first annual Chicken Bar-B-Q supper Saturday afternoon and evening at the Thorncreek school, and half the proceeds will go toward a proposed community building. This announcement was made by Richard Shafter, general chairman of the event. Mr. Shafter will be assisted by Co-chairmen Fred Horne and Larry Myers.

The community building will be located at Tri Lakes, and the Lions Club is sponsoring the project.

Walter Kessler Lions, Club president, states that one-half of the proceeds from all money-making projects of the club will be placed in the community building fund. At present no other steps have been taken at Tri Lakes to make such a building a reality. Possibly, at a later date, a more concentrated effort will be made to obtain funds for the big project.

The Tri Lakes club was charted in April this year, and its first project for the lake area was the sponsoring of a Boy Scout Troop. Now, the 35 members have tackled the job of sponsoring the Community Building project, with the realization that it will be a long term program.

Horse Thieves Inactive; Vigilante Groups Among Local Organizations Losing Charters

Horse thieves have been inactive lately in Whitley county. Cognizance of this was probably apparent to the state securities commissioner, Joseph M. Shannon when he ordered two Whitley vigilante organizations to forfeit their corporate charters and desist from forming any more posses to give chase to those unsavory ruffians who lined their pockets with the profits of horse rustling.

The legal aspect of the situation is that the organizations, along with other miscellaneous groups now inactive, have failed to file corporation reports in recent years and as a result their articles of incorporation are being forfeited. Notices of a number of findings made Aug. 26th by the Indiana Securities commission, were sent to the Whitley circuit court where yesterday Judge Lowell Pefley affirmed the commission's findings.

The two vigilante groups declared legally dead are the Columbia Horse Thief Detective association and the Smith Township Horse Thief Detective Association No. 287. Neither had filed corporation reports for 20 years. Resident officer of the Columbia township vigilante group was C. H. France. Homer J. Klopfenstein, Churubusco, was the resident officer of the Smith township detective association.

Notices of the judgment of the securities commission declaring these and ten other local corporations have forfeited their articles of corporation due to lack of corporate reports in recent years, have reached the Whitley circuit court.

10 Others Forfeit

The other ten corporations dissolved as the result of hearings held at the commission's offices Aug. 26 include:

Aker Bros. Inc., Columbia City, no corporation reports filed for years 1925 to 1954 inclusive. Lee Aker resident agent.

Christian Endeavor Library association; officer, Wenonah Meely of Columbia City. No corporation reports filed from 1935 to 1954.

Columbia City Commercial Development Club, Clinton Wilcox officer; no reports filed from 1935 to 1954.

President's Heart Attack Sends Men Over 40 To Doctor

NEW YORK (UP)—President Eisenhower's heart attack has sent men over 40 to their doctors' offices in numbers described by one specialist as "fantastic," it was learned today.

The New York Heart Assn. said its telephone information service has received three times its usual number of calls each day since the President was stricken. Most callers want to know what to do about their own or a relative's real or imagined symptoms, the associatin said.

A check of three eminent heart doctors showed two had "very noticeable increases" in the number of persons asking for examinations.

The third said that in the few days since the President's attack he has booked appointments which will keep him busy for weeks. He said there was as yet no let-up in the number of requests.

Virtually every applicant for a heart check is a man over 40, the three doctors said. That was the danger age and sex referred to by the Boston heart specialist, Dr. Paul Dudley White, called to Mr. Eisenhower's bedside.

One individual who has long worked for public education on the problems of heart disease expressed the belief that the President's illness, tragic though it is, may have done great good in awakening people to the seriousness of the problem.

NEW YORK (UP)—The American Heart Assn. today listed six steps to ward off a heart attack:

1. Avoid self-diagnosis. You can save yourself needless fear and anxiety by having a general check up at least once a year. If there is something wrong with your will suggest what you can or can't ticker, your doctor is the man who do, activity-wise.

2. Avoid over-exertion, particularly if you're not used to it. Exercise in moderation, particularly if you're over 40. Strenuous activity can't hurt a healthy heart, but there is a real threat when the heart is disabled or damaged.

3. Avoid over-fatigue. Get enough rest and proper vacations. Your heart works around the clock. When you rest, you place a lighter work load on the heart.

4. Avoid over-weight. Eat sensibly. Don't let weight get above the point considered sensible for you. Excess weight puts extra work on heart and blood vessels.

5. Avoid and treat respiratory infections promptly. Statistics show there is a 13 per cent increase in deaths from heart, circulatory and respiratory diseases during the cold months. That's because pneumonia, bronchitis and the like put a heavy strain on the heart and circulatory system.

6. Avoid worry. Don't burden yourself with needless anxieties. Particularly if you have heart disease, don t worry. It won't help.

Hospitality

A cricket brown
Came walking down
My kitchen steps
This day.

His eyes so black
Kept looking back
For friends along his way.

'Tis Winter now
And on his brow
The frost has come to bite

So at my door
This cricket poor
Has come to spend the night,

His friends he'll bring
And they'll all sing
Of joyous cricket lore,

In here they'll dine
On crumbs real fine
And they'll be cold
no more.

Necessity

The fog pressed gloomily against my window.
The street light wore wet halos, shining dimly.
Traffic moved with sluggish recalcitrant caution
And pierced the heavy air with warnings. Grimly
A worker trudging home from factory tedium
Paused before my shop, his face displaying
An inner conflict, Some book I had displayed there Struck an aesthetic nerve. I saw him weighing
The cost, against some grosser need. Then hand in pocket
And eyes that had a sharp defeated yearning
He faded, as had his dreams, into the mist of night
And quick compassion set my own eyes burning.
My heart was heavy in me like a log.
I would have followed him, but for the fog.

Gladys Daily

Epitaph

She did not seek applause or thanks. Enough
For her, that those befriended were in need.
She seemed to sense it when the road was rough
And serving others, served her God in Deed,
And like a backward child who always hid
Her face in mother's skrits, she went through life
With modest air, concealing all she did
For others. She was a loving wife,
She said it was a little thing to bake
An extra pie or two on baking day,
And always waited 'til alone to take
Them to an ailing neighbor down the way.
And she would be the last to speak about
The long night vigil, by a bed of pain,
When tenderly and noislessly she brought
Some ailing neighbor back to health again.
She walked the byways, with a bag of sweets
And her vocabulary knew no "I".
Her heart a treasure chest of of quiet treats
Beat lovingly until it came to die.
To babbling crowds her quiet ways were lost,
Her voice not heard in thundering accolade.
She gave in silence, counting not the cost,
And only God would know how much she prayed.
On Sundays she was seldom seen in church,
And there were those who prayed for her lost soul,
But I believe her never ending search
For need of her in others, made her whole.

Gladys Daily

Memory's Landscape

I tread the path of memory To an unforgotten day
Seeking someone precious that I lost along the way.
So many landmarks fill the view
That I carefully inspect them all
Watching for a certain few that I eagerly recall,
Yonder is a field of daisies Waving gayly back at me
Bringing memories of happiness
I linger there to see.
I watch the river flow like passing years, I cross the bridge above;
An unseen hand dispels my fears —What depth the Master's love!
I overtake a hill of sadness beside a lake of tears
And I see again the mountain
That I struggled up for years,
And as I stand there gazing a voice speaks clear to me,
That I must not travel backward if my loved one I would see.

Infidelity

Breathes there a man
With so noble a life
He has not kissed
Another man's wife?
It cannot be so
For if no other
Each man must admit
He has kissed his mother.

You can see it BETTER on a CROSLEY

Apology For The Off Day

When I'm cross and discontented
And even seemingly demented
Remember what I tell you now
That my evil fev'rish brow
Is so because I ate wormwood
Or else could not digest my food,
Or slept upon a wrinkled mat
Or gained another pound of fat.
I hated everyone this morn
And wished I never had been born.
If to you I rudely spoke
Don't you take it as a joke?
Tomorrow I shall try to be
Demure and sweet—just wait and see!

Helen L. Marquart

Soliloqy

You came in my life unbidden,
All unasked you found me there;
Found the sorrows I'd kept hidden,
Kelt with me and joined my prayer.

Gave me faith, taught me forgiving,
Gave me peace, calmed all my fears,
Gave me love, and taught me living,
Taught me solace found in tears.

Taught me that I must face dawnward
For the time there is to stay,
Gave me courage to go onward
Walked with me along the way.

Showed me God in all about me,
Made me know I was His own
Gave me strength though others doubt me,
Gave me strength to walk alone.

Going Rate For Marriage License Still Around $2

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS

WASHINGTON (UP)—The going rate for a marriage license in the United States still is around $2. But the price of brides in other lands is running into a lot of moo.

The National Geographic Society which knows a little or more about everything, has circled the acres of the earth and has come up with some very interesting statistics.

For example, in West Pakistan, brides aren't bought much any more because parents are money hungry. The price now is so high that 13 to 16-year-old girls are being abducted by swains who can't afford to pay the tab.

In eastern Nigeria, the purchase of a wife has become so dear money wise, that a government committee has suggested maybe price control, or worse, rationing. Half a century ago, a tall lushy Ibo girl cost only $50 and an old hawk could be bought for as little as three goats. But as of now, according to the latest survey, an ordinary Ibo gal is a bargain at $300, and if you want one with some kind of learning the price runs as high as $840.

American Style Courting

I guess us American gents have it pretty nice. All we have to do is ask the gal's dad if it is all right. If he agrees, it's fine. If he stomps his foot, there always is the other way out. Down a ladder from the lady's bedroom and off to the nearest justice of the peace.

With the Kenai, Alaska, Eskimos, all a man has to do is come to his lover's house with bowdy and then start in as a cook, bottle washer and sweeper of floors.

Aside from that, he has to heat the bath water, no mean trick in Eskimo country. Then if the old man gives the nod he can claim his bride—if he is willing to continue to play servant for one year.

Even today, a would-be bridegroom in New Guinea kicks in a bunch of dog's teeth to his future father-in-law.

Times Get Better

But times are better over there. Time was when he had also to dump in a couple of human heads.

In the remote sections of Australia, aborigines trade lady relatives for brides, And in Jammu, a daddy with only men around the house has a hard time getting a wifemate for his son.

Of course, once the bride is bought and paid for, some of these primitive husbands have it all over us.

After the purchase, their wives are kept in huts, or lean-tos and there are none of the problems American men have. No rent to pay no $20 girdles to buy. They can shoot down a wild turkey and use the tail feathers to make their ladies a bonnet.

And better still, there like as not is no mother-in-law trouble.

Storage Vault In Railroad Tunnel

SAN FRANCISCO —(UP) — A 20th century fortress dedicated to the possibility of atomic attack is doing a brisk business in the rugged Santa Cruz Mountains 70 miles south of here.

The fortress a concrete Fort Knox-like structure filled with three-ton steel doors, is a storage vault built in an old abandoned railroad tunnel.

Jules Charbneau, a retired San Francisco insurance executive who conceived the idea, said the $300,000 vault was opened for business a year ago and already is one-third full. The 241-foot-long, 29-foot-high converted tunnel has 54,000 cubic feet of storage space.

Charbneau said the vault was the "only radioactive proof stronghold in the West, and he added, "barring a direct hit it is the safest storage place the human mind can devise."

The vault, located 14 miles east of Santa Cruz, is earthquake proof, fireproof, burglarproof, and will protect deposits from mildew, insects, floods, explosions and sabotage, he said.

Charbneau said his vault maintains a constant level of 48 pe cent humidity and 63 degrees Fahrenheit temperature, perfect conditions for the preservation of paper records and microfilm.

Although most of the space rented so far had gone to government agencies and large corporations, other clients included newspapers, motion picture and record companies, and private individuals.

Charbneau said his firm, Western States Atomic Vaults, was currently engaged in negotiations with the Defense Department to store top secret documents, and, for contrast, with movie producer Walt Disney to keep the original films of his Mickey Mouse cartoons.

Most private parties wanted to store such things as family records, deeds to homes and wills.

"But one lady called and said she wanted to store a complete wardrobe of clothes," Charbneau said. "She said if her home was bombed out she didn't want to be left without anything to wear."

Fearless Fraley And His Weekend Football Winners

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Fraley's Follies and the weekend football "winners" — looking for a load of upsets on the theory that if the Dodgers can win anything can happen.

The Upsets

Army over Michigan — The Cadets haven't been tested yet and this is a rough Michigan team. But if Army can handle the pass receivers — a big "if" — the West Point line can make a winning difference.

Pitt over Navy — The Panthers are coming and the Middies have lacked desire. It should be a bruising contest with the outcome depending on the way the ball bounces.

Miami over Notre Dame — The Irish have been a pleasant surprise but Miami has been pointing for this one a whole year.

Missouri over SMU — This is a club with a lot of grit and promise. Maybe they won't win, but they'll take a lot of beating.

Stanford over Michigan State—This is another surprise club and the Spartans, while solid, aren't what they used to be.

The East

Princeton over Penn — So that makes six losers.

Yale over Columbia — And one winner.

Harvard over Cornell — You never can tell.

Also: Boston College over Villanova, Syracuse over Boston University, Dartmouth over Brown, Lehigh over Bucknell and Rutgers over Muhlenberg.

The Midwest

Wisconsin over Purdue — Big threat of the Big Ten.

Ohio State over Illinois — But they'll have to go.

Iowa over Indiana — Back on the rails.

Also: Kansas over Iowa State, Marquette over Kansas State, Texas Aggies over Nebraska, Minnesota over Northwestern, Houston over Detroit Oklahoma Aggies over Wichita and Cincinnati over Xavier.

The West

Southern California over Washington — With a hey and a nonny.

UCLA over Oregon State—Don't sell 'em short on Maryland.

California over Washington State — Rugged ball game.

Also: COP over Idaho, Utah over Brigham Young, Wyoming over Colorado Aggies, Denver over Montana and Utah State over New Mexico.

The South

Maryland over Wake Forest — Without a deep breath.

TCU over Alabama — At low tide.

Georgia Tech over LSU — The wreck is rambling.

Also: Mississippi over Vanderbilt, Mississippi State over Tulane, Penn State over Virginia, Auburn over Kentucky, Tennessee over Chattanooga (maybe), Georgia over North Carolina, West Virginia over VMI Duke over W & M, Florida over G.W., and South Carolina over Furman.

The Southwest

Oklahoma over Texas—But they might surprise.

Rice over Clemson — Another rough one.

Baylor over Arkansas—But it's your money.

Also: Arizona over West Texas State and Texas Tech over Texas Western.

Player Collects Poker Stories

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The most wonderful thing about a new collection of famous poker stories is that there is no copy by ladies. Jerry D. Lewis, an old poker player who got up the book, refused to include any chapters written by women. As he put it: "An author ought to know something about his subject."

Quite properly, the book is called "Dealer's Choice," which has nothing to do with real poker players who only play straight stud or draw poker.

Jerry does, however, give one lady credit, except that maybe up to this point nobody ever knew she was from the weaker side. It was way back there when Spalding's Home Library put out a volume on poker. It was authored by A. Howard Cady, and the "A" stood for Alice. Now her secret is out.

This friend Lewis has a fountain of information. He recalls the time that President Grant sent one Robert Cumming Schenk to be U.S. ambassador to England. Little did Grant know that his emissary was a bug on poker. Anyhow, Queen Victoria invited Schenk to her summer home for a hoe-down with the higher-ups.

The envoy worked it around to a point where he suggested a game of poker, which is one thing the Russians didn't invent. The Queen thought that was a good idea. One thing led to another and Queen Vic wound up the evening with a bundle, in pounds and such.

She thought so much of the game and of the envoy from the States that she asked him to write a book of rules on poker. He did, but it got him in a mess of trouble.

In his book Schenk said:

"It is a great object to mystify your adversaries up to the call, when hands will be shown. To this end, it is a good practice to talk a little nonsense, with the view to misleading your opponents as to the value of your hand."

Benchley Lost a Hand

Some folks thought this was no way for the U.S. ambassador to the Court of St. James to talk.

There were calls from all over to the White House demanding the recall of our Schenk. But he survived protests, thanks to the Queen. She let the word get around that she, as a beginner and early winner, thought his book was darned good poker advice.

I particularly liked a chapter by the late Bob Benchley, the lovable funny man.

He dearly loved dancing girls, but didn't much care for the poker playing kind. He found himself involved in a party in his own house where he had furnished the liquor and barbequed suckling pigs.

Benchley put on his best poker manners and decided to stick around. First time around the game, with women aboard, the dealer suggested "Whistle up Your Windpipe." It is seven-card stud, with twos, threes, and red-haired queens wild. Bob thought he would teach the sissies a lesson because he had a straight. But with that many wild cards, everybody else around the table had a royal flush.

Cost old Bob $11.60 on the hand and he gave up playing pokerwith women.

1955 May Be Banner Year For First Year Players

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer

The early-season performances of Alan Ameche, George Shaw and several other rookies indicate 1955 may be a banner campaign for first year players in the National Football League.

Ameche, the All-American fullback from Wisconsin, and Shaw, last year's major college total offense champion at Oregon, made particularly successful debuts in the rugged pro circuit.

Shaw passed for three touchdowns and Ameche scored three by rushing to lead the Baltimore Colts to surprise triumphs over the Chicago Bears and Detroit Lions and first place in the Western Division. They scored or passed for all of Baltimore's six touchdowns in its first two starts.

All-Rookie Backfield

Coach Weeb Eubank started an all-rookie backfield of Shaw, Ameche L. G. Dupre and Harry Hugasian against the Lions last Saturday night and they led the Colts to a 28-13 victory.

Other rookies who have made promising beginnings as touchdown-makers include Corky Taylor of the Los Angeles Rams, Dave Mann of the Chicago Cardinals, Bob Watkins of the Chicago Bears, Dick McCabe of the Pittsburgh Steelers, Ralph Thomas of the Washington Redskins and Alex Webster of the New York Giants.

Taylor, former Kansas State star, caught a touchdown pass during the Rams' opening day victory over the San Francisco Forty-Niners. Mann, from Oregon State, made a 65-yard scoring run to help the Cardinals defeat the New York Giants. Watkins, a former Ohio State star scored for the Bears against the Colts.

Thomas, from San Francisco, scored a touchdown as the Redskins rallied to upset the Philadelphia Eagles. McCabe, who played collegiate football for Pitt, made a 50-yard dash with a recovered fumble for a Steeler TD against the Rams.

Played Canadian Ball

Webster, former North Carolina State back who played Canadian pro football in 1954, scored a touchdown against the Cardinals and has been about the only bright spot during New York's two losses.

Ed Bernet, another Steelers rookie from Southern Methodist, made a promising pro start when he caught eight passes during his team's opening game triumph over the Cardinals.

This week's selections with won-lost records in parentheses:

Saturday night: Colts (2-0) over Packers (2-0) at Milwaukee. Sunday: Browns (1-1) over Eagles (1-1) at Cleveland; Bears (0-2) over Forty-Niners (0-2) at Chicago; Lions (0-2) over Rams (2-0) at Detroit; Giants (0-2) over Steelers (1-1) at Pittsburgh; Cardinals (1-1) over Redskins (2-0) at Washington.

Bob Toski Is Defending Champ

BALTIMORE, Md. (UP)—Little Bob Toski, back on the tournament trail after a summer devoted mainly to exhibitions, is the defending champion in the $17,500 Eastern Open golf tournament starting today on the municipal Mount Pleasant course.

The Eastern Open is the 43rd and final event on the pro golf tourney trail this season—a trail that started in California last January and swung twice from coast to coast.

Prize money in this competition will boost the final total of prizes awarded on the circuit to a record $1,220,000, according to tournament director Ray O'Brien.

Toski's winning score of 277 was right in the range that all winners in this tournament have reached. All five winners have scored between 275 and 279.

Wraps Come Off Purdue's Lennie Dawson Against Wisconsin In Big Game Saturday

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
United Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —The "wraps" come off Purdue's Lennie Dawson against Wisconsin Saturday when the "arm" will be tested on offense as well as defense in the Big Ten headliner.

But the Boilermakers, as well a Indiana, which goes to Iowa for another league game,will rank as underdogs in Saturday's matches. Wisconsin whipped Purdue last year, 20-6, for the sixth straight time, while Iowa has a two-game string over the Hoosiers.

Purdue coaches were confident the injury to Dawson's right thumb sustained in pre-season practice will be completely healed so he can go "both ways" against the Badgers.

Against Minnesota, Dawson played only 18 minutes on offense, connecting on 9 of 12 aerials, his best weapon a "jump pass." In practice this week he has tossed both long and short ones to a variety of receivers.

Badgers Pass Too

Wisconsin, which has averaged 422.5 yards from scrimmage in two games, has a powerful passing attack, too, with Jim Haluska and Jim Miller pulling the strings.

Purdue scout Bob DeMoss warned Wisconsin's ground game is just as potent as its aerial attack and coach Stu Holcomb put his charges through overtime drills to get set for Badger patterns.

There was optimism at Indiana despite last Saturday's 19-0 loss at Notre Dame. For the first time this season, the Hoosiers—as well as Purdue—were expected to be near full strength.

And Indiana coach Bernie Crimmins said if last Saturday's showing was a criterion, the Hoosiers could be "real tough" the rest of the campaign.

"We tackled and blocked well... our protection for the passer was tremendously improved...and we were an aggressive, hard-hitting football team," said Crimmins.

Iowa Big

"We feel that if we can keep the desire we had Saturday and continue to improve...we will be real tough the rest of the way."

But the Hoosiers weren't fooling themselves. Scout Bob Fitch, who shadowed Iowa against Wisconsin saw to that.

"This is probably the biggest club we'll play all season," he said, "and Earl Smith and Eddie Vincent are as fast a pair of halfbacks as we'll meet.

Both Wisconsin and Iowa hold the upper hand over their Hoosier rivals. Wisconsin has a 19-12 edge over Purdue, with give games deadlocked. Purdue last downed the Badgers in 1945, 13-7.

Iowa has a 12-104 advantage over Indiana. The Hawkeyes won 2714 last year.

Fort Wayne Pistons To Play 16 Games

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP)—The Fort Wayne Pistons, Western division champions in the National Basketball Association will play 16' exhibition games before the 1955-56 season opens.

The Pistons, who opened practice Wednesday, play their first tune-up game against the St. Louis Hawks at Pinckneyville, Ill., Oct. 11. They will also meet the College All-Stars, Philadelphia Warriors, and Syracuse Nationals, last season's Eastern division and play-off champs.

Coach Charley Eckman said the squad will eventually reach 18, including rookies. He said the only veterans who have not come to terms are Frank Brian and Larry Foust.

George Yardley, who changed his mind about retiring was expected to report next week, Eckman said.

First Rough Test Of Goverment-As-Usual During Ike's Illness Is Just Around Corner

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The first rough test of government-as-usual during President Eisenhower's illness is just around the corner.

It will come with the Big Four foreign ministers' meeting in Geneva, which begins three weeks from today. That will be a time for executive decisions. The foreign ministers meeting was set up last July in the atmosphere of sweetness and light which prevailed at the Summit Conference among the chief executives of the Big Four.

The chiefs agreed beforehand that they would not seek to make decisions at the Summit meeting. They merely would establish personal contacts, exchange views agree which were the most dangerous threats to peace in the West—and send their foreign ministers to Geneva in October to negotiate better times.

Shortly after Mr. Eisenhower met with the British, Soviet and French chief executives the United States position on the forthcoming foreign ministers' conference seemed to be fixed and definite. It was that it would be up to the Soviet Union at this conference to make a realistic contribution to world peace.

Viewed As Test

That was and presumably still is the position of the United States government. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made it just about that this week when he said the test of the Summit Conference would be whether the spirit generated there would obtain solution of some of the urgent problems of peace, such as the existence of a divided Germany.

"I believe," he said, "that we will make positive progress toward the reunification of Germany."

The West Germans do not agree with Dulles. Their recent mission to Moscow made no progress on that difficult subject. The Germans feel that they got a better line on the Kremlin's real intentions than Mr. Eisenhower was able to get at the Summit. They are convinced the Russians will not budge. There are some indications that some U.S. officials privately are less hopeful than Dulles' recent public statement would indicate.

Three Urgent Problems

Three urgent problems were assigned to the foreign ministers for solution. The problems of German unification and European security were linked as No. 1 on the slate of business for the foreign ministers. Disarmament came next and improvement of East-West relations was No. 3 and last.

All of this adds up to the continuing need for top level decisions by the President of the United States during and perhaps before the foreign ministers' meeting.

Government-as-usual during Mr. Eisenhower's illness and with no such pressing matters to be determined is one thing. But when the chips are down, Mr. Eisenhower must act. The burden could be very heavy on a well man.

RUPTURE

EXPERT COMING
HERE AGAIN

R. K. Shallenberger

Nationally known expert will personally demonstrate his method without charge at Clugston Hotel Columbia City Monday, Oct. 10th from 11 A.M. to 2 P.M.

Mr. Shallenberger says the Shallenberger method contracts the openings in remarkably short time in the average case, regardless of the size or location of the rupture, and no matter how much you lift or strain, and puts you back to work the same day as efficient as before you were ruptured.

The Shallenberger Rupture Shield has no leg strap; waterproof, sanitary, practically indestructible, and can be worn while bathing. Each shield is skillfully molded and fitted to the parts under heat, which gives a perfect fit and satisfaction.

Large and difficult ruptures, following operations especially solicited.

Drivers of the new Continental Mark II will sit at the approximate center of the 218-inch car, behind a hood stretching nearly six feet in length. A wraparound windshield with door pillars sloping back increases forward visibility, while the closed roof quarter characteristic of the former Lincoln Continental is retained. The front end features a fine, die cast honeycomb grille topped by the gently sloping hood and the four-pointed star which makes up the distinctive Continental hood ornament.

Dean Might Be Alive If He Hadn't Bought Sports Car

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — James Dean would be alive today, his close friends believe, if he hadn't decided to buy a lighter, faster sports car.

His old white Porsche, car experts say, would have withstood his collision last Friday night with a heavier Ford. But recently he bought a new Porsche Spyder made of aluminum, and it crumpled in the crash like a piece of tinfoil.

"I begged him to tow the car to the races," his good friend, insurance agent Lou Bracker, said today. "That Spyder is not for driving on the streets. It's a racing car. Even if he bent a fender getting out of the city he would be disqualified from the race."

Nervous Before Race

Some acquaintances think Dean's last-minute decision to drive the aluminum car on the highway instead of towing it was an unconscious urge towards death.

Bill Hickman, who was driving with photographer Sanford Roth in Jimmy's station wagon behind Dean, thinks Jimmy seemed depressed. "When we stopped for coffee on the way he had a strange look in his eye." Other friends agree "Jimmy hadn't been in a good mood lately."

But Bracker pointed out "Jimmy was always nervous before a race."

"Jimmy once said, 'I've got to do things fast. I haven't got much time.' But he didn't mean that as a premonition of death but that he wanted to do so many things in his life," said Lou.

"He wanted to become a business tycoon. We were planning to open a Porsche agency. He wanted to give up acting in a few years and be a director. And he was learning to sculpt and play tennis."

Wary of Reporters

I knew Jimmy briefly. He was wary of reporters. When we were introduced on the set of "Rebel without a Cause" he grunted and looked away. Then he saw my sports car, an MG, parked nearby. He asked if he could drive it, so with Jimmy at the wheel we roared around corners while I tried to interview him.

Later Dean dated two starlets, Clare Kelly and Lili Kardell, who live in my apartment house. His dates, if wise, wore slacks. If they dressed up he would be upset, particularly if he'd brought his motorcycle as transportation for the evening. Sometimes he would stop in the patio to talk to me about sports cars.

I saw him watch many sports car races. He would run eagerly from turn to turn watching the cars screech and sway.

He was well-informed on classical music, but he also liked to talk about be-bop and rock 'n roll. He wore glasses, and appeared studious. He wanted to become an "intellectual."

Frankfurters Eaten In '55 Would Reach To Moon And Back

By ALFRED LEECH
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP) — A scholarly study by the American Meat Institute shows that all the frankfurters eaten by Americans this year would stretch to the moon and back.

And there would be enough left over to encircle the earth five times.

To put it in more humdrum terms, Americans consume about 5½ billion frankfurters a year.

Further data gleaned from the magazine National Livestock Producer shows that the average American eats the meat equivalent of 33 hogs, 10 lambs, 8 steers and 4 veal calves.

That's provided he lives to be 68.3 years of age, today's normal life expectancy.

Travels 1,000 Miles

The frankfurter, considered to be a typically American morsel, emmigrated to this country from the old German city of the same name. Its cousin, the weiner came from Vienna.

The average pound of meat consumed in this country travels 1,000 miles from "open range to kitchen range," as the AMT phrases it.

This is due largely to the fact that two-thirds of all meat is produced west of the Mississippi while two-thirds of it is consumed east of the river.

Regional traditions and geographical meat-eating habits complicate the situation further.

For example, a ring-bologna belt stretches from Oklahoma City northeastward to Detroit. The best market for cold cuts parallels the coal mines and steel mills from eastern Pennsylvania to Milwaukee.

Mason-Dixon Line

Veal calves are a by-product of the dairy industry, and you would expect Wisconsin to consume a lot of veal. But families in New Orleans consume five times as much veal as families in Wisconsin.

More than half of all the lamb produced is consumed in the New York City area. Residents of Chicago and St. Paul eat more fresh pork than anyone else.

If you live in California you probably eat 25 more pounds of beef per year than the average resident of any other state. California's per capita beef consumption runs 2 pounds per week, against the national average of 1½ pounds.

The pork market is divided by the Mason-Dixon line, extended to the West Coast. South of the line smoked pork is the favorite, while Yankees north of the line prefer fresh pork.

The institute had no geographical breakdown on the eating habit of vegetarians.

Woman Offers Farm For Flying Saucer Landings

By VIVIAN SANDE
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YOR — (UP) If some interplanetary resident would like to visit the United States, said resident should contact Mrs. Margaret Rigsberg of Manhattan.

She knows a good-hearted woman who is offering her 500-acre farm for landing purposes for flying saucers only.

Mrs. Rigsberg, a young blonde with a generous, unlipsticked smile, works in a hook-lined shop at the corner of Third Avenue and 90th street.

She runs the shop for her husband, who sells occult and spiritualistic literature. She also edits a magazine of flying saucer news and is president of a new organization called the Flying Saucer News Club. Members receive her magazine each month.

Notice of that free parking space appeared in a recent issue.

Never Saw One

She said there are, all told, five flying saucer monthlies, and 40 books and pamphlets on the subject have been published.

It there is an unusual swoosh in the sky anywhere in the country, Mrs. Rigsberg is likely to hear about it. If someone with a camera catches the picture of an unusual looking airborne object, a print usually is sent to her.

"I've never seen a flying saucer myself," she admitted. "But then I'm indoors most of the time."

Her husband claims he saw one not too many evenings ago.

"I know flying saucers are real," Mrs. Rigsberg said, "from the reports we receive and the pictures I see."

She said she is sure that one day man will contact dwellers on other planets and that travel between the earth and other astral bodies will become commonplace.

In the meantime, she and her husband plan to go on spreading saucer news and encouraging research on the subject.

As proof of their optimism, the magazine carries a standing offer of one year's free subscription to any out-of-this-world visitor who stops by the book shop to claim it.

To save defrosting time, freeze hamburger into patties, but be sure to separate them with paper or foil. They're ready for the frying pan in just a jiffy that way.

Man Sees Nothing Remarkable About Rags-To-Riches Rise

CHICAGO (UP)—Allen Gellman, a wealthy industrialist now, was so poor when he came to this country he thought the depression was a boom.

Gellman, then a penniless machinist, came here from Hungary in 1930 at the age of 25. He could scarcely speak English.

"People talked about the depression," he said. "But everywhere I looked I saw wealth and opportunity."

Now Gellman is president of Elgin American Co. but he sees nothing remarkable about his rags-to-riches rise. In a sense, that's the way he planned it.

There's nothing of the blatant tycoon about Gellman, a soft-spoken, gray-haired man of considerable personal charm. He lives graciously now in suburban Glencoe with his wife and three children but it wasn't always that way.

His Two Goals

In Hungary he had to go to work as an apprentice machinist at the age of 14.

When he came here he decided to go to night school. So he walked into the downtown headquarters of Northwestern University and asked an elevator operator if he could see "the boss."

He was directed to the office of the late Walter Dill Scott, Northwestern's president. Scott must have been intrigued by the Hungarian immigrant and took Gellman to see the dean.

"I told them I had two goals," Gellman said. "To become an American and a businessman."

So they worked out a course of study that included law, economics accounting, advertising and product distribution.

"I took subjects," Gellman said, "not courses."

Maybe that's why he's regarded now as a one-man production and merchandising team, with a working knowledge of virtually every phase of his business.

Night School for 10 Years

In all, Gellman went to night school 10 years. In addition to his other classes he studied engineering at Lewis Institute, now the Illinois Institute of Technology.

As an engineer he got into plant layout and machine adaptation.

In 1939 U.S. Steel turned to defense production and dismantled its McKeesport Pa., plant where it had fabricated the metal for the Big Inch pipeline.

Gellman bought the huge machines and convinced Bethlehem Steel that he could adapt them to bending and shaping steel for Liberty ship hulls.

With the profits from this and other ventures he bought into Elgin American.

"It's quite a step from Liberty ship hulls to compacts and cigaret lighters," he said. "But it's metal fabrication and that's my business.

"I guess i'm still a machinist at heart."

THERE'S something heartwarming in the fact that one of the biggest spokes in the newspaper wheel is the American boy. Today is Newspaperboy's Day in Newspaper Week. It is not the least contribution made to the democracy by its newspapers that thousands of youngsters have grown up learning lessons in taking responsibility and carrying on their own little businesses in delivering papers.

Awards At National Dairy Cattle Show

WATERLOO Iowa (UP)—Chester Folck and son of Springfield, Ohio, took the grand champion bull award at the National Dairy Cattle Congress Tuesday.

The congress, which is the biggest dairy cattle show in the country, has attracted exhibits of more than 2,000 cattle from nearly all 48 states, Canada, and South America.

J.M. McDonald of Courtland N.Y., took the grand national Guernsey bull prize and Mystery Farm of Hope, R.I., was named the best exhibitor and breeder in the milking Shorthorn division.

The farm also won the grand champion female award, while Lois J. Hansen of Bellevue, Ohio, took the national junior Guernsey show prize.

Teams from California, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota Montana Oklahoma and South Dakota were awarded top prizes in the National Future Farmers of America dairy cattle judging contest.

'Conjested'

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—The Indiana State Highway Department sought today a sign painter who didn't use a dictionary.

A big highway sign on U.S. 40 near Richmond was whisked away when a news photographer snapped a picture of it. The sign said:

"Slow. Conjested area 500 ft."

Art Museum Has Picture Renting Service

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—A little old lady dropped by the Modern Art Museum here recently, counted out $15 and waited while they wrapped her package.

"Do you think I'll be able to get on the subway with it," she asked when they handed the package to her.

The young woman in charge of the art lending service paled. The bulky package contained an original painting valued at around $300, and the fragile little woman was 82 years old.

"We finally persuaded her to take a taxi to the railroad station," Mrs. Ann Jones said. "She lived in New Jersey."

The incident was just one example of the growing awareness of art in the living room that has inspired picture renting services in a number of major cities.

Rented Abstract Paintin

The retired school teacher from New Jersey took home an abstract painting for two months for her $15. She returned it at the end of the rental period because she couldn't afford to buy it.

Others rent paintings with the intention of buying them if they still like them after two or three months of looking at them daily.

One family in Minneapolis, Minn., regularly rents paintings from the Modern Art Museum here. The museum rules require that a renter be a member of the museum and come in person to select the painting. But since membership for non-residents is only $13.50 a year and many men make several business trips annually to New York, a surprising number of out-of-towners qualify.

Mrs. Jones, the wife of an artist and the mother of three small children, is in charge of the museum's rental service on a strictly volunteer basis. She enjoys doing it.

Color Scheme In Mind

Women often come in with a room color scheme or a wall space in mind to choose a picture, Mrs. Jones said. And although this might seem a fairly unartistic way to pick a painting, Mrs. Jones defends it.

"Why isn't that perfectly legitimate?" she asked. "If you're doin a room in yellow you don't want a shocking pink picture on the wall. Of course, a really good picture will go almost anywhere. But even a museum is very careful at a showing to hang pictures next to each other that will not detract ffom the effect of either."

They rent some prints of famous artists and many originals of young artists that are valued from $25 to a top price of $750. Rents vary from $5.00 for two months to $52 for three months.

Women, in Mrs. Jones opinion, make up their minds more readily about a picture choice than men, though often husbands and wives come together.

"Men are more apt to want to see everything before they decide," she said.

Steve Allen Keeps More Persons Awake Than Coffee

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—Steve Allen, who keeps more people awake than coffee, disclosed today that the shift of his "Tonight" show to the West Coast "looks about 54 per cent set."

"We won't be able to move for about six months," said Allen. "It's a terrible mish-mash to arrange for the movement of such a gang of people. And we won't desert New York entirely. We plan to bring the show back every three months or so for a couple of weeks."

Allen, proprietor of the relaxed after-hours session since it was launched on NBC-TV in September, 1954, returned only recently to Manhattan. He spent most of the summer in Hollywood filming "The Benny Goodman Story," channeling the "Tonight" show from the movie capital.

Thinks Show Better

"I think the show was better out there," said Allen. "The Hollywood studio is more suited to my type of show — the audience is smaller and almost everybody sits downstairs."

Behind Allen's projected move, too, are personal reasons. He has sentimental ties with Los Angeles where he got his first big break running a disk jockey show. In addition, his three sons by a previous marriage all go to school on the West Coast and Allen is anxious to be near them.

Allen said he planned no change in the format of his show. "We don't need a change, frankly because we have no format. As it stands now, we can do anything we want."

Literate And Engaging

Few viewers would contest that statement. Allen, a literate, engaging kind of guy, has interviewed everyone from Carl Sandburg to Gina Lollobrigida.

On the stove right now, Allen said, were plans for another movie possibly a remake of "My Man Godfrey." He is also hopeful that a serious series, "The Psychiatrist," which he and his wife, Jayne Meadows, produced, may land in a TV slot.

Most of Allen's fans are unaware of it, but the TV funnyman is also a serious writer. On Oct. 4, a book of Allen's short stories, "Fourteen For Tonight," will be published. He's also hard at work on a novel, "Presumption And Despair," and this spring he'll also publish a volume of serious poetry.

Connie Mack Comes Through Very Well

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Connie Mack's physician hoped today there would be "no complications" as a result of the hip operation on the 92-year-old former owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Dr. Illarion I. Gopadze, Mack family physician, and Dr. Robert A. Barnett performed the two hour and 40 minute operation on his fractured right hip Wednesday. They said the grand old man of baseball came through "very well."

Mack's hip was pinned in the operation in an attempt to speed recovery, Gopadze said. He added that "fragments of the fractured bone were secured in good position.

Mack's wife, Katharine, and other members of the family remained in Presbyterian Hospital during the operation. Mack suffered the hip fracture in a fall from bed in his apartment last Saturday.

Saddy Suggests Elimination Tourney

MILWAUKEE Wis. (UP)—Fred Saddy, head of the National Boxing Association Rating Committee today suggested an elimination tournament between Hurricane Jackson, Nino Valdez and Bob Baker, with the winner to fight Rocky Marciano for the world heavyweight championship.

"Marciano has punched his way out of good opponents," Saddy said. He recommended the tournament as the best way to select a contender. He made the suggestion in the NBA quarterly ratings.

Marciano, the Brockton., Mass., heavyweight champion, knocked out light heavyweight king Archie Moore recently to defend heavyweight crown. The match left him without a challenger.

Moore's only challenger in the light heavyweight ranks is the fast rising Floyd Patterson.

Dr. Booth Believes Klan Copied Costume From Fierce Tribe

By ALFRED LEECH
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—Dr. John Nicholls Booth believes the Ku Klux Klan may have borrowed its ghostly costume from a fierce tribe of white men who for centuries have terrorized the Negroes of Timbuctoo.

Booth, noted lecturer and world traveler spent a week in the almost legendary city on the southern fringe of the Sahara, and studied the lore of the Tuaregs, a white tribe whose ancestry is lost in history.

"For hundreds of years the Tuaregs have lived by pillaging and robbing the Negroes of the area," Booth said. "And to this day they wear flowing white robes and mask their faces behind white veils."

Two Theories of Origin

Booth said he believes someone who had read of the exploits of the Tuaregs adapted the costume to the Ku Klux Klan.

There is a striking resemblance, he said, but the Klan altered the dress by adopting the pointed hat, apparently to make its members look like taller-than-average supermen.

Booth said the Tuaregs had no need of such artifice, as Tuareg men are well over 6 feet tall. The Tuaregs wear white turbans.

There are two theories about the origin of the tribe, now a dying matriarchy. One is that the Tuaregs were descended from a lost Roman legion. The other is that they are descendants of a band of Crusaders, cut off from returning to Europe by the fall of Tunis.

"The Tuaregs carry huge double edged swords, similar to those used by the Crusaders," Booth said. "And each Tuareg carries a poinard strapped to the inside of his left forearm."

Males don the veil on reaching manhood, he said, and from then on they never let their faces be seen.

By the time of Columbus and the discovery of the new world, Booth said, the black tribes of Timbuctoo had built up the richest Negro Trading center in history.

Had Superior Weapons

"Camel caravans were said to number as many as 10,000 animals," he said, "and the trade was augmented by canoe traffic on the Niger River. Gold was said to have been hauled in by the tons."

This was the lush trade off which the Tuaregs lived. A band of nomads on the desert fringe they raided the caravans and terrorized the Negroes.

"They had superior weapons, and through the centuries they built up a myth of white superiority and downright invincibility" Booth said.

"I'll never forget the first Tuareg I ever saw. We were riding in our jeep-type car when a Tuareg on horseback, his broadsword by his side, appeared on the crest of a sandy ridge.

"It was impressive to say the least."

Jim Bryan of Phoenix, Ariz., was the 1954 AAA big car auto race champion.

DC4 That Crashed, Killing 66, Was Within Its Normal Pattern

CLOTHING FOR THE NEEDY — Lt. Wanda McGregor, left, and Lt. Dorothy Kornoelje, of the Salvation Army, check over clothing which will go to needy persons. The Army, as a member of the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc., receives its support from the residents of the county. The Chest opens it annual drive October 10.

Community Chest Helps Salvation Army Carry Out Social And Spiritual Program

(EDITORS' NOTE: This is another in a series of articles describing a county-wide agency which is participating in the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc.)

For more than 80 years the Salvation Army has served the nation and many parts of the world with a wide program of social service and character building.

Developed as a means for taking care of the needy, and guided by religion, the Salvation Army serves Whitley County through its Citadel in Columbia City.

The Salvation Army is a member of the Community Chest of Whitley County and carries out its county-wide activities from gifts to the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc.

Of primary importance, according to Lieutenant Wanda McGregor, and Lt. Dorothy Kornoelje, is the Army's willingness to assist those in need. The Whitley County Citadel gives the county a link with an international organization which has come forward in many places to distribute aid during times of emergency.

But just as important are the activities of the Citadel in the county. Commanders of the Whitley County Salvation Army direct the distribution of clothes, food and furniture to those who need it. Included on the list of recipients are travelers stranded in the county and needing aid.

The Army directs its efforts at helping persons who have lost their homes through some catastrophe and who are in need of food or clothing.

A social welfare and spiritual organization, the Army helps in the training of character in today's youth. The youth program in Whitley County includes weekly meetings with training in games and handicraft. The Army conducts a Daily Vacation Bible School each summer.

Nationally known for its readiness in times of emergency, the Salvation Army, through your community Chest, is prepared to care for emergencies in Whitley County as well.

President Now Nears End Of Critical Period

Of His Recovery Without Complications

DENVER (UP)—Another sound night's rest was added today to the encouraging news from President Eisenhower's bedside as another indication that the chief executive is nearing the end of the critical period of his recovery without any of the feared complications.

In their first medical bulletin of the day the President's doctors at Fitzsimons Army Hospital reported at 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST):

"The President had another good night. He slept soundly and almost continuously for eitht hours. His condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications."

Mr. Eisenhower went to sleep at 9:30 p.m. Thursday night and slept until 5:30 a.m. with few awakenings.

Plans for the remainder of the President's recovery period will depend largely on the outcome of conferences in Denver this weekend between Dr. Paul Dudley White Boston heart specialist, and the President's physicians at Fitzsimons Army Hospital.

But there were no indications that the doctors would change their plan to keep the Chief Executive in the hospital's quiet comfort for another two weeks before moving him to some other spot—such as Mr. Eisenhower's Gettysburg, Pa., farm—for convalescence.

At President's Request

Vice President Richard . Nixon will fly here Saturday at the President's request for a brief bedside conference with the Chief Executive and his first direct contact

Scientists Say Satellite Work Scientific, Not Effort To Beat Russia Into Outer Space

By JOHN W. FINNEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Scientists insisted today that U.S. work on an earth-circling satellite is part of an international scientific venture and not an effort to beat Russia ito outer space.

The Defense Department, in announcing Thursday that "work has begun" on the U.S. project, called this country's satellite "the first man-made" satellite. The department said the United States would launch 10 of the gravity - defying spheres, using triple-stage rockets.

But Russia has claimed it also is working on a man-made satellite. It announced shortly after the White House first disclosed the U.S. project last July 29 that Soviet scientists hoped to have their satellite space - bound within 18 months.

If that aim were achieved, the Soviet body would be circling the earth six months before the first U.S. satellite is scheduled to be blasted off about the begining of the International Geophysical Year. The geophysical year opens July, 1957.

Scientific Purpose Only

Scientists conceded the first U.S. satellite may be launched before the target date. But if it is, scientists insisted, the purpose will be scientific and not to claim a first over Russia in man's initial step to break the space barrier.

Scientists involved in the project said no speed-up has been ordered in launching plans because of Russian claims about the Soviet satellite. But it was known that U. S. scientists have tended to take the Russian announcement with a grain of salt.

The Defense Department's announcement Thursday strips some of the secrecy away from the U.S. satellite. The department disclosed that the basketball - sized sphere will be shot into space by a triple-stage rocket which will thrust the satellite upward at the fantastic speed of 18,000 miles per hour—a speed sufficient to offset the earth's gravitational pull.

To Circle Earth

When in its elliptical orbit, the satellite will circle the earth once every one or two hours for several days at distances ranging from 200 to 800 miles from earth. Gradually it will be brought closer to the earth through the slight drag of the earth's atmosphere and finally disintegrate like a shooting star.

The principal contracts for initial work on the satellite went to two firms which played an important role in earlier rocket research. The Glenn L. Martin Co. of Baltimore was awarded the prime contract for a major part of the project—development of the rocket launching vehicle. General Electric Co. will supply the rocket motor which will be used in the initial push of the satellite away from the earth's surface.

Guardsmen Man Posts In Rain At New Castle

Bloody Violence Might Erupt Again

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP)—National Guardsmen manned their posts in the rain in this tense city today as two sources warned that bloody strike violence might erupt again.

Neither state nor city officials could find a basis for re-opening truce talks between the CIO United Auto Workers and Perfect Circle Corp. management.

Mayor Paul McCormack asked the Guard battalion to stay indefinitely and warned a recurrence of Wednesday's wild gun fight is a distinct "possibility." UAW Leader William Caldwell said union men throughout the Midwest have "high sentiments," he cannot control them, and they "might come back."

Try to Reach Craig

Governor George Craig's staff tried to reach him in Florida to find out what to do next. One of them said the riot gave Indiana a "black eye" and only labor and management can iron out their differences.

"I don't think any further efforts on our part would help anyone," he said. "It's up to them to sit down and get this thing settled."

Schools were open and most residents went to work as usual. But they saw Army halftracks posted at street corners and watched truckloads of armed Guardsmen patrol the city. Road blocks screened away outsiders unless they had good reason to be in town.

Can't Lure Industry

G.K. Hewit, president of the Citizens State Bank, said the two-month-old Perfect Circle strike has had little effect on business but the riot, he feared, will make it impossible to attrack new industry to this manufacturing community for years to come.

A Perfect Circle striker said he hasn't had a pay check in 11 weeks and his family is living on borrowed money. He said we've stayed close around home and thought about every nickel before we spent it."

McCormack expected the troops to keep "limited" martial law clamped on New Castle until the threat of violence has passed.

Richland 4-H Youths Honored At Meeting With Farm Bureau

The achievements of the Richland township 4H Clubs 1955 program were honored Thursday night at a combined meeting of the clubs and the twonship Farm Bureau.

Representing the Farm Bureau, Gaylen Wilkinson, chairman, also made remarks praising the township 4-H work in 1955. Mrs. Walter Halt, chairman of the township 4-H adult sponsors, presented pins to 4-H Club junior leaders in the absence of Miss Mary Ellen Schuman, leader, who is away at school. All the girls club members who completed projects this year were also given pins.

At the conclusion of the program, Harold Buckenmeyer, assistant county agent in charge of 4-H success of the work of the township clubs. On behalf of the Citizens State Bank in Columbia City, Buckenmeyer presented cookie presses in the design of the 4-H Club emblem to all girls who marched in the parade of champions at the 4-H Fair.

Entertainment on the program was provided by magic acts by Roger Rollins, Larwill high school junior. Club members also presented a "Mock Wedding" to the entertainment of the audience of parents and Farm Bureau members.

Agents Smash Plot To Kill Syngman Rhee

Announce Arrest Of 8 Conspirators

SEOUL, Kirea (UP)— Counter-intelligence agents smashed a plot to assassinate President Syngman Rhee and arrested eight conspirators, it was announced today.

The assassins planned to kill Rhee with hand grenades and then take over the government, the Office of Public Information announced.

Republic of Korea agents captured the men Monday, the day set for the attempted assassination, the government said.

According to the announcement, the gang planned to murder Rhee during the celebration of the 4,288th birthday of Korea at the Seoul capital grounds. But Rhee unexpectedly cancelled his plans to attend.

A second attempt was scheduled for the following day while Rhee attended graduation exercises at the Republic of Korea's military academy at Kuktong, seven miles north of Seoul. But the CIC agents moved in to break up the conspiracy.

The announcement identified the ringleader as Kim Kae Ho, a former official of the defunct Korean Independence League and a onetime member of the "Blue Cloth Society" in China. Kim Koo, leader of the league, was once Rhee's top opponent in a presidential campaign. He was assassinated by an army officer in 1948 after being accused of working with the Communists.

The announcement said the gang hoped to pull a large-scale coup after killing Rhee and take over control of the Republic of Korea. It did not link the plot with Communist subversion.

It was the third disclosed plot against Rhee's life since 1952.

Red-Supported Candidate Takes Command Lead

In Presidential Election In Brazil

By JUAN DE ONIS
United Press Staff Correspondent

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UP) — Juscelino Kubitschek, Communist-supported candidate of the Social Democratic Party, took a commanding lead today in Brazil's presidential elections. His victory appeared assured.

Joao Goulart, Kubitschek's running mate, also moved out in front in the separate race for the vice presidency. He, too appeared a certain winner.

Returns, as reported by the semi-official Radio National, gave Kubitschek an ever - increasing lead over his losest competitor, Adhemar de Barros, millionaire industrialist candidate of the Social Progressive Party.

Victory for Kubitschek was predicted when counting of the estimated 10,000,000 ballots cast Monday neared the halfway mark with the majority of his strongholds still to report. The 54-year-old former governor of Minas Gerais lagged behind in the early returns but surged ahead with the increasing returns from his home state.

Kubitschek ran with the support of the Labor Party and the Communists, whose party is outlawed in Brazil but continues to operate openly. He is considered the political heir of the late President Getulio Vargas who committed suicide last year after his ouster by the military.

Goulart, his running mate, is a protege of Vargas and a leader of the Vargas abor Party. The armed forces once forced his ouster from the Vargas cabinet as a prelude to the movement against the late president himself.

President Joao Cafe Jr., who succeeded Vargas, did not run for re-election. He threw his support behind the army-supported 56-year old Tavora who ran as the candidate of a three-party coalition headed by the National Democratic Union.

Salgado, 60-year old former leader of the Brazilian Fascist movement, was the candidate of the rightwing Party of Popular Representation.

An organizational meeting of the shareholders was set for October 20. At that time, the shareholders will elect the board of directors. That meeting will be held at 8:00 p.m. in the Wolf Lake high school.

The proposed school would include children in the area of the Merriam school at present. The Merriam school includes only the first six grades.

Those present enjoyed a potluck supper before the meeting. It was the regular Parent-Teacher meeting.

Cattlemen Are Seeking Disease Free County

Signing Petitions For Control Program

Petitions for the control of the brucellosis disease in Whitley county cattle are being signed by beef and dairy owners as rapidly as local committeemen can get to them, states Merle Kyler, county chairman of the project. First reports from men carrying the petitions indicate a strong sentiment in favor of freeing Whitley herds of the dreaded disease. Beef and dairy owners started a drive late last month to qualify the county for area testing under the general supervision of the Indiana Livestock Sanitary Board.

"Brucellosis is a disease of domestic animals which is frequently transmitted to man", Kyler explains. "Rarely is it transmitted from one person to another. In cattle, brucellosis causes reduced milk production, dead calves, and sterility.

In man, the disease usually appears as a prolonged fever and has a tendency to become chronic, lasting many years, according to a member of the Whitley County Medical Society. The incidence of undulant fever in Whitley county is comparatively high."

"Many cities are now requiring that all milk and milk products for human consumption, be produced from herds free of brucellosis," according to Kyler. "Such rulings are being considered by cities now buying Whitley county milk. The control of brucellosis depends on continuous blood testing with the slaughtering of any animal reactors. Diseased cattle must be removed from Whitley county herds to assure good market outlets."

A 1949 State law enables counties to institute and maintain within the county an area program of control for brucellosis in cattle. Whenever 75 per cent of the owners of at least 75 per cent of the cattle petition the county commissioners and the State Livestock Sanitary Board for an area program, action will be taken to put a control program into effect. Petitions in circulation are for the purpose of qualifying under the act.

Treacherous Air Current Caused Great Turbulence

May Have Prevailed At Time Of Crash

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UP) — The United Air Lines DC4 that smashed into 12,005-foot Medicine Bow Peak killing all 66 persons aboard, in the nation's worst civil aviation disaster, was within its normal patter, a UAL spokesman said today.

Southern Wyoming's towering snowy range of which Medicine Bow is the highest mountain could be considered within the route of its bigger airlines although many aviation maps direct lighter planes to flat countryside 20 miles east, he said.

Wyoming Aeronautics Director George Nelson said "a little downdraft" could drop a heavily loaded plane into the face of the peak. The DC-4 had only one empty seat when it crashed.

A spokesman for United Air Lines said that while the DC-4s generally try to fly about 10,000 feet they occasionally fl as high as 15,000 feet. Medicine Bow Peak is 12,005 feet high.

Bits Of Wreckage

Hod Campbell, managing editor of the Laramie Dail Bulletin who arrived at the crash scene with the first rescue workers' said the plane struck the mountain at an angle of almost 90 degrees. The tiny bits of wreckage on the mountainside testified to the force of the explosion and impact when the plane struck, he said.

Campbell said the plane apparently entered a small saddle in the mountain range where passengers would have been able to see mountain peaks for the first time. A few minutes later the plane crashed.

Most of them probably never knew what happened, he said.

Rescue workers reached the wreckage late Thursday. They as-

Faure Demands National Unity And Wins A Brief Flurry Of Support

By ARTHUR HIGBEE
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS (UP)—Premier Edgar Faure's demands for national unity against foreign interference in France's North African empire won him a brief flurry of support today in the hostile National Assembly.

But whether he could stave off defeat and save his crumbling cabinet appeared doubtful. The lines already were drawn against him and speculation already had begun on the name of his successor.

Faure's downfall would hit hard in international diplomacy. It would almost certainly force postponement of the Big Four foreign minister conference scheduled to begin in Geneva three weeks hence.

Refused To Quit

Faure rejected demands from his deserting supporters to quit now and demanded the full dress debate on the Moroccan mess. His parliamntary majority was down to a hairline as he began to fight for the premiership.

The 47-year-old premier went before the assembly Thursday night and called for a united French stand against the foreign interference he said threatened Morocco and Algeria.

He had won some support last weekend when he recalled the permanent French delegation from the United Nations because the body voted to discuss the Algerian problem — a problem France considers strictly an internal one.

Since then France has accused Spain of harboring rebels in Spanish Morocco — a charge officially denied by the Madrid government this morning.

Walking A Tightrope

Faure was walking a tightrope in the assembly. Ranged against him were at least 304 of the assembly's 627 votes. He could count on only 189 for sure. The Socialists—critical of his policies — and the splinter groups held the balance. If only 10 of them opposed him France would need a new premier its 22nd since the war.

Jefferson Chapel History Reported On 60th Anniversary

The Jefferson Chapel Methodist church observed its 60th anniversary last Sunday with an all-day homecoming.

The homecoming committee included Mrs. Walter Schinbeckler, Mrs. John Shoda and Aubrey Hartley. The Rev. J. E. Lawshe is the pastor of the church.

Plans for the church were started in 1878 when ground was purchased from Anderson Smith for $35.

June 4, 1895 Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schinbeckler deeded three-fourths of an acre more or less for $1.00. The deed specified plans for keeping up the fences and that the land was to be used only for church and religious purposes and if abandoned it would revert back to the grantors.

Trustees were as follows; Soloman Gillam, Emanuel Glick, Chas. E. Kiser, Frank Robinett, Jeter Hiler, James Owen, Peter Smith, David Clark, and Daniel Berry.

Rev. Baron, Warsaw, was the pastor, Frank Spohnhauer was the carpenter. Pratt and Son of Fort Wayne were brick contractors.

Some personal reminiscence of early members were: John Schinbeckler, then a lad of 13 says he helped the carpenter put up the first rafter. Nora Schinbeckler, Ella Kiser-Bridge and others called on neighbors and friends for donations to buy a carpet. Mrs. Lulu Taylor walked most of the time and brought in donations of $300. Mrs. Mary Hasty and Mrs. Ella Shoda collected money for the first clock.

Of the nearly 50 members listed at the "Town House" where they met for worship before 1895 three of them are still living: Mrs. Chloe Berry, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Nora Schinbeckler, Angola; and Mrs. Pearl Robinette in Jefferson township.

Some of the members who were added soon after the church was built are: Mrs. Laura Hollman, Addie Fairchild, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thresher, Mrs. Lizzie Bozworth and Mrs. Mary Schinbeckler.

In 1926 Sunday School rooms were added costing $3500 with $1500 more for a furnace.

Trustees were Frank Pequignot, Emanuel Glick, Peter Smith, Leroy L. Kimmel, Melvin Hasty, William Hasty, Aubrey Hartley, Logan Freck, Fred Dunfee, Paul Kelsey, Harmon Robinett, and Frank Robinett. Rev. Seth Painter of Monroeville, was the pastor.

HERE AGAIN
R. K. Shallenberger

Nationally known expert will personally demonstrate his method without charge at Clugston Hotel Columbia City Monday, Oct. 10th from 11 A.M. to 2 P.M.

Mr. Shallenberger says the Shallenberger method contracts the openings in remarkably short time in the average case, regardless of the size or location of the rupture, and no matter how much you lift or strain, and puts you back to work the same day as efficient as before you were ruptured.

The Shallenberger Rupture Shield has no leg strap; waterproof, sanitary, practically indestructible, and can be worn while bathing. Each shield is skillfully molded and fitted to the parts under heat, which gives a perfect fit and satisfaction.

Large and difficult ruptures, following operations especially solicited.

Do not overlook this opportunity if you want gratifying results. Mailing address Angola, Ind. (adv.)

Democratic Candidates for City Office

FROM Pakistan to Peru, the average American home is the symbol of luxurious living. Even such a frivolous U.S. toy as an electric train was the sensation of a foreign trade fair recently. Without the tremendous main bearing of the American press with its reports on what's new and its advertising to show the way to attaining new things, our standard of living would never have attained these heights.

Jenner Says Tons Of Red Propaganda Pouring Into U. S.

CHICAGO (UP)—Sen. William Jenner (R-Ind) has charged that "literally tons of Communist propaganda are pouring into this country every day."

Jenner made the accusation Thursday as he conducted Senate subcommittee hearings on Red propaganda. Chicago has been described as a key distribution point for the propaganda, which ranges from "girlie" magazines to praises for Russian industry.

Jenner said these "tons" of propaganda "are being disseminated over the length and breadth of this land in clear violation of the law."

They carry no label identifying them as Red propaganda, and thus violate the foreign agents registration act, he said.

Irving Fishman, deputy collector of customs at New York and one of the committee witnesses, pointed to 15 mail sacks piled in the hearing room and said they represented about half the Red propaganda "that flowed into the Chicago post office in the last two days."

The post office has turned up 521,000 packages, containing 1250,000 individual items of Communist propaganda which were intercepted during July and August he said.

About half of the propaganda end up in the hands of schools, labor unions, individuals, and newspapers it was testified.

Heavy Rain Soaks Indiana

By UNITED PRESS

Heavy rain soaked Indiana from the banks of the Ohio to the shores of Lake Michigan today.

Twenty-four hour totals up to 7 a.m. CDT ranged up to 3.20 inches at Wabash and few communities failed to get an inch or more.

It was one of the most general heavy rains the state has had this season. Added o inches of precipitation which fell previously since a late-summmer drought was broken late in September, the rainfall virtually eliminated the threat of major forest fires in Hoosier woodlands this autumn and made this one of the wettest falls in recent history.

The latest dampness was expected to end tonight, bringing cooler temperatures and two days of fair weather for weekend football and motoring jaunts.

The five-day outlook indicated showers will return Monday for a two-day stand with totals averaging one-half to one inch.

The latest rain poured more than 2.5 inches on Fort Wayne, Lafayette and Monticello, more than 1.5 inches on Bluffton, Peru Logansport Warsaw, Rochester Terre Haute Vincennes, Danville Scottsburg and Shoals more than an inch in Indianapolis, Evansville, Marion, Covington, Crawfordsivlle, Elwood, Spencer, Greencastle, Columbus, Petersburg and Bedford, and less than an inch on Muncie Anderson, Noblesville, Portland and South Bend.

Near normal temperatures of 67 to 75 at daytime peaks and 45 to 50 at nighttime low points were expected the next five days. Today's highs will range from 62 to 68 tonight's lows 42 to 48, Saturda's ranged from 80 at Evansville to 74 at Indianapolis.

10-Year Aerial Traffic Control Program Planned

DETROIT (UP)—Civil Aeronautics Administrator Frederick B. Lee disclosed plans today for a 10-year aerial traffic control program reventthe skies over big cities from becoming as congested as the cities' streets.

He told the National Business Aircraft Assn. the program is "an attack on a grand scale" against the problems sure to arise during the next 10 years when 100 billion dollars is expected to be spent on civil and military aircraft.

To underline the anticipated increase in flying, Lee cited these figures:

Airlines carried 32,300,000 passengers in 1954 and are expected to handle 70 million by 1956.

Business flying now accounts for about four million hours a year the scheduled dmestic air carriers. By 1965 business flying is expected to total 7,200,000 hours.

In addition, Lee said that "if helicopters really do a job in the short-haul market" the passenger forecast will be exceeded in 1965.

To handle the increased traffic, Lee said, "it will be necessary to more than double the present number of navigational aid installations" to cover both high and low altitude operations.

He said it also will be necessary to have "radar, radar and then some more radar" for the aircraft controller at airports.

Traffic Death Wave Goes Into Second Weekend

By UNITED PRESS

Indiana's worst traffic death wave of 1955 swung into its second weekend today with a double-fatality accident near Bedford sending the toll higher.

The deaths of Violet Conley, 31, Bedford, and Wayne Edward, 31, Mitchell, in an Ind. 37 crash early this morning boosted the week's deaths to at least 15 with three days remaining—the deadliest of the week.

Added to the 37 deaths recorded last week in the year's most shocking accident toll, the newest deaths boosted to 104 the total fatalities weeks.

Five deaths Wednesday and five more Thursday contributed to a two-day toll of 10.

Coincidentally, two men with the same name were killed 24 hours apart in accidents widely separated geographically. John W. McKee, 65, Lafayette, died Wednesday of injuries suffered in a two-car collision. John L. McKee, 43, Holton, was killed Thursday night in a car-truck crash near Versailles.

Rainy weather contributed to some of this week's accidents, as it did last week. Forecasts of clear skies for this weekend gave heart to safety officials who hoped the weather would reduce the accidents.

Adenauer Suffers From Slight Cold

BONN Germany (UP)—Seventy-nine-year-old Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is suffering from a "slight cold" and has been ordered to remain at home for a few days, a Bonn government spokesman said today.

The West German leader is remaining in bed and has been forced to cancel all scheduled appointments.

He was examined by two doctors today, but was in touch with his office and carrying on government business by telephone.

Officials stressed that the chancellor's illness is not serious and gives no cause for alarm. However, he is easily susceptible to feverish colds and influenza. His physicians, it was pointed out, alway have to bear in mind the possibility of pneumonia in a man of his age.

Adenauer returned to Bonn Thursday after meeting with French Premier Edgar Faure for eight hours at Luxembourg on Wednesday to discuss the troublesome Saar problem.

South Bend Football Guard Hospitalized

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —South Bend St. Josepn eked out a 7-6 win over Portage Twp. Thursday night, but the victors lost the services of guard Jim Szarwark who was hospitalized with a possible broken neck.

The injury came in the third quarter of the hard-fought game, and Szarwark was rushed to Memorial Hospital at South Bend for treatment. Observers said if the injury is found to be a broken neck, it would be the worst football injury in the city in more than 20 years.

At Terre Haute, Dugger capitalized on a Terre Haute Garfield fumble during a blinding rain and wind storm to hand Garfield its fourth straight setback of the season, 7-0.

The winning touchdown was set up in the third period when Garfield bobbled the ball on its own 25. Several plays later, Dugger's Larry Hale ran over from the five-yard line and then added the extra point.

Offenders

DETROIT (UP)—Red-faced Redford Township school officials said today they were glad police answered their complaints and installed electric speed timers near a school—even though four teachers were ticketed the first day.

Reformatory Supt. Ralph Tahash said an ingensive search is being made for the men and law enfocement officers in neighboring states have been alerted about the break.

The three who escaped Thursday are Russell Gardner, 18, sentenced from Putnam County, Richard E. Sira 20 Monroe County and Herbert Closson, Allen County.

The others are Billy Barger, 19, sentenced from Greene County; James W. Tye 29, Miami County and James W. Allen, 25, Dearborn County.

Plane Crash

certained that all on board, including two little children in their mothers' arms, were dead.

A Fierce Snowstorm

Before the wreckage could be searched completely, a fierce snowstorm started and the rescue workers had to retreat to a base camp, six miles to the southeast. The snow stopped during the night and a strong wind continued, but the rescuers started climbing again at dawn.

Capt. Gerald Downing of the Civil Air Patrol wing in Laramie, who was in charge of recovering the bodies, said it will take "at least two days" to get all of them down.

Twelve members of the University of Wyoming Mountain Club will do the actual work of getting the bodies out of the wreckage and lowering them down 200 feet by rope to where they can be packed on litters to the road.

The victims included 61 adult passengers, the two children, and three crew members: Capt. C. C. Cooke 34, of Menlo Park Calif.; First Officer Ralph D. Salisbury 33, of Palo Alto, Calif. and Stewardess Patricia Shuttleworth 22, of Salt Lake City.

Mother And Daughter

The children were 21-month-old Debora Tucker who was with her mother, Mrs. D. C. Tucker of Ogden, Utah, and the child of Mrs. Clifford B. Ackerman of Dover Del.

Most of the bodies were badly mangled or badly burned; some of the rescue workers who saw them judged that it would be nearly impossible to recognize at least 50.

The impact of the crash or the explosion blasted parts of the plane all over the mountainside. A part of the tail section hung on a rocky ledge about 200 feet below the original point of the crash.

Only three men using mountain climbing equipment and moving carefully, got to this ledge. They found at least 26 bodies among the wreckage. There may have been more, but the bodies were so mutilated they could not be sure.

Brothers To Be On Opposing Football Teams Saturday

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (up)—They may do some good-natured back-slapping after the game, but brothers Ted and Alex Karras will be just opponents when Indiana invades Iowa in a Big Ten football clash Saturday.

The two former Gary Emerson prep stars won't be seen holding hands in their "reunion." Ted, a senior guard, is the Hoosier's heavy-duty performer. His "kid" brother Alex, who weighs in at 248 pounds is a sophomore guard for the Hawkeyes.

"this is a football game and you want to knock people down and expect to get knocked down a time or two yourself," said Ted. "Alex is just another opponent to me and I know he'll regard me just the same."

India Today Makes Proposal On Atoms For Peace Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—India proposed today that the United Nations General Assembly and "interested governments" have the dominant voice in getting up an international agency to govern President Eisenhower's "atoms for peace" plan.

The United States and seven other charter members of the international atomic energy agency have been considering a draft statute which makes no specific provision for inclusion of India and other Asian nations on the governing board.

Who Installed New Street Signs Over The Entire City?

During the Democratic Administration of 1948-52 new street signs were erected over the entire city, replacing the illegible signs.

How different from the hap-hazard placing of stop signs (now you see it, now you don't) of the present administration.

The street signs were another community betterment plan originated by a progressive Democratic Administration.

Miami Of Florida Underdog Against Notre Dame In Game That Kicks Off Big Weekend

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer

Ambitious Miami of Florida shooting for this game for three years, is a two-point underdog against unbeaten, untied, unscored on Notre Dame under the Miami arc-lights tonight in a big intersectional game that kicks off an important weekend of college football.

Both teams will carry high national rankings into this fray before an expected capacity crowd in the Orange Bowl — Notre Dame's fighting Irish currently standing No. 5 in the nation, according to the United Press Board of Coaches, and once - beaten Miami is ranked No. 13.

UCLA, last year's national champion, also will be seen tonight in another feature of one of the best Friday night schedules of the season. The Bruins will be 27 point favorites over Oregon State, but there'll be a few state backers at those odds. State is the team that two weeks ago scored that stunning 10-0 upset over Stanford — and Stanford last week whipped Rose Bowl champion Ohio State.

SMU By 14

Southern Methodist has lost both games to date, but those were to Notre Dame and Georgia Tech (No. 4 in the national rankings). Tonight the Mustangs are 14 points favorites to get on the victory trail against Missouri.

Houston is rated a six-point favorite in a Missouri Valley Conference game against Detroit, the team that crushed Wichita a week ago, 41-0.

Also on tonight's program are Richmond-Citadel in the Southern Conference and Colorado State-Idaho State in the Rocky Mountain Conference.

For what looms as the top game on Saturday's huge program — Army vs. Michigan at Ann Arbor, Mich. — the Cadets have been strengthened by the return of halfback Mike Ziegler, who had been ineligible for disciplinary reasons but was restored to full eligibility by an amnesty granted on the visit of Prince Albert of Belgium to West Point. Prince Albert didn't change the odds, though — Michigan is favored by one point to beat Army for the first time in six meetings.

Initial Regional TV

Saturday will mark the first day of "regional" television under this year's NCAA gridiron plan, instead of a "game of the week." In games that will be seen in different areas, Holy Cross and Colgate are even money; Wisconsin is picked by seven over Purdue; Colorado is favored by seven over Oregon; and Southern California is picked by seven over Washington.

Maryland, ranked as the nation's No. 1 team, is a prohibitive 26-0 choice over Wake Forest.

Here's how the odds-men view some of the other big games Saturday:

Even money: Dartmouth-Brown.

Favored by six points: Cincinnati over Xavier, Auburn over Kentucky, Minnesota over Northwestern, Georgia over North Carolina.

Seven-Point Favorites

Favored by seven points: Michigan State over Stanford, Texas A & M over Nebraska, Rice over Clemson, Harvard over Cornell, Navy over Pittsburgh, Marquette over Kansas State, Kansas over Iowa State, Ohio State over Illinois, Oklahoma A & M over Wichita, Mississippi State over Tulane, Baylor over Arkansas, Mississippi over Vanderbilt, Wyoming over Colorado A & M.

Favored by 10 points: Oklahoma over Texas, Georgia Tech over Louisiana State.

Favored by 13 points: Princeton over Pennsylvania, Yale over Columbia, Iowa over Indiana.

Favored by 14 points: Texas Christian over Alabama, Penn State over Virginia, Florida over George Washington.

Favored by 19 points: California over Washington State.

Favored by 20 points: Duke over William and Mary.

Bums, Yanks To Get 2nd Largest Series Checks In History

NEW YORK (UP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees will receive the second largest World Series checks in history.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick announced today that each member of the world champion Dodgers who was voted a full share by his teammates will receive $9,768.21. Each member of the losing Yankees voted a full share will receive $5,598.58.

These amounts are eclipsed in World Series history only by the checks received last year by the New York Giants and Cleveland Indians. Each winning Giant received $11,147.90; each losing Indian received $6,712.50.

Last year's Wolrd Series went only four games and this year's went seven. But that made no difference in the amount the players received, for they share only in the receipts of the first four games. Last year's shares were bigger because the ball parks of the two contestants are bigger and therefore, the attendance for the first four games was bigger.

The winning team in a World Series gets to split up 42 per cent of the players' pool; the losing team gets 28 per cent, the other 30 per cent goes to the other first division teams.

Here's what each member of the other first division clubs will receive: Milwaukee Braves — $1,694.05; Cleveland Indians — $1,586.73; New York Giants — $1,081.60; Chicago White Sox — $982.23; Philadelphia Phillies — $558.98; and Boston Red Sox — $472.98.

There were no surprises in the way either the Dodgers or the Yankees split up their shares.

The Dodgers voted full shares to pitchers Roger Craig and Don Bessent both of whom were with the club less than half the season but contributed important victories in the pennant race. Craig also won a series game. Among the lesser awards, which included prizes for clubhouse men, batting practice pitchers, etc. the Dodgers voted a half-share to pitcher Jim Hughes farmed out in mid-season.

The Yankees voted full shares to pitcher Jim Konstanty, and infielders Billy Martin and Billy Hunter, although none were with the team all season.

Robinson-Olson Bout Scheduled

9 CHICAGO (UP) — Former middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson will get a chance to regain his old title from the 27-year-old champion, Carl "Bobo" Olson, in the Chicago Stadium Nov. 4.

The fight was announced Thursday by the sponsoring International Boxing Club, who said it would be televised nationally, with Chicago and the area of 150 miles surrounding blacked out, and also would be broadcast both locally and nationally.

Robinson has beaten Olson twice previously, scoring a 13 round knockout in Philadelphia Oct. 26, 1950 and winning a 15 round decision in San Francisco March 13, 1951.

However, Robinson retired from the ring after he lost to Joey Maxim in an attempt to win the world light heavyweight championship June 25, 1952, announcing that he would try to make his living as a dancer on Dec. 18, 1952.

He returned to the ring Nov. 29 1954 with a six round exhibition win over Gene Burton and since then has had six fights on a comeback campaign. He lost to Ralph "Tiger" Jones here Jan. 19 in his second comeback appearance, but won the other five brawls.

Robinson's last victory was a 10-round decision over Rocky Castellani, in San Francisco July 22, one of the three victims of Olson in previous title defenses.

Olson's other victories in defending his 160 pound crown were over Kid Gavilan and Pierre Langlois. In all Olson has won 65 of 72 bouts. His last defeat was June 22 when he was knocked out by Archie Moore in the third round of a bout for the light heavyweight title. Since then Olson has beaten Jimmy Martinez and Joey Giambra.

Pirates Purchase Catcher Krabitz

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates have purchased catcher Dan Krabitz, a 24-year-old left-handed hitter who batted .298 in 122 games with the New Orleans Pelicans this year, for 1956 delivery. Krabitz, a native of Lopez, Pa., hit 19 home runs, 10 triples and 11 doubles and will play winter baseball in the Puerto Rican League.

Richard Helps Canadiens To 2-0 Win Over Toronto

By UNITED PRESS

The National Hockey League opened its 38th season Thursday night, and it raised the same old question — how do you stop Maurice (Rocket) Richard?

The fiery Richard, who has been set down more than anyother player in the history of the league and has by the same token scored more goals than anyone else, notched the 423rd of his career to help the Montreal Canadiens to a 2-0 win over the Toronto

Light scoring Bert Olmstead scored a first period goal and Richard gained the insurance marker in the third period to make new Montreal Coach Hector (Toe) Blake's debut a successful one. However, the Canadiens may have to play without the services of Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, the league's scoring champion last season for quite some time. Geoffrion was checked high into the boards and suffered torn spine and rib muscles.

The revitalized Chicago Black Hawks, long the league doormats, downed the defending Stanley Cup champion Detroit Red Wings, 3-2, in the season opener for both clubs.

Nick Mickoski batted in the winning marker early in the third period and the Hawks' defense the poorest in the loop for the past several seasons, held. The win was Detroit's first loss on home ice since Dec. 19, 1954.

Capt. Ted Lindsay gave Detroit a 1-0 lead in the third minute of play but the Hawks tied it in the fifth minute when Metro Prystai sailed the puck past rookie Red Wings' goalie Glenn Hall.

Harry Watson moved Chicago in front, 2-1, three minutes later, but the Red Wings tied it in the closing minutes of the middle period when Alex Delvecchio tapped the puck in from the crease.

Jackson Meets Rex Layne Tonight

DETROIT (UP)—Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, a perpetual motion puglist ranked number three contender for heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano's title, paused briefly between calisthenics today and said he wouldn't predict the outcome of his nationally televised fight tonight with Rex Layne.

Sweat streaming from his 192-pound frame as he pumped to and fro doing situps, Jackson said only that he was in "good condition and ready" for Layne, a ponderous Utah farmer rated 10th among challengers for Marciano's crown.

"I get lazy when I stop working and I can't afford to be lazy against Layne tonight," modestly asserted Jackson, a four-to-one choice to win his ninth straight fight. The 24-year-old native of Far Rockaway, N. Y., appeared in top shape for the bout which could speed his chances for a shot at the Brockton Block Buster.

Heavy Rains Pound Nation, Herald CoolWave

Wyoming Blizzard Hinders Rescue Work

By UNITED PRESS

Heavy rains pounded the nation from the Missouri River Valley to New England today causing monumental traffic jams in big cities and heralding a new autumn cool wave.

In the Wyoming mountains, meanwhile, a blizzard temporarily halted rescue workers trying to recover the bodies of 66 persons who were killed when a United Air Lines DC4 crashed into a cliff Thursday.

The disaster, the worst in history of U.S. civilian aviation, could have been caused by fierce air turbulence which swept the airliner off its course, investigators said.

Autumn downpours included four inches of rain at Popejoy, Iowa, 1.44 inches in an hour at Chicago and an inch and a half in just 45 minutes at Detroit.

The outskirts of Troy, Ill., were ripped by a freak 20- minute storm which ripped up trees and turned a gasoline truck around in its tracks along a two-mile, 50-yard wide course.

The rains gave Detroit the worst beating, causing one of the worst traffic tieups in the Motor City's history. The five - hour jamup halted all street car traffic on Woodward Ave. and 30 school children trapped in a bus were rescued "piggy back" fashion by police.

At Kalamazoo, Mich., a rain-slicked pavement was blamed for the crash of an automobile into a crowd of about 30 school children. The car skidded as it rounded a school bus and smashed into the youngsters. A 14-year-old boy and the bus driver were killed and 14 children were injured.

Rains, which drenched Chicago with 3.63 inches of water in 48 hours, chose Thursday evening's rush hour for their biggest downpour.

Southbound traffic on Lake Shore Drive came to an almost dead halt for two hours and motorists climbed to the roof of their cars to exchange bitter comments about the weather.

Authrities reported 2,000 basements and 23 underpasses flooded, while water bubbled up through bathtubs, sinks and toilets n suburban homes.

Behind the rains, temperatures dropped as much as 33 degrees in the central Plains. Such a drop was registered at Akron, Colo. where the temperature was 31, and Chadron, Neb. had a 32-degree drop to 33.

At Dallas Tex., meanwhile, the mercury went from a hot 93 to 78 in 15 minutes and a near-freeze was expected in the state's Panhandle.

Rebel Guerillas Step Up Hit And Run Offensive

Failure Of Spain To Control Zone Could Mean War

By WIBUR ANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent

TAZA, Morocco (UP) — Rebel guerrillas stepped up their hit and run offensive near the borders of Spanish Morocco today, and the French resident general warned that failure of Spain to control its zone could mean "terrible war."

Resident General Pierre Boyer deLatour issued the warning after entering the battle zone with an armored column to inspect the hard-pressed French bases in the Riff mountains of the north. Rifle fire from surrounding peaks cracked out as he arrived.

In Madrid, the Spanish foreign office early today denied that Moroccan rebels were getting aid from the Spanish zone but promised to "take necessary measures" to prevent infiltration across the border, scene of the bloody Riff wars of 30 years ago.

Reported Spanish Haven

An official Spanish communique reiterated previous denials of French charges that rebel commandos attacked French forces from a haven in Spanish Morocco. The French have charged the rebels with retreating back across the border when hard pressed by French troops.

French troops complained that the rebels were carrying out a hit-run offensive of night time attack and mysterious daytime vanishing acts.

In the Riff country around Taza reinforced French forces were succeeding almost daily in cleaning out the terrorist bands that control and besiege outposts with deadly fire from the badland hilltops.

But at nightfall the rebels slipped back from their hideouts to wreck newly-dug trenches, just-repaired bridges and communications.

Centered In Triangle

The heaviest fighting was centered in the triangle just below the Spanish border formed by the operational headquarters of Aknoul and the embattled outposts of Tizi Ouzla and Boured.

But the rampaging Riff tribesmen struck south of Aknoul in small h/rassing actions. They cut the telephone wires and road leading 37 miles south to Taza.

Terrorist action was not limited to the north. Some skirmishes were reported in the middle Atlas Mountains to the south. In the great port city of Casablanca terrorists killed two policemen with submachine gun fire in the old Medina section.

In Fez, the Moslem holy city of Morocco, police clamped a curfew on the Medina after a series of terrorist acts.

Thieves stole a truck and trailer, containing 34,000 pounds of coffee from the company's yard Thursday.

Boy Locks Brother, Another Boy In Trunk In Attic

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP) — Juvenile authorities today held a broken-hearted 10-year-old boy who admitted locking his brother and another boy in an attic trunk where they were suffocated.

Authorities said Jim Primicerio, a "keen boy with lots of imagination and dreams," admitted locking the attic trunk in which the bodies of his brother, Dominick, 3 and Daniel Bencivengo 8, were found Thursday after an all-night search.

The bodies were found when Jim told his mother "Maybe they're in the trunk upstairs. They used to play there."

Authorities said he told several stories when they questioned him after the bodies were found, but finally confessed. He sobbed, "If my brother dies, I'll die too."

Asst. Police Chief Raymond J. Eagan said the boy told him he and the other two youngsters had been playing rocket ship with himself as gunner and the other two as the crew in the trunk-ship.

Eagan said Jim explied that he shut the lid of the trunk to keep his playmates from following him out of the attic.

American Legion Opens National Convention Sunday

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—A 41-year-old Battle Creek, Mich., attorney promised today an all-out battle "until the last vote is counted" in his campaign to become national commander of the American Legion.

J. Addington Wagner hopes to succeed the present commander Seaborn P. Collins of Las Cruces, N.M., when the legion opens its national convention here Sunday. He got a healthy boost Thursday when W.C. Daniel of Danville, Va., announced he will not be a conender until next year.

"I've been running for two years and I've aimed all along at the 1956 convention in Los Angeles," Daniel said. He promised his support this year to Wagner.

Other top candidates are Thomas Paradine of New York and Truman C. Wold of North Dakota.

Wagner arrived by plane Thursday with his wife and 11-year-old son, John, and began setting up his campaign headquarters. His campaign manager Herman Luhrs of Birmingham, Mich., said "We are confident but not cocky. We're going to try for every vote possible."

Some 50,000 legionnaires are expected for the convention. Most of the top officials already were on hand fr pre-convention cmmittee meetings which started tday.

Auto Industry Reports Sales Soar To Record Levels

DETROIT (UP)— The automobile industry reported today sales soared to all-time record levels in September, indicating the boom in the nation's key industry was getting even bigger instead of leveling off.

General Motors, which produces more than half of the nation's automobiles, said it sold more new cars during September than it ever sold in any previous month in its history.

Ford Motor Co. said its sales in the last 10 days of September were higher than in any previous 10-day period in its history.

The record sales, coming in a month when automobile sales usually are at one of their lowest points of the year, were viewed as a strong indication that even all-time record sales of 1955 models might be in danger in the 1956 market.

Hitler Generals Come Home From Russian War

First Of POWs Given Amnesty By Soviets

HERLESHAUSEN Germany (UP)—Two dozen of Adolf Hitler's generals came home from the Russian war early today, the first of 3,877 war prisoners given amnesty by the Soviets under a promise to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Another contingent of 32 generals were to arrive later today and another 32 Saturday.

The men were weak from improper nourishment as they shuffled across the border. They wore long new overcoats and stiff new hats supplied by the East Germans, and they had on new East German suits.

Among the generals freed today was Walter Von Seydlitz, commander of the German 51st Corps at Stalingrad and leader of the "Committee for a Free Germany" formed by the Soviets among officers captured in that battle.

Seydlitz was a close aide to Gen. Friedrich Paulus, German commander at Stalingrad who surrendered 100,000 men in a Soviet victory that marked the turning of the war on the Eastern Front. He was said to have influenced Paulus to join the "Free Germans."

Paulus was returned to East Germany last year and has been mentioned frequently as candidate for a high post in the Communist zone army now being formed.

The scene of the midnight homecoming was a dark railway station that straddles the border. A handful of West German villagers cheered and a few offered flowers and drinks. The generals rode off to a repatriation center in a garland- decorated bus, their eyes misty.

They were welcomed officially by the refugee minister of Lower Saxony who told them, "The thoughts of all Germany are with you."

Monotonous

MIAMI (UP) — Andrew Waers 41, told Judge Cecil Curry he went out and got drunk because it was "awfully monotonous" staying at home doing the dishes and making beds while his wife worked.

"Well, we'll break the monotony for you," Curry said. "Fifteen days in the city jail."

The first recorded Olympic games occurred in 776 B.C. in Greece when Coroebus of Eliswon Greece when Coroebus of Elis won the only event on the program, a race of approximately 200 yards.

with the President since Mr. Eisenhower's heart attack Sept. 24.

The temporary White House emphasized, however, that the doctors will call the turn on when and for how long Nixon will see the President. The conference also will be confined stricty to non-controversial matters.

Nixon will fly here on the same plane with White, Sherman Adams, the President's top assistant, and Maj. John S. Eisenhower the Chief Executive's son.

Barring complications, White and Major Eisenhower will fly back East Sunday night. Adams has been in Washington to attend National Security Council and cabinet meetings.

The encouraging note in the news from the President was typified in the 9 p.m. MST (midnight EDT) bulletin from his doctors They said:

Had Comfortable Day

"The President had a comfortable day. He has been cheerful and relaxed. His condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications."

At the outset, the doctors described the first two weeks period, which ends Saturday, as the critical phase of the President's recovery. They warned that complications could set in at any time and that he will not be "out of the woods" until that stage is passed.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President suggested a visit from Nixon earlier this week but that the doctors felt it should be postponed until the weekend when the President clears the two week critical period.

The first national presidential nominating convention in American history was held by the Anti-Masonic Party on Sept. 26, 1831, in Baltimore.

Mayor's Decision To Reopen Plant Raises Threat Of Violence

HELPING PATIENTS AND RESIDENTS - Mrs. Mary Stoner, a Red Cross Gray Lady, prepares to write a letter for Mrs. Wallabergy O'Brien, Fort Wayne, a resident of the South Whitley Rest Home. Red Cross Provides Wide Range Of Services Through Community Chest Collected Funds

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles describing a county-wide agency which is participating in the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc.)

The Red Cross, as an organization locally, nationally, and internationally, has a long list of far-reaching responsibilities. And the Whitley County Red Cross Chapter participates fully in the program of teaching and planning as well as serving as a welfare agency.

The Red Cross can be called on to serve whole communities or individuals. Included on the program is service to hospital patients, instruction in first-aid and water safety, management of a blood program for hospitals, service to members of the armed forces, and preparedness for disasters.

The Red Cross is one of the nine agencies in the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc. The Chest drive is scheduled to open October 10 throughout the county.

Known widely for its first aid work, the Red Cross last year in Whitley county completed two Standard First Aid Courses, including one at Churubusco and one for the members of the South Whitley Fire Department. The First Aid Division of the Red Cross also sponsored a first aid tent at the Northeast Indiana Boy Scout Camporee in June when more than 1500 Boy Scouts camped at the Whitley County 4H Grounds.

Water Safety is another phase of the program with instructors in Whitley County.

Nine Red Cross Gray Ladies are on duty to write letters, read, run errands, and make life happier for the patients and residents of hospitals and rest homes.

The Bloodmobile visits and Whitley County's participation in the Fort Wayne Regional Blood Center makes it possible for the county's residents to receive blood at hospitals. The collection of blood and administration of the program is under the Red Cross.

The Chapter's Home Service division is possibly the most busy. According to the annual report made in June to the Board of Directors, 120 telegrams and 50 long-distance calls were handled in a year's time by the division for members of the armed services and residents facing emergency situations. On 24-hour duty, a member of the Home Service is available at all times to care for emergency situations.

Tied in with the local Chapter, the National Red Cross gives Whitley County a direct touch with almost any place on the globe. The National Red Cross is prepared to augment the local Chapter's activities.

The Whitley County Chapter is headed by Waldo Greider, chair man, while members of the Board of Directors represent every township and community in the county.

Local Advertisement In Paper Brings TV Order From Formosa

Mrs. Clara B. Fry, Thorncreek township, has received a television set from cousins in Formosa all because they saw an advertisement in a copy of the Columbia City newspaper.

Last January 22 the local newspaper carried a story about prices, especially for food, that Mrs. Fry had received from her cousins Major and Mrs. Colby L. Cherry, living at Taipei Island, (meaning sweet potato) at the north end of Formosa.

Mrs. Fry mailed a copy of the paper to Major and Mrs. Cherry and they in turn read the advertisements and programs especially about television. They decided to present Mrs. Fry with a gift of a set and wrote for her to draw a map showing how to reach her home. They also wrote to the three firms who had advertisements appearing that day but only had a reply from one firm.

The Colbys sent the money and map to friends in Fort Wayne to buy the set and see that it was properly installed. When they arrived at the firm address it was not there; so they purchased a set from another dealer here and it was delivered to Mrs. Fry.

Mrs. Fry says, "It does pay to advertise and answer all inquiries promptly, especially to Formosa customers."

Federal Men Investigate The Cause Of Crash

Of Airliner In Which 66 Persons Were Killed

By JERRY MARTIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UP) — Three federal investigators started trying to find out today whether the worst civil air disaster in U.S. history was caused by a navigating mistake, the forces of nature or a pilot's attempt to save a few minutes by taking a shortcut over the mountains.

The disaster was the crash of a United Airlines DC4, bound from New York to San Francisco, Wednesday, against 12005 - foot Medicine Bow Peak killing 66 men, women and children. Recovmore bodies. Only four have been brought down so far.

President W. A. Patterson of United Air Lines said in Chicago that the plane was 25 miles west of where the flight plan of the pilot, Capt. Clinton C. Cooke Jr., of Menlo Park, Calif. showed it should have been.

Normal Operational Ceiling

The flight plan which was filed was over the established route which is over comparatively level ground. But it was longer than a hop of the mountains in a plane whose normal operational ceiling was not over 10,000 feet, though it could, in an emergency fly 14000

President Clears Big Hurdle On Road To Recovery

Two Weeks Without Any Complication

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower cleared today the biggest hurdle in a heart attack victim's road to recovery, two weeks without complication after the attack.

The President passed the crucial two-week point about 5 a.m. (EDT) today. The last medical bulletin from his bedside in Fitzsimons Army Hospital said he was comfortable, cheerful and relaxed.

His condition improved to a point where he scheduled a meeting at Fitzsimons either late today or Sunday with Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and a full-fledged conference on foreign affairs next Tuesday with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

New, definitive word on the President's condition and a clearer picture of his medical future was expected sometime Sunday as a result of consultation between Dr. Paul Dudley White, the Boston heart specialist; Maj. Gen. Howard MCC. Snyder, the White House physician; Col. Byron E. Pollock, chief of cardiology at Fitzsimons, and other doctors on the case.

White Huse Plane

Dr. White was expected about 4:45 p.m. (EDT) arriving on the White House plane, Columbine III, from Washington with Nixon, Sherman Adams the assistant to the President and Maj. John S. Eisenhower, the President's son.

First, the doctors will bring Dr. White up to date on the President's condition. Nixon and Adams will sit in on the early part of the medical conversations, then later in the day or sometime Sunday Nixon will have a brief session with the president, himself — the doctors permitting.

Dulles speaks in Miami Monday and immediately following his address, he will be picked up by the presidential plane and flown to Denver. He will see the President sometime Tuesday in a conference preparatory to the Big Four foreign ministers meeting opening in Geneva Oct. 27.

Security Guards Fight Way Thru Repeated Attacks

Force Surrender Of 500 Reservists

ROUEN, France (UP) — Black-uniformed Republican Security Guards fought off repeated attacks by a howling mob of 1,500 Communist - led workers and forced the surrender early today of some 500 French soldiers who had mutinied against service in North Africa.

Fifty members of the tough riot squad, formed in 1947 to combat Communist - led demonstrations, were injured when the rioters attacked repeatedly with bottles, bricks and paving stones. The police units fought back with tear gas and clubs. Ten rioters were reported hurt.

The trouble started late Friday when the young reservists, recalled from civilian life for duty in North Africa, rebelled while they were being loaded aboard trucks for a trip to an airport and a flight to Morocco which is aflame with native insurrection.

Barricaded In Barracks

They yelled their defiance of the orders, ripped the badges of rank from officers and barricaded themselves in the grey stone and red brick Richepanse barracks. Possibly 120 of the group remained loyal but another 500 or so refused to budge.

The Republican Security Guards were called up. They surrounded the 20-foot high barracks wall, only to be met with a shower of bricks, roof tiles and bottles from the men wh had been assigned to the 406th anti-aircraft and artillery regiment.

Before the Security Guards could storm the gates workers began pouring out of factories and the docks in this city where Joan of Arc was burned at the stake. With many of them singing the Internationale, they attacked the police forces.

Police Commissioner Wounded

Police said seven of their number were wounded seriously, including Police Commissioner M. Sant-Harcou.

From time to time during the battle some of the mutineers tried to flee over the walls only to be captured by the police. Then shortly before 1 a.m. police gained the upper hand and sent in an ultimatum to the rebellious soldiers — come out or be dragged out.

The rebels talked it over and surrendered. They were herded into trucks and taken to another barracks for possible punishment —and a quick flight to the Moroccan danger zones.

The fighting appeared over, but police reinforcements rushing to the scene were hit by a mob of 500 in the Rue Saint Julien near the barracks. This flareup grew in size until 1,500 workers were involved. Again police dispersed them.

Eagles Will Play Garrett Tuesday, Makes Full Schedule

With the re-scheduling of the Columbia City-Garrett high school football game for Tuesday night, the tailend of the Eagle schedule suddenly becomes more wicked than it was originally. As the schedule had first been set, the Eagles were to have played four games from October 14 to the 26. Now, the Eagles will face five teams in 15 days.

On October 11 Garrett plays here, on the 14th Kendallville plays here, on the 28th the Eagles travel to Huntington, on the 21st the Eagles travel to Decatur, and the season ends with Warsaw playing here on the 26th.

One other game between two conference teams was postponed Friday due to the muddy field. Bluffton and Decatur re-scheduled their game for the last week in October.

While four of the Northeastern Indiana Conference teams were idle Friday night, Concordia was beating Kendallville 34-13 in a conference game, and New Haven in a non-conference game, nosed South Side 13-12.

Jefferson Center Students Visit Butler University

Fifty Jefferson Center high school students visited the Butler University campus today and attended the Butler-Ball State football game in the "Butler Bowl."

The Jefferson Center Student Council, with Philip Miller president, sponsored the trip. Two school busses were used to transport the group to Indianapolis. The drivers were Hoboart Rhoads and Lester Swing, Principal Eudolph Holycross and Coach Tony Newell and Mrs. Newell were chaperones for the group.

The students left at 8:30 this morning and planned to have supper in Noblesville on their return trip this evening.

Officials Say Smooth Running Of Government

During Illness Of President

By FRANK ELEAZER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Administration officials appeared satisfied today with the smooth operation of the government during the critical first two weeks of President Eisenhower's illness.

They figured that with the President already beginning to handle official business and see official visitors, they now are over the hump.

Top members of the President's team—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams — report to the President in Denver this weekend on their stewardship. They were to fly to Colorado today (11 a.m. EDT) on the presidential plane Columbine III, along with the heart specialist, Dr. Paul Dudley White, who boarded the plane earlier in Boston.

So far as could be determined here nothing "bad" has happened and nothing "good" has failed to happen in government as a result of the President's heart attack from which he seems now well on the road to recovery.

"We were lucky," conceded White House Assistant Press Secretary Murray Snyder. "The President's staff is a good one, and it has functioned well. But there could have been a crisis, international or domestic, demanding immediate action by the President."

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, at a news conference Tuesday, said Mr. Eisenhower's foreign policy had been so well established he had not had to ask for fresh guidance. He said he was confident that when the need arose the President thereafter would be able to talk to him.

It was announced in Denver Friday that Mr. Eisenhower would see Dulles in his hospital room Tuesday to talk about plans for the upcoming Big Four foreign ministers meeting at Geneva.

Dr. James Roth Is Hospital Patient

Dr. James Roth, Whitley county coroner and resident at Tri Lakes, was admitted to the Parkview Memorial Hospital in Fort Wayne Thursday afternoon for examination as a medical patient.

The Columbia City police provided a speedy escort for an American Red Cross vehicle through this city at about 10:10 this morning. The Red Cross station wagon was making an emergency blood run from the blood bank in Fort Wayne to the Marshall County Hospital in Plymouth.

Of Subversion Along With Arms

By DONAD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Egypt has promised to guard against Communist peddling of subversion along with arms to be delivered to Arab countries, diplomatic sources said today.

These assurances were understood to have been given by Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser to American and British diplomats, who have protested Egypt's announced deals for arms from Czechoslovakia. Russia has been the middleman in the Egyptian bargaining and has offered arms to other Arab nations.

Washington and London were apprehensive that the arms deals were a sly Communist blind for spreading Communism in the Middle East. Communist agents, posing as arms "technicians," might be dispatched with the weapons, ostensibly to tell the Arabs how to use them but also to carry on subversion.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles held an urgent meeting last night with Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen shortly after Allen returned from Cairo talks with Nasser about the arms deal with the Communists.

Allen was said to have reported to Dulles:

That Nasser, despite U.S. objections, would go through with the barter of Egyptian cotton and rice for Communist arms.

That Nasser felt the deal was necessary because of Israel's arm advantage and the West's refusal ot provide arm to the Egyptians.

But that Nasse wolud guard against Communist infiltration and insist that the size of any Red missions be carefully controlled and their activities watched.

Nasser likewise was reported to have given assurances any arms would be used only for defensive purpoes.

On the basis of Allen's trip, Allied policy in the area may place even more stress on the advantages of peaceful cooperation between Is rael and the Arab states.

Dulles is expected to point to the Egyptian-Communist weapons deal as a deterrent to relaxation of East-West tensions in a major foreign policy address to be delivered to the American Legion Monday at Miami.

Rain Disrupts Red Feather Sale; Drive Opens Monday

Sale of Red Feathers to publicize the 1955 Whitley County Community Chest was disrupted by rain Friday in Columbia City. However, members of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs were manning downtown booths Saturday selling the feathers to aid the kick-off of the Chest contributions drive, which officially begins Monday.

The county's organization, under President Clarence Gall, was near completing plans for the campaign. Chairmen in all areas of the county have been named and are putting together the last details for the volunteer workers. More than 400 persons throughout the county will work on the Community Chest, Gall estimated.

The Chest president again urged Whitley county residents to "give where you live." Donations made in other counties are not returned here, but the gifts made in Whitley county go to the Whitley county agencies.

Persons will be able to select their "favorite charity," according to the pledge cards. The pledge card includes a section listing the nine agencies, and persons may specify the amount to go to any of the agencis, Gall pointed out.

The Red Feather sale precedes the actual opening date of the campaign. Buyers are being asked to wear the feathers and to actively support the campaign which supports the nine agencies in Whitley county.

Goal for the campaign has been set by the Ches't Board of Directors at $19,855.

Allocation Increased For Carrying Out Farm Conservation

Carl J. Auer, office manager for the Whitley County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, announces that an increase in funds has been allocated to Whitley county for the purpose of carrying out needed conservation practices. Farmers who desire assistance in carrying out some of these practices are requested to call the local ASC Office located above the Citizens State Bank. The provision that farmers, to be eligible for cost sharing payments in the past, were required to comply with all acreage allotments established for the farm has been repealed by the present Congress.

Wolf Lake P-TA President Gives Meeting Report

Will Hold Harvest Time Carnival

Mrs. Harry Reed, president of the Wolf Lake Parent-Teacher Association, reports that the largest number of persons ever to attend a Wolf Lake P-TA meeting attended the meeting Thursday night. Following a potluck supper, the proposed new school was discussed. A summary of the school building action was reported by this paper Friday, and Mrs. Reed's report of the overall meeting is being published.

The potluck supper was served from tables placed in the hallway of the first floor, and the meeting was held in the high school assembly room. Mrs. Reed introduced the principal, Mr. Glenn, who introduced all of the teachers.

Mrs. Pauline Erdley, the health chairman, reported that 83 children have received their second polio shot.

The group decided to hold a Harvest Time Carnival at the school in the near future. The room mothers and teachers will work together on this project and set the date. The proceeds from the carnival will be held in the treasury and be used to purchase table service at such time when the hot lunch program can again be resumed.

The attendance banner was presented to the junior class, the smallest class in school, because the highest number of parents of members of that class attended the meeting.

During the discussion of the new school building, it was announced that $1,000 in shares of stock had been sold in Noble township, making it possible for the school building corporation to be organized. That will be done at a meeting October 20.

Governor Craig Hurries Home From Vacation

To Take Personal Command Of Situation

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP) — A decision to reopen the strikebound Perfect Circle Corp. foundry raised the threat of more violence today and Gov. George Craig hurried home from a vacation to take personal command of the situatin.

The small brick foundry, center of a bloody gun battle Wednesday, was given permission to go back into production starting Monday.

Mayr Paul McCormack, acting under his proclamation of limited martial law, gave the go-ahead late Friday. He said the presence of 600 National Guardsmen in New Castle would prevent further battles.

McCormack acted against the orders of Craig, who sent the troopers into New Castle Wednesday with orders to prevent "any attempt" to reopen the plant.

Officers Not Confident

National Guard officers were willing to follow McCormack's wishes. But they were not confident they could prevent a sequel to Wednesday's battle, when 1,200 strikers and sympathizers marched on 100 non-strikers and nine persons were injured.

The troopers will be powerless to act until after the violence starts unless full martial law is imposed, they said.

A leader of the striking CIO United Auto Workers, International Representative William Caldwell, also warned that a reopened plant could be the trigger to more violence.

Caldwell said the union cannot be responsible for its members' acts if the plants is opened. "The responsibility for anything that

Task Force Of U. S. War Heroes To Write New Disarmament Plan

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The United States today began work on a new airtight disarmament plan with the aid of recalled American World War II heroes and prominent industrialists and scientists grouped into eight "task forces."

Presidential Aide Harold E. Stassen described the "task force" leaders as the "most competent authorities in American life," including such retired military leaders as Gen. James H. Doolittle, Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith and Vice Adm. Oswald S. Colclough.

The civilians and scientists included Benjamin Fairless of the United States Steel Corporation; Walter S. Cisler, president of the Detroit Edison Co.; Dr. Ernest O Lawrence, director of the University of California Radiation Laboratories; Dr. James B. Fish, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories; and Dr. Harold Moulton of the Brookings Institute.

"Open Sky" Plan

Stassen reiterated to the United Nations Disarmament Subcommittee that Washington believes firmly President Eisenhower's "open sky" arms inspection plan is the best means of insuring disarmament.

All five nations represented on the subcommittee issued long statements at Friday's session, the last until after the Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva, Switzerland, on Oct. 27.

Soviet Delegate Arkady A. Sobolev repeated the Moscow position on disarmament and said there had been some "rapprochment" of the positions of the five nations since the talks began last spring. He said the Soviets had asked for clarification of Mr. Eisenhower's proposal.

Both the United States and Russia agreed that "international confidence" was necessary for any

Press And Church Important Allies

By WILMAR L. THORKELSON
The Minneapolis Star

The "good news" of religion is finding its way into the columns of America's newspapers with increasing frequency these days.

Newspapers are devoting more space to coverage of religion and to inspirational-type features because they are aware of the reawakened interest of their readers in things spiritual.

Whether this interest represents a genuine religious revival or not, everyone should be happy that Americans are willing to look anew at their personal and national moral foundations.

For it is certainly true that the real strength of a nation lies in the quality of its people and in their character and ideals. "Righteousness exalteth a nation," the Bible says. Some historians claim to find a definite correlation in America's past between its times of religious revival and its periods of prosperity.

As might be expected, the new interest in religion has brought positive results to the churches. Membership rolls have boomed, giving has gained and thousands of congregations have erected new edifices and religious schools. Our churches have become the envy of the world.

America's press rejoices in this development for it knows that vigorous churches — like vigorous newspapers — are needed to serve America in the critical days ahead.

In an important sense, America's churches and newspapers are allies. The freedom of worship and the freedom of the press which they enjoy are guaranteed together in our constitution. And both freedoms must be continued if either is to survive. This is the lesson of history from abroad wherever the tyrant's heel has been felt.

Time after time, whenever the government of a nation has siezed control of its newspapers, it has cracked down on its churches a short time later. The reverse also has been true.

If church and press had been jealously concerned with the freedom of the other, both might have retained their liberty. Truly freedom is indivisible.

On this "Religion and the Press Day" of National Newspaper Week, we warmly salute our partners — the churches of this nation.

May the churches and the newspapers of the United States remember their historical kinship and may they serve as sentinels of democracy in preserving and strengthening religious and political freedom.

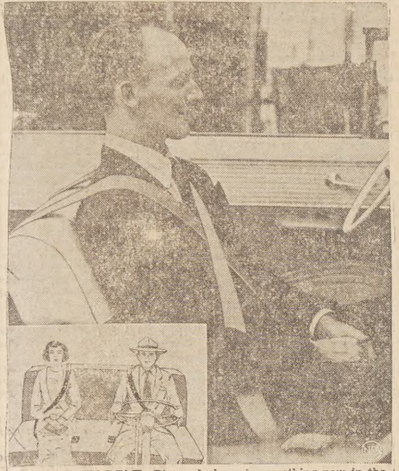
TROOPS GUARD STRIKE-TORN TOWN—Indiana National Guardsmen lean idly against their halftracks at the gates of the Perfect Circle Corp. plant in New Castle, Ind. Some 600 guardsmen were sent into the town with orders to end bloody violence at the strikebound plant. Earlier nine persons were wounded in a gun battle between strikers and nonstrikers.



NEW SAFETY BELT—Pictured above is something new in the fast-growing field of automobile safety belts. Devised by a Middletown, Conn., manufacturer of aircraft belts, it employes a unique principle of securing the wearer's entire torso to the car seat. Two six-foot belts are used, both bolted in orthodox fashion to the car frame at points below the seat back. The other end is safely secured, without mechanical fastening devices by the weight of the wearer sitting on the belts' free end. Inset shows how two passengers can each use one of the belts.

Argentine Asks End To Political Asylum Granted Ousted Peron

ASUNCION, Paraguay UP) — The Argentine charge d'affaires handed the Paraguayan government a note Friday night asking the end of the political asylum granted ousted Argentine President Juan D. Peron.

The note was handed over by Juan Pena to Foreign Minister Hipolito Sanchez Quell who was reported to have started immediate consideration of the note.

(Argentina Thursday disclosed it had asked Paraguay to expel Peron to "any country outside the continent" and said his continued presence in Paraguay "is incompatible with the maintenance of harmonious relations between the two countries.")

The tunnel connecting Detroit and Windsor, Ont., built 25 years ago, is the only spot in the world where an underground tunnel connects two nations.

Good, Bad News On International Balance Sheet

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

The Good

1. Ousted Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron flew to exile in Paraguay. In Buenos Aires, provisional President Eduardo Lonardi moved vigorously to smash the system which Peron had built up to keep himself in power. Lonardi started taking over the unions, combined in the General Confederation of Labor, which had given Peron most of his voting strength. He dismissed the Argentine supreme court which had given rubber-stamp to Peron's decrees. In Asuncion, the Paraguayan capital, Peron said in an exclusive interview with the United Press that he still regarded himself as "constitutional president."

2. Relations between the United States and President Tito of Yugoslavia were cleared up, and strengthened measurably, as the result of a visit to Belgrade by Robert D. Murphy, assistant under secretary of state. A long-standing dispute over the extent to which the United States was entitled to supervise the use of military aid was settled. Agreement was reached to start negotiations for 40 millio ndollars in economic aid to Yugoslavia.

3. Premier Edgar Faure of France and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany reached full agreement on the attitude they will take on the issues of European security and German unification. These issues are to be discussed at the Big Four meeting of the United States, Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia in Geneva Oct. 27.

The Bad

1. The revolt in North Africa plunged France into a cabinet crisis. Premier Faure fired four of his cabinet members, including influential Defense Minster Pierre Koenig, who refused to support his plan to give home rule to Morocco. He decided to risk his job by forcing a vote of confidence in parliament on his policies. In Morocco French armored columns supported by jet fighter planes still met fierce resistance from the tribesmen who suddenly revolted last weekend.

2. The North African situation also brought a crisis in the United Nations. In a move sponsored by "anti-colonial" delegates the annual General Assembly voted to debate the situation in French Algeria. In doing so it overrode its Steering Committee. Angered, French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay led his delegation in a walkout. The French cabinet ordered the entire delegation back to Paris. France holds that the North African situation is none of the U.N.'s business.

3. The United States failed in an attempt to induce Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt not to go through with his plan to buy arms from Communist Czechoslovakia. George V. Allen, assistant secretary of state, was sent to Cairo to talk to Nasser but got nowhere. Nasser says that he must get weapons because he fears aggresion by Israel, and will buy them from the Communists if he can not get them from the United States and its Allies.

Lunch will be served at 7 o'clock following which the Rev. Paulen will speak on the present situation in the Holy Land. Rev. Paulen spent ten weeks on both sides of the Gaza Strip last year and will present his first hand discovery of factors now operating in that area.

Movies and other activities are provided for the children. Everyone interested in family relationships or the Near East situation is welcome to attend all sessions of these services.

Tire Deflation Defendant Found Not Guilty By Court

William Stotts, Tri Lakes resident arrested upon a malicious trespass charge preferred in circuit court last June by Harold L. Gorbel, was found not guilty by Judge Lowell Pefley Friday when evidence was presented to the court.

Stotts was charged with leaving the air out of the right front and rear tires on Goebel's car June 21. He was represented by William Bloom, attorney. The state was represented by Prosecuting Attorney Edward J. Meyers.

disarmament plan.

Concealed Nuclear Weapons

Lawrence will head the nuclear task force which will seek a scientific "breakthrough" to a means of detecting concealed nuclear weapons.

Doolittle, who led the first bomber raid on Tokyo and is now vice president and director of Shell Oil Co., will head the efforts to find improved methods for aerial inspection and reporting.

Inspection and reporting methods for the ground forces will be the responsibility of Smith, wartime chief of staff to General Eisenhower and presently vice chairman of the American Machine & Foundry Co.

The task force on navies and naval aircraft and missiles will be headed by Colclough, dean of faculties at George Washington University.

Fairless will head the task force on the steel industry. Cisler will concentrate on inspection and reporting methods for power and industry in general; and Fish will be responsible for designing a communications system "necessary to implement an international inspection and reporting system."

Moulton will head the task force on inspection and reporting of national budgets and finances.

Man Fined, Sentenced To 6 Months At Farm On Morals Charge

Keith Kunkleman, 21, was assessed a fine of $400 and cost and sentenced to six months at the Indiana State Farm when he pleaded guilty in Whitley county circuit court Wednesday to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 16-year-old girl.

He was charged with the offense in an affidavit filed in circuit court August 18 and signed by the girl's father.

East Chicago Roosevelt Makes Determined Bid To Regain Top Spot In Football Ratings

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
United Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) — East Chicago Roosevelt the Calumet's grid giant, made a determined bid today to regain the No. 1 spot in Indiana high school football following its fourth straight victory of the campaign.

Coach Pete Rucinski's Rough Riders rode over West NIHSC rival Gary Mann, 27-7, little Bob Pioski scoring twice—including a 75-yard dash around end.

Roosevelt, tops in the United Press Coaches Poll for two weeks, slipped to second place behind Evansville Reitz this week. The latter has a Southern loop date at New Albany tonight.

Meanwhile, South Bend Washington and city rival Adams, also members of the Big 10, remained tied for first place in the East NIHSC but 10th-placed Gary Wallace of the West NIHSC was upended by loop foe Hammond Tech, 12-6.

Third-rated Washington, assured of its 19th straight winning season, downed LaPorte, 25-14 while Adams in sixth place, blanked seventh-rated Mishawaka, 12-0. The winners extended their winning streaks to five.

Kicks Field Goal

Also in the East NIHSC Don Stager's 16-yard fieldgoal—36 yards in all—gave Fort Wayne North a 9-6 victory over South Bend Central while Goshen whipped Michigan City, 13-7.

There were some other surprises scattered around the state, with the weatherman at least partly responsible, for most fields were soggy—if not muddy—from recent downpours. In fact, some gridirons were inundated to such an extent numerous games were postponed until tonight or Monday.

In the North Central Conference, unheralded Richmond clobbered Lafayette, 27-12, while once-beaten Marion poured it on Muncie Central 27-7. Anderson romped over New Castle, 40-0.

Eighth-ranking Boonville beat Princeton, 33-0, for its fifth straight Southern Conference decision. Seymour all but pocketed the South Central Conference title after spanking Martinsville, 26-2, for win No. 6 including five in league play. Halfback Bode Hill an old reliable, sparked the Owls to two markers, a 74-yard kickoff return and a 53-yard run.

Suffers Head Injury

Plymouth's Central Conference leaders won at Knox, 20-0, in a non-loop affair, but it may have been costly. The Rockies' only quarterback Tom Connell, was injured and carried off the field in the third period with a head injury.

One-man stunts included:

Nolan Selke, Connersville, scored four times against Franklin in a 32-0 rout.

Bob Beshears, Evansville Memorial, stole the ball and galloped 64 yards in the only touchdown against crosstown rival Bosse.

David Eudaly, Bloomington, plunged for two scores and passed for the other in a 19-0 conquest of Clinton.

Jim Cameron scored three of four TDs as once-beaten Kokomo trounced Moosehart, Ill., 25-7.

Postponements included the city clash between Indianapolis Howe and Broad Ripple, Sullivan's home game against Georgetown, Ill., and the Morton-Noll match at Hammond.

Rains Postpone Madison Regatta

MADISON, Ind. (UP) — Recent heavy rains were blamed for the postponement today of the eighth annual Madison Regatta and Gold Cup races scheduled for this weekend.

The Regatta Association rescheduled the event for Oct. 22 and 23.

The rains raised the water level in the Ohio River and created dangerous currents, a spokesman said.

About 20,000 fans had been expected for the two-day program, featuring the Governor's Trophy race, the final event this season for the huge hydroplanes in the unlimited class.

It was only the second time in eight years the regatta was postponed because of inclement weather.

Columbia City Reserve Football Team Plays Monday

The Columbia City high school reserve football team will be seeking its first win Monday evening when the Decatur reserves will play at DeVol Field.

Losses by the team this season have been to North Side, New Haven, Garrett, and Concordia. Boys playing on the team are chiefly freshman, and George Kind is the coach.

Two more games remain on the schedule, with Decatur on Monday and a game here with Howe a week from Monday.

Notre Dame Irish Ramble To 14-0 Victory Over Miami

By TIM MORIARTY
United Press Sports Writer

Among the major problems that faced Head Coach Terry Brennan of Notre Dame before the start of the current football season was finding a new quarterback and replacements for six of his seven starting linemen.

Apparently Brennan and his aides didn't have far to look. Paul Hornung, a converted fullback, already has proved an able replacement for departed signal-caller Ralph Guglielmi, while the Irish line looks as rugged as ever.

Hornung, a lanky blond from Louisville, Ky., threw two touchdown passes Friday night as Notre Dame rambled to a 14-0 victory over Miami before a record Orange Bowl gathering of 75685 fans. But it was the men up front who really stole the show.

Led by guard Ray Lemek, the only returnee from the 1954 line, the Irish linemen turned back four Hurricane drives deep in their own territory to keep their goal line still undented after three games this season.

Scored On Pass

Notre Dame scored its first touchdown at the start of the second period when Hornung passed 11 yards to end Gene Kapish. Lemek set up the second tally when he recovered quarterback Gene Reeves' fumble on the Miami 33. On fourth down and with eight yards to go, Hornung passed 32 yards to halfback Aubrey Lewis for the score.

In other major Friday night contests, Charlie Jackson's two touchdowns carried Southern Methodist to a 13-6 squeaker over Missouri; Houston opened its Missouri Conference campaign by edging Detroit, 7-0, on Jimmy Dickey's third score, and the Citadel posted an upset 14-12 victory over Richmond.

A major intersectional clash between Michigan and Army at Ann Arbor Mich., and a "back fence" duel between arch-rivals Texas and Oklahoma at Dallas feature today's college football program.

Michigan, currently the nation's No. 2 team, never has beaten Army since their series began in 1945, but this could be the Wolverines' day for revenge. They were rated slight favorites over the fifth ranked Cadets.

Texas also will be gunning for revenge in its 50th meeting with third-ranked Oklahoma. The Longhorns have lost six of their last seven games to Bud Wilkinson's Huskies and would like nothing better than to snap Oklahoma's 21-game winning streak. But the experts favored the Sooners by seven points.

Other Top Games

In other games involving top-ranked teams, Maryland's pace-setting Terrapins played host to Wake Forest; fourth - ranked Georgia Tech visited LSU, seventh ranked Texas Christian was at Alabama, eight-ranked UCA entertained Oregon State, ninth ranked Wisconsin visited Purdue, and 10th-ranked Southern California was at Washington.

The Wisconsin - Purdue Big Ten game was televised throughout the Midwest, while Western viewers were treated to a mteting between Oregon and Colorado. In the East, armchair quarterbacks had their pick between Holy Cross-Colgate and Boston College-Villanova.

Ivy League pairings found Columbia at Yale, Cornell at Harvard Dartmouth at Brown, and Princeton at Pennsylvania. But the East's biggest game was slated for Baltimore, where Navy was favored to gain revenge for last year's upset by Pittsburgh.

Other Big Ten games were Minnesota at Northwestern, Illinois at Ohio State, and Indiana at Iowa. The only Big Seven contest pitd Iowa State against Kansas, while Arkansas visited Baylor in the lone Southwest Conference action.

In Southeastern Conference tilts Tulane was at Mississippi State, Kentucky at Auburn, and Mississippi at Vanderbilt, while Colorado A&M and Wyoming battled for the undisputed lead in the Skyline Conference.

Jackson Wins TKO Over Layne

DETROIT (UP)—Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, fresh from a bloody six round TKO of pudgy Rex Layne, said today he was ready to take on Rocky Marciano for the heavyweight championship of the world.

"I'm ready to take on the champ or anyone else right now," said the third-ranked challenger for Marciano's crown confidently, "I never even got warmed up against Layne."

Nebraska Huskers Lead The Nation In Pass Defense

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP) — Unpredictable Nebraska leads the nation in pass defense but because of its hot-and-cold brand of football, the Huskers could finish the season at either end of the Big Seven conference standings.

Nebraska's record consists of a 16-0 conference win over Kansas State, a humiliating 6-0 loss to Hawaii, and a 28-20 loss to Ohio State.

Coach Bill Glassford, who has had seven stormy seasons guiding the Huskers, has been hampered this year by inexperienced players loss of candidates who couldn't make their grades, and injuries to key men. In addition, several players were dismissed from school because of the part they played in "panty raids" last spring.

Great Juggling Act

As a result Glassford said, "We have been forced into the greatest juggling act in American football."

The fans howled loud and long when little Hawaii smacked the Huskers in what was billed as Nebraska's "warm-up" game. They yelled for the scalps of the coaching staffs, but were set back on their heels when the players issued a letter taking full blame for the loss, and then went out and nearly stopped favored Ohio State.

Injury plagued the squad after the Ohio State tussle, and one starter, guard Jim Murphy, went out for the season with a broken leg. Glassford, however, patched up the ranks and Nebraska defeated Kansas State with quarterback Don Erway scoring all 16 points.

Erway has put the Huskers second behind Oklahoma in the Big Seven passing department and leads the conference in scoring with 24 points.

Tackles Texas A&M

Texas A&M tackles Nebraska here Saturday and Glassford said the Huskers will face a team with speed for the first time this year. He believes only Oklahoma is faster among Nebraska opponents this year.

Other games involving Big Seven teams are Missouri at Southern Methodist Friday night and Oklahoma and Texas at the Cotton Bowl at Dallas Saturday—a traditional, tough game for both, Iowa State goes to Kansas, Kansas State is at Marquette and Colorado at Oregon.

Detroit which shocked defending Missouri Valley Conference champion Wichita, 41-0, last Friday is host to Houston Saturday. Wichita is at Oklahoma A&M in another conference game, and Tulsa has an intersectional game at Wyoming.

Seedings, Pairings For Holiday Festival Basketball Tourney

NEW YORK (UP) — Seedings and first-round pairings for the Holiday Festival Basketball Tournament, which will be held at Madison Square Garden, Dec. 26, 28 and 29 were announced today by the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Seedings were: 1. San Francisco (NCAA champion); 2. UCLA; 3, Duquesne (defending champion); and 4. Syracuse.

First round pairings:

Dec. 26 afternoon): Syracuse-Holy Cross San Francisco - a Salle.

Dec. 26 (night): UCLA - St. John's, Duquesne-Fordham.

The tournament will continue with first-round losers meeting on the afternoon of Dec. 28 and first-round winners meeting that night. The final round will be held the night of Dec. 30. Afternoon winners of Dec. 28 will meet in a consolation final on the afternoon of Dec. 30.

San Francisco rolled to 23 victories in 24 games last season as it captured the NCAA championship. This tournament will mark the debut here of Bill Russell, San Francisco's six-foot, 10-inch All-America center.

UCLA was the only team to beat San Francisco last year. Duquesne won the National Invitation Tournament, as well as the Holiday Festival.

Sports Editor To Receive Grantland Rice Memorial Award

NEW YORK (UP)—Fred Russell sports editor of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, will be the first recipient of the annual Grantland Rice Memorial Award for "an outstanding example of sports reporting in the Rice tradition."

Devereux Milburn Jr., president of the Sportsmanship Brotherhood, today announced the selection of Russell for the award and said the presentation of the plaque will take place at a luncheon on Nov. 11, Rice's birthday.

Russell was voted the award for a column he wrote last June 10 under the title, "Maybe It's Time To Update The True Meaning Of Sportsmanship."

Witucki Signs With Argonauts

TORONTO (UP) — Casimir Witucki, former Indiana University and Washington Redskins lineman, has signed with the Toronto Argonauts of Canada's Big Four league, it was announced today.

Halfback Swink's Running Exploits Garner Headlines

DALLAS, Tex. UP) — Halfback Jimmy Swink's running exploits have garnered the headlines, but there's much more than the Rusk Rambler's rambles back of Texas Christian's appearance among the nation's football elite for the first time in nearly two decades.

Coach Abe Martin's veteran-packed crew, currently setting a dizzy pace for other Southwest Conference rivals, fly to Tuscaloosa, Ala., this Saturday for an intersectional battle with twice-beaten Alabama and Swink is sure to be a marked man.

For the burr-headed youngster has averaged just about a first down each time he's packed the ball in TCU's three straight victories over Kansas, Texas Tech and Arkansas.

Arkansas, the defending conference champion and touted as a defensive outfit, succeeded in stopping Swink for a half, but such concentration left the gate open for the rest of the Horned Frogs to start hopping.

Snatched Wayward Pass

Norman Hamilton, a 225-pound tackle nicknamed "Animal" by his mates because of his bruising play, snatched a wayward Arkansas pass and nimbly ambled 39 yards goalward to set the winning tempo.

Swink's scampering is made possible by the sleight-of-hand faking of quarterback Charles Curtis and fullback Vernon Hallbeck, who confuse the defenses with Hallbeck's smashes into the line — sometimes with and sometimes without the ball.

When the guard-turned-fullback doesn't have the ball, chances are the fans and the defense will wake up to see Swink scooting around end or through gaping holes at tackle.

A 9.6-Yard Average

Actually, Hallbeck has carried the ball once more than Swink, but the long-striding halfback has churned out 345-yards for a 9.6-yard average to 149 yards and a four-yard average for Hallbeck.

Texas Christian hasn't gone in for passing much, as yet. The Frogs haven't had to with Swink & Co., dazzling the opposition aground.

But if Alabama should suddenly devise a way to throw a halter on Swink and Hallbeck, Curtis is fully capable of opening up the defenses with passes.

The TCU-Alabama game is just one of five intersectional tilts sandwiched around a conference riller between Baylor and Arkansas this week. But even the 50th Texas-Oklahoma classic, and games between Southern Methodist and Missouri, Rice and Clemson and Texas A&M and Nebraska can't take the shine off TCU's seventh-ranked Horned Frogs.

Rangers Beat Black Hawks

By UNITED PRESS

Ron Murphy and Andy Bathgate a pair of youngsters whom new coach Phil Watson is banking on to carry the New York Rangers up the ladder in the National Hockey League race this season were the standouts Friday night in New York's opening game, 7-4, victory over the Chicago Black Hawks.

Murphy scored a three - goal "hat trick" while Bathgate scored one goal and figured in three others in leading the Rangers to their decisive victory over the revamped Black Hawks. A small crowd of 5,980 saw the game at Chicago.

Here's Some Records Men Who Kept Score Overlooked

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — The World Series is over, for which Brooklyn gives proper thanks, but the one item left to be cleared up today is that concerning records set in the classic.

Naturally, there are all kinds of records established in a thing of this sort. The most plausible kind are those which have to do with hits, runs and errors.

But let's immortalize those which the men with the scorebook have overlooked.

To wit:

Charley Silvera: Most times left on bench (7) for a 179-pound catcher who ate mashed potatoes for breakfast before the third and fifth games.

Yogi Berra: Most times fixed unmentionables before TV camera when going to bat (right handed hitter with five o'clock shadow only) in seven games (24 AB's.)

Yogi Berra: Most times chiseled cigarets in dugout while bragging about his golf.

"How's Your Leg?"

Mickey Mantle: Most times asked "How's your leg?" before, during and after seven game series.

Mickey Mantle: Most times replied "Ugh," ditto seven games.

Pee Wee Reese: Most times accepted golf challenges during batting practice 7); and most times refused to give strokes (7).

Del Webb: Most times owner hit by foul ball (1) in one game; also in seven games 1).

Casey Stengel Lost times confused sportswrites (12,3,4,56 and 7 games.)

Walt Alston: Fewest times manager spoke to anybody (12,3,4,56 and 7 games.)

Russ Meyer: First right-handed pitcher from Peru Ill., who eats eclairs left-handed to pitch 1st inning relief in 6th game.

Bill Skowron and Bob Cerv: Most times disgusted Yankees threw bats in one inning (2).

Johnny Podres and Don Hoak: Most times jittery Dodgers ducked bats thrown in one inning (2).

Sandy Amoros: Most times winning outfielder said "Hokay, huh?" while smoking cigar and celebrating victory (1).

Jeremiah Flotsam: First spectator to make a foul ball catch and sit down without waving idiotically at the TV cameras.

Two Teams: Most players afflicted with Charley horses, gout, lumbago, barber's itch berls (Brooklyn players only) hangnails and nasal drip (7 games).

And, of course, the most important record of all:

Most times Brooklyn fans celebrated a World Series victory 1).

Which I sincerely hope, will put an end to this record binge for one baseball season, at least.

Benham, Nation's Offense And Forward Passing Leader

NEW YORK (UP)—Little Claude Benham of Columbia, who ran and passed for a total of 239 yards in the Lions' 20-7 loss to Princeton last Saturday, is the nation's total offense and forward passing leader.

Benham, who stands five - eight and weighs only 160 pounds, leads the nation's major college footballers with 397 yards gained on 69 plays. And his 59 pass attempts and 27 completions also are high for the season thus far, according to official NCAA Service Bureau statistics released today.

All this he has accomplished in only two games, while most of his rivals have played three games. Georgia's Dick Young is the runner-up in total yards with 268 in three games, and Bill Beagle of Dartmouth is one behind Benham in pass completions in the tossing competition.

On top of his sterling performances to date, Benham has proved to be quite durable, much like Davey O'Brien, another small man who passed and ran to fame with Texas Christian 16 years ago. O'Brien set the modern record for attacking stamina, averaging 40 rushes or passes per game and Benham is just one behind that mark with 79 attempts.

Art Luppino of Arizona, who never passes, has reclaimed the rushing leadership he held all but one week last year. In three games he has netted 361 yards, picking up 129 yards last Saturday in 16 trys against Idaho. Jim Swink of Texas Christian, last week's leader, is second this week with 345 yards.

Joe Clements of Texas, last week's total offense and passing leader, has tumbled all the way to seventh and fifth, respectively. Clements, who suffered a head injury, was sidelined last Friday after only two plays against Southern California.

Pajaczkowski Top Carrier

Fullback Bill Tarr of Stanford is third in rushing with 289 yards while Frank Pajaczkowski of Richmond, is the most proficient carrier, having picked up 231 yards in only 22 trys.

Nick Consoles of Wake Forest, the nation's third top passer, remains the lone player to pass 30 or more times without an interception. He has hit on 25 of 40 attempts.

In other departments John Stewart of Stanford, who made two catches against Ohio State, leads in pass receiving; Bill Schmidt of Pittsburgh is the kicking leader with a 51.2 average, and Swink and Jon Arnett of Southern California are the individual scoring leaders with 44 points each.

Weatherman Forecasts Winter Driving Conditions

By Betty Skelton, Dodge Test Driver

The weatherman will influence your driving habits during the next few months—or at least he should, if you want to drive safely.

Few spots in the USA escape an occasional temperature drop that spreads treacherous frost or ice over roads. Bellman Jones, of the National Safety Council, and I were discussing this the other day.

"This is the time of year," said Bellman, "when every driver should think about winterizing his car and his driving practices."

Driving safely in winter weather requires know-how, says Bellman. And I thoroughly agree with him.

Miss Skelton

Last January I was fortunate enough to be one of the test drivers participating in scientific tests conducted by the Safe Winter Driving League of the National Safety Council. On frozen Pine Lake at Clintonville, Wis., automobiles and trucks were put through every conceivable type of braking test, accurately measuring skid distances with electronic equipment.

Important Findings Result

These tests throughout the past 16 years have resulted in some important findings. They reveal, for example, that to provide the same stopping distance on dry pavement at 50 mph, you must not exceed 15 mph on ice, even with special winter tires.

Let's go over some of this know-how that winter drivers should have:

Before you begin your cold-weather driving, winterize your car. Be sure the tire tread is in good condition. Have reinforced tire chains available for use on ice and snow, since they cut stopping distances about half.

Always keep windshields and windows clear of snow and ice. A thin smear of vaseline will prevent ice formation.

Even starting the car on a slippery surface is difficult. If you shift into low gear and race the engine, the wheels will spin around, but the car will not move. Start in highest gear, engaging the clutch slowly to permit the wheels to grip the road. With an automatic transmision, use drive range and accelerate slowly.

Try Your Brakes

Once your car is in motion, get the "feel" of the road. Try braking a few times before you reach heavy traffic to determine just how slippery the road is and adjust speed accordingly.

Stay well back of the car ahead. It's difficult to explain in event of a collision why you could not stop when the other fellow did.

Apply brakes gently and intermittently. At the first hint that the wheels are starting to slide, take your foot off the brake. Jamming on brakes may lock the wheels and throw your car into a skid.

Above all, remember that it is your responsibility to exercise extreme caution in winter driving. Accept it by doing everything in your power to prevent an accident.

America's most famous woman driver, Miss Skelton holds the woman's automotive speed record of 143.44 mph, and is the only woman test driver in the automotive industry. Address any questions or suggestions about cars, safety, and driving problems to her in care of this newspaper.

Florence Adair Gets $100 Fine, 60 Days On Disorderly Charge

Florence Adair, 44, of R 3, pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct when she was arraigned in Whitley county circuit court. She was assessed a fine of $100 and costs of $28.80 and sentenced to 60 days at the penal or correctional department of the Indiana Women's Prison by Judge Lowell Pefley.

Hearing on charges of public intoxication contained in the first count of the affidavit filed August 2 by city police were continued. A second charge of public intoxication and druken driving was also continued until the completion of the 60-day sentence.

When the earlier charges were filed in August, the Adair woman, the widow of the late Scott Adair, was released on bond nnd failed to appear for the scheduled hearing. She was arrested on the later charge September 28 by Trooper Norman Pierce of the State Police and John North of the city police.

Seeks To Dissolve Farming Partnership

A petition was filed today in circuit court for dissolution of a farming partnership when John Sowers filed suit against Gaylord Sowers for appointment of receiver to convert the assets of the partnership into cash and made distribution to the partners of the proceeds after payments of debts. The partnership was formed last spring, each furnishing one-half of the livestock and equipment, according to the complaint, filed for John Sowers by Whiteleather & Whiteleather.

Say Ike Will Not Publicly Endorse Any GOP Candidate

WASHINGTON (UP)—Some influential Republicans predicted today that President Eisenhower will avoid publicly endorsing any GOP candidate if he decides against running for reelection.

But even so, they said, Mr. Eisenhower, by his private actions and attitudes, will have a commanding voice in the selection of his successor and will urge that the GOP nomination go to someone strongly committed to the Eisenhower program.

These Republican strategists also predicted that President Eisenhower will make a decision quickly on whether he will or will not seek a second term. They said an announcement might come as early as December and should not be later than January.

These GOP informants were by no means sure however, that President Eisenhower will take himself out of the running. Some thought the President will decide to run, despite his illness, if he concludes that is the only way to preserve the administration's program and — especially — to preserve world peace.

Season On Geese, Ducks Opens In Indiana October 22

or 15000 feet.

Cooke could have tried to save a few minutes by flying over the mountains, got lost in a storm and hit the peak. Or he could have accidentally got 25 miles off course. Or he could have been pulled into the mountains by the wind of a violent storm. He was 90 minutes behind schedule.

Frank M. McKlveen of Seattle, Wash., a member of the Civil Aeronautics Board, and C. D. Williams and F. H. Faucke Civil Aeronautics Authority officials from Denver, will try to find out what caused the crash. They made a preliminary survey of the scene Friday.

Getting Bodies Down

The actual job of getting the bodies down the 1,500-foot side of the peak to a point where they can be put on pack horses was being carried out by 25 mountain climbers, most of whom are university students.

Four bodies were brought down by hand before darkness closed in on the mountain at 3:30 p.m., and a strong wind came up. They were the bodies of the child of Mrs. Clifford B. Ackerman of Dover, Del., and of Debora Tucker, 17-months-old daughter of Mrs. D. C. Tucker of Ogden Utah, and of two unidentified adults.

So far recovery workers have found only 51 bodies. There probably are others packed in the tail assembly of the plane, which is caught on a ledge, and at other points that have not been searched so far.

U. N. Committee Begins Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The powerful United Nations Political Committee begins debate today on an American plan to set up an international atomic energy commission.

The 60-nation group starts work on the various phases of peaceful uses of atomic energy with the talks centered on the American plan.

American sources said the committee also was expected to call for another international conference on atomic energy to follow the highly successful one held at Geneva last summer.

The sources expressed regret that France, which withdrew its U.N. delegation because of a dispute over Algeria's demand for independence, was not attending since that nation made considerable scientific contribution to the Geneva meeting.

Elsewhere in the U.N., a behind-the-scenes battle was taking place between Poland and the Philippines for a seat on the Security Council vacated by Turkey at the expiration of its term.

American sources said the U.S.-backed Philippine delegation had a "very good" chance to win the seat on the council, one of the United Nations' most important groups.

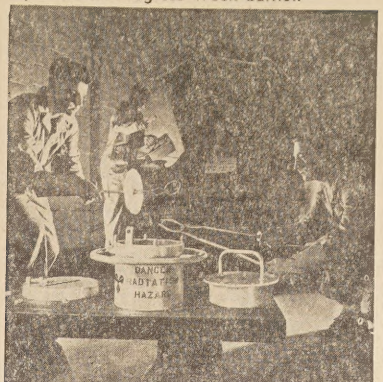
U.S. Will Not Be Reckless In Respect To Disarmament Plan



Petroleum industry scientists, ever searching for new and improved products, are shown above installing a radioactive piston ring in a test car engine. The piston ring, made radioactive at the Oak Rdige Atomic Pile, is carefully checked with a Geiger counter.

Under weather conditions ranging from peak Summer heat to subzero cold, the car is then driven in proving ground road tests using the particular oil to be tested.

Engin wear is measured with hitherto unheard-of accuracy in this atomic test by checking the microscopic amounts of radioactive metal that rub off the ring and are suspended in the oil. Furthermore, pinpointed results now can be obtained with only 50 miles of driving, as compared to the 10,000 miles necessary with previous methods.

Diesel fuel demand has increased at a rate three times that of gasoline.

Craig Invokes Martial Law In 3 Areas Surrounding Perfect Circle

By KEITH L. MARTIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS (UP) —Martial law was imposed today in an eastern Indiana area where striking CIO United Auto Workers and non-striking employes of the Perfect Circle Corp. waged a gun battle last week.

Gov. George N. Craig, who interrupted a vacation to seek a settlement of the violent labor dispute, took the action immediately after a 30-minute conference with leaders in the two factions failed to reach a basis for resumption of negotiations and restoration of peace.

Full martial law replaces a limited martial law in effect since last Wednesday night, a few hours after nine persons were wounded and injured in a riot at the gates of the firm's New Castle Ind., foundry.

The new declaration takes in all of Henry County, where the foundry is situated, and parts of Wayne County where plants are located at Richmond and Hagerstown.

The conference bogged down when company and union spokesmen refused to budge on the issue of how many plants the contract negotiations should include.

William B. Prosser vice president of the company, said Perfect Circle would negotiate only for New Castle employes. Raymond Berndt UAW regional representative, said the union would negoti-

Tri-Lakes Lions Serve Chicken To Nearly 400

Barbecued Chicken Supper Served

Walter R. Kesler, president of the TriLakes Lions Club, reported this morning that the first Lions Chicken Bar-B-Q supper, which was served at the Thorncreek school Saturday from 3:00 till 7:00 p.m., was a success. Approximately 400 persons were served.

With the assistance of a few Arcola Lions Club members, four members of the Tri-Lakes club prepared chicken in lon line of barbecue "pits" outdoors on the school grounds. The mouth-watering chicken was carried into the gymnasium and served cafeteria style- but all one person could pick up at the price of one serving was a half of chicken. The Lions who adorned themselves with a chef's hat and apron and barbecued the chicken were Richard Dornick, "Red" Horne, Warren Fox, and Gary Souder.

President Kessler states that one-half of the profits from the affair will be donated to the Community Biuldinf Fund at Tri-Lakes. No statement could be made today regarding the proceeds, as not all tickets have been turned in yet nor have the costs been totaled.

Huntington Man Taken To Fort Wayne Hospital

A Huntington county resident 31-year-old Elwyn Huffman was taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Fort Wayne for reduction of a fracture to his right leg and treatment of abrasions to his face and left arm after he was struck seven miles east of here on U.S. Highway 30 about 1 o'clock Sunday morning by a westbound automobile.

Unable to get his vehicle back on the pavement without being towed he flagged down a westbound truck to pull him off the berm. Delayed Project Of Resurfacing Gets Under Way

Van Buren Street Closed To Traffic

Resurfacing of Van Buren street fom Main to Elm streets, delayed by last week's rains, was begun this morning by the Reith-Riley Construction Company of South Bend. Cost of the project is being borne by the Indiana State Highway commission as this portion of the street is used as part of the route of U.S. Highway 30 through Columbia City.

It is expected that the work will require two days. Traffic west over U.S. 30 is being detoured over Market and Elm streets while eastbound traffic is being routed over Oak and Ellsworth streets.

As the binder coat was applied to the street through the principal part of the business district, store owners laid coca mats inside their doors to keep oil from being tracked onto their floors.

The tempo along Van Buren street was greatly changed as the result of the street repairs. Sidewalk conversations no longer had to be shouted due to the noise of trucks passing by. Sidewalk watchers of the construction equipment operators appeared in clusters, and shoppers encountered the problem of finding side-street parking for their autos.

Due to the burden of heavy vehicular traffic, the street had become pitted with chuck-holes and depressions in the asphalt made by constant application of brakes as vehicles slowed for stop-light stops.

City police co-operated with Charles LaTaurette, superintendent of the Fort Wayne district of the state highway department, in establishing the street blocades early today. They were assisted by Street Commissioner Herbert Kneller's force.

Prior to the resurfacing work, City Utility employes made cable repairs to stop signals to prevent mutilation of the new pavement within a short time.

City police today notified operators of all emergency vehicles such as ambulance drivers, of the street blocades so that no delay might result on possible emergency trips.

Farm Prices In Coming Year To Be Discussed

Purdue Economist Will Be Speaker

L. L. ARNOLD

Whitley county farmers will soon have an opportunity to discuss prospects for profits in 1956.

Assistant county agricultural agent, Hugh Reinhold, is reminding everyone that Lester Arnold, Purdue University agricultural economist, will speak at the annual outlook meeting at 7:15 p.m. October 20 in the 4-H Center at Columbia City.

Reinhold says the program is designed to help the farmers plan ahead for a successful 1956.

Will average hog prices be still lower next year? What is expected to happen to corn prices? Will cattle feeding profits continue to be low? What will be the milk and egg price situation? Mr. Arnold will place special emphasis on these questions as he analyzes the farm price situation for the year ahead.

With farm prices now at about 84 per cent of parity, farmers will also want to hear what is likely to happen to prices of machinery, fencing, building materials, fertilizer, and other farm cost items.

Mr. Arnold will discuss the possibilities for continued full employment, high wages, and incomes for the people who consume farm products. He will emphaize prospects for continued increases in consumer borrowing and spending.

Other topics to be covered include the outlook for turkeys, broilers, and soybeans. Reinhold says the outlook program will help farmers and businessmen make dollars and "sense" adjustments in their business.

Adair Is Speaker At Public Forum In City Sunday

Answers Questions On Current Issues

A near capacity number of citizens from Whitley county attended the public forum in the city council chamber Sunday afternoon to discuss the measures that will come before the second session of the present Congress which will convene in Washington on January 3.

Representative E. Ross Adair of this district was present to lead the discussion and answer questions and in his preliminary remarks asserted that Russia still has the aim of dominating the world with Communism, although at the present time the officials of that nation are presenting an apparent softer attitude, until its force is strong enough to again take the offensive. He assigned the present situation to the fact that since Stalin's death the leadership in Russia has been assumed by a small group, each member of which is ambitious to take dominating leadership of the Soviet nation.

Mr. Adair will leave soon with members of the House committee on foreign affairs for Asia and the Near East to study first hand the situation which this nation must meet in the area. Atty John W. Whiteleather, chairman of the forum for the Public Affairs commitee of the Local Chamber of Commerce opened the meeting Sunday and introduced Woodfin Jones, secretary of the Chamber, as moderator of the forum.

Among other questions discussed at the forum was that of the farmers' situation in the United States, and the possible improvement of his financial situation to overcome the falling prices for farm products, compared to the high cost of machinery and other items which the farmer and others haev to purchase. Mr. Adair said he felt that the present enactment of flexible supports should not be disturbed until it has had a trial, asserting that farm prices started their decline while 90 per cent parity was still in effect, and continued until the Korean war brought prices up again.

He discussed the attempt of the Federal government to reduce the present surpluses of farm com-

World Moves Into Era Of Peaceful Change

Dulles Addresses Legion Convention

MIAMI (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said firmly today the United States will not disarm "unless we can be sure that others are doing the same."

While emphasizing that he hopes the world is moving into an "era of peaceful change," Dulles said that nevertheless the United States does not "intend to be reckless" in respect to disarmament.

He noted that the United States had disarmed after World War I and World War II only to have to rebuild a third time for the Korean War.

"This time we do not propose to disarm ourselves unless we can be sure that others are doing the same," Dulles told the American Legion's 37th annual convention.

Learned the Hard Way

"That is not because the American people have gone militaristic," he added.

"It is because we have learned the hard way. The Soviet Union itself, in Korea, helped to teach us that disarmament if it may prove to be one-sided does not produce peace."

Dulles said the United States is

USO, Another Chest Agency, Serves 3Million Service Personnel Who Are AwayFromHome

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles describing a county-wide agency which is participating in Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc.)

More than 3,000,000 of the nation's young men and women are now serving in the Armed Forces. Hardly a family in Whitley county has not experienced having a father, son, brother, or uncle in uniform.

"Many of them are away from home for the first time," according to J. L. Hall, Jr., retired U.S. Navy admiral and national campaign chairman of the United Service Organizations.

These are the young men and women which the USO serves through its many service clubs and recreational activities, Mr. Hall points out.

Through the Community Chest of Whitley County, Inc., residents of the county have the opportunity to contribute to the mainenance of the program.

More than 43,500,000 visits were made to USO clubs by military personnel last year, according to figures announced by the organization. Attendance at USO shows totaled more than 2,900,000 and more than 100,000 services were given to military personnel on maneuvers.

The program extends to personnel stationed overseas. Nearly a fourth of the USO stations are overseas and the organization conducts shows and radio programs overseas.

Today is the opening date for the annual campaign.

COMPETITION - BACKBONE OF AMERICAN INDUSTRY

A representative of the Oil Industry Information Committee dropped in on us a while ago to volunteer some facts about his industry, and one word kept cropping up in what he had to say: competition.

Many people ask if all brands of gasoline aren't really the same. There are many formulas, it appears, each adapted to certain engines, climates, and special consumer needs. Oil companies, he said, spend about $100 million a year in research to improve on rival formulas, because "competition is a tough taskmaster."

Some people still think the oil industry is some sort of monopoly run by a few big companies. We are informed that there are some 24,000 companies in this country, plus some 190,000 independent concerns in the business of operating about 200,000 service stations, all in competition for the public's business.

Another question the public asks is whether atomic energy will put oil out of business. In reply, the oil man quoted an Atomic Energy Commission official who recently expressed the belief that "coal, petroleum, natural gas, and atomic energy will....maintain or carve out suitable roles for themselves in supplying the future needs of this power-hungry planet...." How will these power industries divide the load among them? By competition, of course.

Finally, the OIIC representative said there was a rumor the oil industry had bought up and suppressed a "100-mile-per-gallon carburetor." He said it wasn't so, and that if such a device were practical, some auto maker would have bought it at any price to sweep the field over his competition.

Competition is the check-and-balance system that keeps a nation's economy working for the best interests of the public, just as free elections furnish the check and balance to keep governments serving the best interests of the governed. The consumer casts his cash register vote when he picks the brand he wants and buys it.

Let's hope that word, competition, keeps right on cropping up when American industries describe the factors that control and guide their operations.

William Henry Harrison, the ninth U.S. president, was 68 when inaugurated which made him the oldest chief executive.

2 GALLONS OF GASOLINE NOW DO THE WORK 3 GALLONS DID IN 1925

Dramatic road tests prove that 2 gallons of the high quality gasoline you buy today do the work 3 gallons did in 1925. Yet today's gasoline costs about the same as gasoline did then—only taxes are higher. This shows how your progress and oil progress go hand in hand. And it is one reason we're proud to be part of the competitive industry that brings you this progress. This is your assurance that we'll continue to be on the job for you—every day.

Eisenhower Will Leave Hospital The Second Week In November To Convalesce At His Gettysburg Farm

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) — President Eisenhower will leave Fitzsimons Army Hospital in Denver in the second week of November and fly to his farm at Gettysburg, Pa., for convalescence extending until about the start of 1956, it was learned today.

The recovery outlook for the President who suffered a heart attack on Sept. 24, is about as favorable as it can be, without his physicians going overboard on temporary conclusions.

The people around him at Fitzsimons resigned themselves some days ago to the probability that he would bow out of the national political scene as a competitor in the early future.

Mrs. Eisenhwer is in the front of influential persons who think that her husband, after more than 40 years of federal service, is entitled to an uncomplicated recovery from his heart attack.

A carefully studied chart on the President's future was made public Sunday by Dr. Paul Dudley White, the eminent Boston heart specialist, and the staff of doctors who have been at the President's bedside for two weeks.

Specialists Outlined Condition

In everyday terms, the Boston specialist, flanked by top heart men of the armed services, said:

1. The President has reacted from his Sept. 24 coronary thrombosis on schedule. Prospects for his future are favorable but it is incorrect to say that he is out of danger "100 per cent."

2. He must follow a gradual schedule of recovery. His heart may never be as strong as it was before the thrombosis.

3. Medical authority refuses to say whether the President would be physically up to a re-election race next fall.

4. Mr. Eisenhower must remain in Fitzsimons for another four or five weeks.

5. The President can step up his rate of official conferences this week, beginning with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Tuesday.

Dr. White expects to return to Denver for another look at the President in two weeks. Conditions warranting, he also plans to return in four weeks.

Preceding White's critique, Vice President Richard M. Nixon had two 15-minute sessions with the President Saturday afternoon and again Sunday morning.

Schedule Of Callers

It was the smiling vice president who disclosed ahead of the doctors that the President had requested establishment of a schedule of callers from the cabinet and other high government posts.

Nixon, and Maj. John S. Eisenhower, the President's son, flew back to Washington late Sunday in the plane with White.

Dr. White with the assent of Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the White House physician, outlined a gradual program for the President in his coming weeks of recovery in Denver.

Dr. White went on the theory were in prospect, they would have developed in the first two weeks after the thrombosis. Knowing that no such complications had occurred, White then outlined a program for the immediate future:

Few Short Conferences

Third week, beginning today: Continued rest, but bed wheeled out on hospital porches for air, sunshine and scenery. A few more short conferences.

Fourth week: Sitting up some of each day and possibly all day by the end of the week. May begin a little painting in bed. More short conferenees possible dailiy.

Fifth week: A few steps, such as to the bathroom, with more steps each day and possibly more painting and sitting on the porches.

Sixth week: Walking slowly out to the porches. "At the end of the sixth week he may be able to walk onto the plane" for the return trip.

But this, Dr. White said, depends on progress to that point and "even another seventh week might be helpful before he moves East."

He said his general program for the period after that includes rehabilitation, recreation and more rest before the President actually resumes his full duties in the White House. He thought that might be possible around the first of the year.

$500 Damage Suit Is Venued Here

Suit for damages in the amount of $500 was received in Whitley circuit court Saturday from the Allen Superior court, Fort Wayne. Plaintiff is Betty J. Wilson who seeks judgment for $500 against the N.Y., Chicago & St. Louis railroad for damages to her automobile at the U.S. Highway 6 crossing in Fremont, O., on August 23, 1953.

The plaintiff filed suit in Allen Superior court last Feb. 7. She charges that on Sunday, August 23, 1953, her car was struck by a train at the Fremont crossing while standing in a line of traffic when the crossing watchman closed the gates upon the approach of a locomotive. The damage to the vehicle was to the left rear of the car, according to the plaintiff.

Gates & Gates have entered an appearance for the railroad company.

How Much Corn Will Your Picker Leave In Field This Fall

How much of your corn crop will you leave in the field this fall? If your cornpicker is not properly adjusted, you may be leaving more than you think.

Les Hill, agricultural engineer at Purdue University, says to measure off a square 40 inches on each side, centered on a picked row. Each 20 kernels found within this square indicates a one-bushel loss per acre due to shelling. To estimate ear losses measure off 40 hills, 133 feet, or 43 steps along a row. Each good-sized ear found in this distance indicates a one-bushel loss per acre of ear corn.

Hill says that proper picker adjustment and early harvesting will reduce the loss of corn regardless of what other conditions affect the crop. Moreover, adequate "wrench work," prompt replacement of worn parts, and frequent lubrications will reduce the chances of accidents. The machine will be able to handle the corn more effectively and the corn will be in a better harvest condition.

Now's the time to get out the manufacurer's instruction book and look it over again In it you'll find a complete listing of the machine's adjustments, maintenance requirements, and safe operating procedures.

Additional suggestions can be found in the Purdue University mimeo titled "Corn Harvest Hints,' available at the county agent's office. Specialists' help in harvest problems encounted is provided by many leading manufacturers.

Adair

modities, stating that the Commodity Credit Corporation has authority to dispose of a billion dollars worth of surpluses by giving or selling abroad. He told how the dairy industry by strenuous promotion had helped the government reduce the butter surplus from over 360 million pounds in April, 1954 to 114 million pounds on October 5 of this year. And similar reductions had been made in reducing the cheese surplus in that period.

Another matter under discussion was that of Federal funds for public highways. This bill was not passed at the session just ended, but will come up in 1956, Mr. Adair said. Any plan for extensive highway building must come from the taxpayers, he asserted either to redeem bonds, or by increasing taxes on gas, oil, tires and similar materials.

In the discussion of military training for a possible army of three million men, a bill for military reserve will be before the Congress in 1956, Mr. Adair suggested. He stated that he did not favor the proposed bill for a six months training of teen-age youths and then a seven year reserve status, because he felt in case of war, it would mean placing young men in battle line, with a training inadequate to protect themselves well. The present draft law is now extended for four more years.

In the discussion of Federal aid for construction of schools, Mr. Adair stated that the policy of Federal aid for school construction in areas where military and other Federal installations have been established has been recognized as a province where Federal funds should be placed, to meet the educational emergencies. He said he does not favor placing of Federal funds for school building construction in other areas, but considers them the problem of state and local communities.

The forum was cut short Sunday by the necessity of Congressman Adair's return to Washington, and he left immediately after the meeting by plane from Fort Wayne.

Home-Made Bomb Explodes In Times Square Theatre

7 1fUP48 Oct. 10 z740a

NEW YORK (UP)—A crude, home-made bomb exploded Sunday night in a Times Square movie theater, apparently the latest creation by the New York's mad bomb maker.

The small bomb went off in the orchestra section of the Paramount Theater while an estimated 1,000 persons watched the movie "Blood Alley."

A flying fragment struck the shoe of one patron, cutting the leather, but he declined medical aid.

The bomb had all the earmarks of being the work of the same person who has planted bombs in several New York theaters, railroad and air terminals and the public library. The last one, found Aug. 11 in a seat in the Roxy Theater, did not go off.

Many other patrons in the theater heard the explosion but no one paid much attention, police said, because the film itself featured a number of shots and explosion.

Former Major League Pitcher Fatally Stabbed

Howie Fox Dies Before Arrival At Hospital

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP) —A 22-year-old man was being held today in connection with the fatal stabbing of former major league pitcher Howie Fox outside his tavern here early Sunday.

Fox, 34, played for the San Antonio Missions of the Texas League last season. Previously, he spent seven years with Cincinnati before moving over to Philadelphia Phillie in 1952. He went from Philadelphia to Baltimore in the International League.

When Baltimore joined the American League Fox went with the deal and won one and lost two games with the Orioles before being shipped to San Antonio in 1954. For the Missions last season, he pitched a total of 104 innings in 29 games, winning three and losing eight.

Fox was stabbed outside the "Club House," a tavern he owned here. John Strickland, 22, of San Antonio one of three youths he was fighting with was booked at police station for Fox's murder. Martin Belton, 23, and Jack Allen, 21 also from San Antonio were held as material witnesses.

Robert Dardemzn 17, a musician employed at the Club House, told Det. Steve Salas and David Cisneros the three young men took a table at the tavern and tried to cut in on two 16-year old girls dancing together.

Fox went to the table and told them to leave. They protested, left and threw stones and bottles at the tavern, Dardeman said. When Fox and a bartender, Tex Callahan, went outside the fight started.

Fox was knifed three times once near the heart, once in the left ribs, and again in the lower back. He died before arriving at Robert B. Green Hospital.

His lifetime major league record was 44 wins, 74 losses.

Agronomists say feeding value of hay is reduced by late cutting.

There are only 5 "Service" Stations for all of Moscow's 5 million inhabitants

Even at these few filling stations, service is non-existent and gasoline is rationed. That's what you can expect when all industry is controlled by the State. In the U. Fort Wayne Pilgrimage To Historical Sites Saturday By Local DAR And School Guests

Members of the Colonel Augustin de la Balme Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and their guests, 32 pupils representing the seventh and eighth grade in each Whitley county school visited some of the Fort Wayne historic sites and the museum Saturday in the annual fall pilgrimage.

Their guides were members of the Mary Penrose Wayne Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution and the Ruth Hunt Society Chapter, Children of the American Revolution.

The seventh and eight grade school representatives made the trip in the Columbia City school bus by the courtesy of Supt. Edward Glenn. The bus was driven by Mrs. Edward Berwert.

The local DAR members and guests were met at the California road intersection by the Allen county hosts.

Officer Clifford Shreve, of the Fort Wayne police force, served as guide and escort for the entire trip around the city.

Johnny Appleseed

The first stop was made at the grave of Johnny Appleseed in the Archer cemetery near the Coliseum.

The stone, with an apple outlined at the top, is surrounded by an iron fence. It reads "Johnny Appleseed, John Chapman, Holy Bible, 1774-1845."

Mrs. Carl Rothert, regent of the Mary Penrose Wayne Chapter DAR, welcomed the guests and made a plea to continue marking historical sites and to keep the markers readable. She served as historian in explaining the markers.

Johnny Appleseed was born September 26, 1774 in Leominster, Worcester county, Mass. He followed the waterways, some traditions say as far west as Missouri, planting appleseeds for the pioneers, as he believed all farms should have an orchard.

He spent the winters along the way and when the young trees were started the wandering nurseryman went on to plant more orchards and graft fruit trees.

He also served as a Bible Missionary and was skilled in healing.

Records show he used good loam open ground for the orchards and fenced in the trees. His pay was often a little food and some old clothing.

He was friendly to the Indians and spoke their language.

The next stop was at the "Site of the last French Fort erected in 1750 by Captain Raimond, under Lieutenant Butler in 1760. (It was surrendered to the British in 1760.) Ensign Richard Holmes and the British garrison were massacred by the Miami Indians in 1763."

This is at the intersection of Delaware street and St. Joe Blvd.

The sites of the three more severe battle engagements between the troops of General Josiah Harmar and the Miami Indians under Little Turtle, fought October 22, 1790, were pointed out. One marker along the Maumee river was enscribed "To the memory of Major Wyllys and his brave soldiers who were killed in the battle of Harmar's Ford (Harmar's Folly) Oct. 22, 1790." Three detachments of about 100 soldiers in each engagement were massacred and General Harmar went back to Fort Washington (Cincinnati).

The site of the Fort built by General Anthony Wayne and dedicated October 22, 1794 was shown. This was the first U.S. fort built near the three rivers, the St. Joseph and the St. Mary's which unite to form the Maumee flowing up to Lake Erie. This fort commanded the shortest portage of about eight miles, between the St. Lawrence and Missippi river systems. The portage known to the Indians before the coming of the white man as the "Glorious Gate" was on a strategic crossroad in early trade and exploration.

Mrs. Rothert mentioned the recent interest shown in the building of the new Nickle Plate elevation which is along another route of early transportation, the Erie Canal. Some old timbers from the canal were dug up.

Building of Fort

Leaflets presented to the guests, prepared by the Anthony Wayne Parkway commission, recall in part the history leading to the building of the fort.

Most historical accounts of the settlement of Northeastern Indiana start with General "Mad Anthony" Wayne, the Revolutionary War hero who was sent by President Washington to quiet the fractious Indians under Chief Little Turtle. Emboldened by victories over General Josiah Harmer in 1790 and General Arthur St. Clair in 1791 the native redskins were intent on keeping white men out of their hunting grounds.

"Anthony Wayne took two years to recruit and train his army before moving into the territory. Marching northward in August of 1794 he established Fort Defiance and from there proceeded northeastward down the Maumee River, defeating the Indians in the Battle of Fallen Timbers near present day Maumee, Ohio.

Then Wayne turned back, up to the headwaters of the Maumee where he established another fort at Kekionga, of Miami Town. Fort Wayne, as it was named, was put under the command of Col. John F. Hamtramck while General Wayne returned to Fort Greene Ville. Indian chiefs, discouraged by their defeat and the failure of help from the British, signed the Treaty of Greene Ville on August 3, 1795, opening the way to eventual settlement of the old Northwest Territory."

Mrs. Rothert mentioned the interest shown in the building of the Nickel Plate elevation which is along another route of early transportation, the Erie Canal. Some of the old timbers of the canal were dug up. The pieces about 24 inches square, were thought to be part of the locks.

Another tour stop was made at a Wayne Trace boulder with bronze plate reading "Wayne Trace was once an Indian trail to Cincinnati, the route of General Harmar's army in 1790, of General Wayne's when leaving the stockade christened Fort Wayne by Major Hamtrack, also of General Harrisons army in 1812.

A package lunch was served at noon at the Swiney Homestead, the Fort Wayne and Allen County Historical museum. The pilgrimage committee served coffee and soft drinks. Those on the committee were, Mrs. Raymond Messner; Mrs. Ross Smith, Miss Gladys Kyler and Mrs. Robert Kreider.

The group was taken through the museum by Mrs. Lyman T. Rawles, curator of the Allen County museum.

Of especial interest to the Whitley county residents were the sections with relics of Little Turtle, the Indian Chief born in Union township. A picture of Little Turtle is above the relic case. Pictures of his adopted son, Capt. William Wells and Alexander More of Whitley County are on either side.

There is a sword believed given to the chief by General Washington in recognition of Little Turtle's efforts for peace; and a gold watch given him by the British, flints, silver crosses, and bracelets.

A bed belonging to General Wayne is in the museum. There is also a replica of the Fort.

On the second floor were displays of fine sewing, baby dresses, caps, jewelry, a complete dollhouse of 1886, china and glass.

One room had many old kitchen utensils as apple peelers, iron kettles, toasters, churns, bread trays, trivets, scales and noodle cutters, lanterns, potato mashers, fruit jars.

The third floor has a library of historical books and furniture as beds, chairs, organs, sleds and spinning wheels, also a wicker rocker that had been in the office of Thomas R. Marshall.

There were also displays of glass, china, silver and pewter.

The average American driver uses up 694 GALLONS of gasoline every year!

GALS

● That mounts up to a lot of gasoline when you figure that there are 9 cars for every 8 U. S. families. But thanks to the constant search for new sources of oil by U. S. oilmen, this tremendous demand is always met.

This is just one reason why we're so proud to be part of America's competitive, progressive oil industry that brings you ample supplies of the finest oil products at the world's lowest prices. Here's our promise that we'll continue to serve you well.

Oil Products Have Enriched Our Standard Of Living

It seems that nowadays almost every organization and cause has a "week" of its own. Right now it's Oil Progress Week, which runs from October 9 through 15. This seems an appropriate time for us to recall the revolution which petroleum brought into our lives. The word "progress" is well used.

America's competitive oil businesses — there are more than 42,000 of them — are even now changing our way of life. The American petroleum industry, which produces about half the world's oil, not only is basic to our national economy and defense, but has introduced us to a host of products which have enriched our standard of living.

Our homes are oil-heated, our cars are petroleum-powered, and we feel the benefits of petroleum on our farms and in countless large and small pursuits of our daily lives. Take the Summer we just struggled through. It may have been hot, but it was a lot more pleasant for many of us than it might have been, thanks to the new synthetic fibers developed through petro chemistry. From cosmetics to sausage-skins, literally thousands of our everyday products are petroleum-based.

The industry's scientists say they can develop 500,000 compounds from petroleum, and they hope to boost that total to a million in the foreseeable future. Plastics, insecticides, synthetic rubber — a seemingly endless list of magic compounds — have contributed to our health, well-being, and comfort.

Only a highly competitive, progressive, and free industry can produce such wonders — or even have the incentive to do so. The tremendous contributions that America's oil has made to our civilization during less than a century of the industry's existence are stirring testimony to the vitality and vision characteristic of a free people.

The best highway route from New York City to San Francisco is 3,062 miles long, according to the American Automobile Assn.

Oil men and the 163 million good reason to be proud during Americans whom they serve have this year's Oil Progress Week.

Michigan Crushes Army, Oklahoma Drubs Texas, Notre Dame Blanks Miami Of Florida

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer

Michigan's ball - hawking Wolverines, Oklahoma's streaking Sooners, and Notre Dame's unscored-on Irish submitted strong bids today to unseat Maryland as the nation's leading college football team.

All three powerhouse teams impressed this weekend with victories over tough teams — Michigan crushing highly-rated Army, 26-2; Oklahoma running its best-in-the-nation winning streak to 22 games by drubbing Texas, 20-0; and Notre Dame whiewashing Miami of Florida, 14-0.

Maryland, rated the nation's top team since the start of the season, had little chance to impress in a 28-7 win over Wake Forest.

Michigan's first triumph in history over Army created the biggest stir, for the classy Cadets simply never were in the game against the Wolverines. Although Army, the nation's No. 6 team, outgained and out-first - downed Michigan, the Cadets' own fumbling — caused by hard Michigan tackling — kept Army in its own territory until the fourth period.

Nine times the ball was jarred out of the hands of Army balltoters; eight times Michigan recovered.

That did it. That and a Michigan attack sparked by a surprise package halfback named Terry Barr, who plunged one foot for the Wolverines' first touchdown in the first period and rambled 82 yards with a punt return for another.

Texas was tabbed by many as Oklahoma's last major test in the way of an unbeaten season, but the Sooners passed this test comfortably.

Notre Dame invaded Miami's Orange Bowl on Friday night and conquered on two scoring passes by quarterback Paul Hornung, who wasn't supposed to be much of a passer. Miami actually crossed the unsullied Irish goal line, but had the T.D. nullified by a penalty.

Maryland could have won by a much more lopsided score that would have been more impressive, for the Terrapin first - stringers scored touchdowns four of the seven times they had the ball. But Coach Jim Tatum let subs play all the rest of the time.

Georgia Tech Victorious

Georgia Tech, the nation's fourth-ranked team, settled for a 7-0 victory over Louisiana State, getting the game's only touchdown on a 46-yard pass play from Toppy Vann to George Volkert.

Four of the nation's "Big Eive" will be heavy favorites this week—Maryland over North Carolina, Michigan over Northwestern as it opens its Big Ten campaign, Oklahoma over Kansas, and Georgia Tech over Auburn.

But Notre Dame collides with Michigan State, the nation's 14th-ranked team that ripped Stanford Saturday, 38-14, even though penalized 120 yards. The Irish-Spartan clash at East Lansing, Mich., will be the nationally televised "game of the week."

The chief upset victims of the weekend were: Southern California, the nation's No. 10 team, beaten by Washington, 7-0 on an 80-yard scoring play involving a pass, a lateral, and a 50-yard run by end Corky Lewis; Harvard, beaten 20-7 by Cornell as Billy De Graaf scored three touchdowns; and Marquette, a seven-point favorite that was buried by Kansas State, 42-10.

Stars Of The Weekend

Among the other individual stars of the weekend were:

Jimmy Swink, who scored all three touchdowns, one on a 65-yard run, as seventh - ranked Texas Christian downed Alabama, 21-0; Larry Zaleski, who set up both touchdowns with long runs and blocked the extra point that meant the difference in Colorado A&M's 14-13 win over Wyoming to take over the Skyline Conference lead; Dennis (The Menace) McGill, who scored four touchdowns for Yale in a 46-14 rout of Columbia; Vic- (Jack) Rabbits of West Virginia, who scored two touchdowns — one on a 99-yard punt return that started the day's scoring, to lead a 47-12 rout of VMI; Dick Young-to-Jimmy Orr, Georgia's nation-leading pass combination which clicked for two touchdowns in 28-7 win over North Carolina; Jimmy Haluska of Wisconsin, who completed 14 of 18 passes in 9-0 win over Purdue; Don Dobrino of Iowa, who scored two touchdowns in 20-6 victory over Indiana; Howard (Hopalong) Cassady of Ohio State, who scored two T.D.'s in 27-12 victory over Illinois.

Rangers Defeat Red Wings 3-2

By UNITED PRESS

Rookie Coach Phil Watson apparently wasn't kidding when he promised "they'll be some changes made" upon taking over the New York Rangers this season.

First the Rangers won their National Hockey League opener for the first time in eight years at Chicago and then defeated the Red Wings 3-2, Sunday night for their initial victory on Detroit ice since the 1953-54 campaign.

The Montreal Canadiens, meanwhile, gained their third straight victory by downing the Bruins 5-2, at Boston and the Black Hawks turned back the Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1, at Chicago in other Sunday night games.

Ron Murphy, who scored three goals in the Rangers' opening 7-4 victory over the Black Hawks tipped in the winning shot against Detroit.

The undefeated Canadiens spoiled the Bruins' home opener with a three-goal burst in the opening period. Montreal goalie Jacques Plante, who had shut out the opposition in his first two games, gave up second period goals to Lorne Ferguson and Leo Boivin but settled down thereafter.

Chicago goalie Al Rollins celebrated his 29th birthday by turning in 36 saves against his former Toronto mates. He missed a shutout by fanning on a second period shot by the Leafs' Tod Sloan.

Hornets Win 5-2 Over Buffalo

By UNITED PRESS

The defending champion Pittsburgh Hornets stood out as the only undefeated team in the American Hockey League today following the first weekend of the new season.

The Hornets launched their new campaign Saturday night with a 5-2 victory over Buffalo, while Providence skated to a 5-1 triumph over Hershey and Springfield edged Cleveland, 5-4.

In Sunday night contests, Buffalo nipped Springfield, 3-2 and Cleveland walloped Providence 5-3.

Ken Hayden's goal at 7:30 of the final period produced the Bisons' victory over Springfield. Other Buffalo goals were turned in by Enio Schlisizzi and Lou Jankowski, while Harry Pidherney and Bud Schlinkel scored for the Indians.

At Cleveland, Joe Lund scored for the Barons to break a 2-2 tie in the second period, while Billy Ford and Cal Stearns added third period goals to wreck Providence.

Old Golf Pros Have Contender In Stranahan

BALTIMORE, Md. (UP) — The old pros of the tournament golf circuit had a new one to contend with today in Frank Stranahan.

Playing his steadiest golf under pressure, the spark plug heir from Toledo, Ohio, Sunday gained his first victory since turning pro when he won the $17,500 Eastern Open tournament with an eight-under-par 280.

Ribot Scores 8th Straight Victory

PARIS, France (UP) —Ribot, an undefeated Italian colt, scored his eight straight victory Sunday by leading home a 23-horse field in the Prix de L'Arc de Triomphe—Europe's richest horse race. Beau Prince II of France finished second and Picounda, a French filly, was third.

Babe Is Back In There Swinging

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Babe Didrikson Zaharias is "back in there swingin' " today — only three months after her second cancer operation.

Mrs. Zaharias, felled twice by cancer in the last two years, served dramatic notice Sunday that she intends another comeback when she slipped out of her house to play nine rounds of golf. The Babe crossed the street from her house to the course with Betty Dodd of Atlanta, Ga., and looked surprisingly like her old self.

"I set out to play three or four holes at the most," Mrs. Zaharias said. "But I got feeling pretty good and was playing well, so I went on."

Cleveland Browns Own A Share Of First Place Today

By EAR WRWIGHT
United Press Sports Writer

The Cleveland Browns own a share of first place today to provide the only familiar sight in a topsy-turvy National Football League campaign in which the odds have stood up just once in the first 18 games.

True the BBrownies—the defending league champions — share the Eastern Division lead with the Washington Redskins, Chicago Cardinals and Pittsburgh Steelers.

But Cleveland's appearance in first place is the first "normal" sight in the standings in the first three weeks of play. The "have-nots" have been having a gay time battering the clubs which dominated the last few seasons.

Five more upsets this weekend left the surprising Baltimore Colts and Los Angeles Rams tied for the Western Division lead with the only perfect records, 3-0. Baltimore upset the Green Bay Packers Saturday night, 24-20, and Los Angeles whipped the Detroit Lions defending Western Division champion 17-10, in one of five Sunday games.

Four-Way Tie

The four-way first place tie in the Eastern race was produced when the Cardinals handed Washington its first defeat, 24-10; the Steelers downed the New York Giants, 30-23; and the Browns rallied to edge the Philadelphia Eagles 21-17.

The San Francisco Forty-Niners (1-2) nipped the Chicago Bears (0-3) in the other Western Division game, 20-19.

The Packers, Lions, Bears, Redskins and Giants—all losers—were the favorites. The odds didn't hold up in the other game either because the Browns were favored by 4½ and won by four. Philadelphia's opening game triumph over New York was the only one played so far in which the odds held up.

Philadelphia couldn't gain against Cleveland's defensive unit but turned fumbles by the offensive team into two touchdowns and led 17-14 with four minutes to play. Then two of Coach Paul Brown's 10-year veterans—33-year-old Otto Graham and 32-year-old Dante Lavelli—led the Brownies 87 yards to victory.

Graham who came out of retirement a few weeks ago, threw three passes to Lavelli and made dashes of 18 and 36 yards to set up his five-yard victory pass to Lavelli.

Sunday' biggest crowd — 54,836 —watched Norm Van Brocklin throw an 11-yard scoring pass to end Bob Boyd and complete a 55-yarder to Elroy Crazy Legs) Hirsch to set up Deacon Dan Towler's scoring plunge as the Rams handed the Lions their third straight defeat at Detroit.

A record Milwaukee football crowd of 39,500 watched rookie George Shaw complete an 82-yard scoring pass to Buddy Young and a 50-yarder to Jim Mutscheller as Baltimore dumped Green Bay (1-2) into second place in the Western race.

The defensive unit set up the Cardinals' three touchdowns before 26,337 at Washington. Lamar McHan threw an eight-yard TD pass to Gern Nagler and plunged for another while fullback Mal Hammack got the other Cardinal touchdown.

Jim Finks, Pittsburgh quarterback who frequently is booed by home fans, threw two scoring passes scored another touchdown himself and set up a fourth to lead the Steelers to victory over New York before 29,422 at Forbes Field.

Quarterback Y. A. Tittle led San Francisco to its first 1955 victofy throwing two scoring passes to end Billy Wilson at Chicago. A crowd of 45,256 watched George Blanda of the Bears kick his 110th straight extra point—a new league record.

Perez-Courchesne 10-Rounder Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) —Lulu Perez of Brooklyn, former featherweight contender, will start his comeback tonight as a lightweight in a 10-rounder with dynamic young Bobby Courchesne of Holyoke, Mas., at St. Nicholas Arena.

Although Lulu hasn't fought since May 27, when outpointed by Carmelo Costa, he is favored at 6½ to 5 to lick Courchesne, unbeaten in his last 15 bouts that included one draw.

Perez 22, is favored over Bobby, 21, because the opponents in his 39 professional bouts have generally been tougher than those in Bobby's 41.

Lulu and Bobby are speedy performers and fair punchers. Lulu's 32-6-1 record includes 13 knockouts. He was stopped twice. Courchesne's 36-3-2 list includes 15 kayoes. He was stopped once.

WASHINGTON (UP)—W. Wadsworth Wood and his pretty wife, Ardietta, have just returned from a nine-week trip to 22 countries in which they made color movies of housing in the foreign lands.

After they got home they dubbed their films in with sound and gave it a private showing here at the national convention of home builders. The films will be shownaround the country.

"Waddy" a salty old guy who owns his own yacht, but prefers the airlines when he is circling the globe, also publishes a couple of home magazines.

good. It gives you an idea that in other lands like thebet people in other lands like the better way of life.

"One thing we found out," Waddy said, "is that the difference between capitalism and communism is owning your own home. That seemed to be demonstrated every place we went."

The hope of West Germany, he said, is to produce 600,000 new units—a lot of them nice new homes this year. That would put that part of the world second only to the United States in production.

"The people in most of the countries we visited," the editor discovered, "give a lot of thought to youth. Playrooms for the kids. In the public developments, there are playgrounds. These people, a lot of them anyhow, are looking ahead."

Things differ according to the climate. In Bangkok the new homes have wide overhanging eaves and shuttered windows to protect homes from the hot rays of the sun.

In Austria, a lot of places typify the designs of the Alps, with balconies and shutters in abundance.

The windmill hasn't disappeared from Holland, but the "ranch" home is popping up there, according to the Woods.

Sweden doesn't have to look far for materials for new homes. Naitve lumber is used, and the designers have come up with some pretty fancy houses.

Class B- Columbia City, Robert Sharpe; Elmhurst, Lester A, Sharpe; New Haven, Gutheir.

Class C - Butler, G. Keith Gnaggy. Class CC-Hamilton, Harold R. Long.

All other bands received Division II ratings.

The South Whitley band, under the direction of Leslie Pence, missed receiving a Division I rating by .3 of a point. The South Whitley contingent's points totaled 91.7, and a score of 92 is required for the Division I rating. This was the first contest for Leslie Pence, the new director at South Whitley.

To Perform A Game

Mr. Pence states his band will provide the halftime show for the Columbia City-Garrett football game at De.Vol Field Tuesday evening. The previous plans were that the South Whitley band will present its contest routine before the game, which was originally scheduled for last Friday night. The game was postponed until Tuesday due to a rain-soaked field. The Columbia City band will perform briefly before the game and present the halftime show for the game here with Kendallville on Friday of this week.

Dulles

eager to cut its military expenses. But he said the nation must remember George Washington's advice in his farewell address that "timely disbursements to prepare for danger frequently prevent much greater disbursements to repel it."

Dulles said a preponderance of weapons in the hands of persons without moral scruples is dangerous.

"That is why, for our own sake and for the sake of all free men, we must retain the relative power needed to deter aggression" he said.

Dulls also said in his greeting to some 50,000 American legionnaires that the force of world opinion will compel Russia to relax its grip n East Germany and other satellites.

He said there are skpetics who doubt that such changes could be brought about peacefully but said history does not justify this conclusion. He noted that Austria recently was liberated primarily because of world opinion demanded such a step.

World Opinion Compels

"In the same way world opinion will act as a compulsion on the Soviet Union to relax its grip upon East Germany an dto permit the unification of Germany," he said.

"Also, I believe that world opinion will compel the restoration of national independence to the captive states of Eastern Europe."

Dulles emphasized the need for partnership among free nations to preserve their security. He said the Soviet leaders call such security arrangements dangerous because Russia advocates neutrality "for others."

"By this they mean that each nation should have the weakness which is inevitable when each depends on itself alone" he said.

"The United States does not believe in practising neutrality," he said, "it is like asking each community to forego a police force and to leave it to each citizen to defend hs own home with his own gun."

Dulles said the Soviet rulers themselves practice "something very different" from the neutrality they preach fo rothers.

Dulles said the Geneva "summit" conference and other events have shown a Soviet policy appearing more friendly with the rest of the world. But he cautioned that Soviet Communist doctrine has always taught "retreat and zig-zag" as a tactic of conquest.

The UNESCO Dispute

"So we cannot tell whether what is now going on marks a genuine change of purpose or whether it is merely a maneuver" he said. "We have to have plans that are are responsive to either contingency."

An internal dispute over the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization probably will not erupt at the week.

A possible explosive battle over secession threats of the 40 and 8 was sidetracked for another year by an 11th hour move Sunday night. A six-member committee was named to try to work out the fun-making group's differences with the parent legion and report to the 1956 convention.

But a powerful group was arming itself to try to torpedo a report of a committee giving UNESCO a clean bill of health.

The special 10-man committee, headed by former National Commander Ray Murphy of New York, declared UNESCO "is not favorable to world government. . .is not atheistic. . .is in no sense or no degree Communistic."

Committee members said rejecion of the report by the full convention would be a direct slap at the Eisenhower administration, but one legion group already has labeled the report a "whitewash" and has promised to fight an all-out battle against it on the convention floor.

Infiltration Charged

The fight against UNESCO began at the 1953 convention when the legion executive committee charged "Communists have infiltrated into the United Nations, and are using UNESCO to corrupt the minds of our children."

Other major speakers scheduled for today's session were George Meany, president of the American Federation of Labor, and National Legion Commander Seaborn Collins, who will make his annual report on legion affairs and policies.

Democratic Sen. Walter F. George of Georgia will address a banquet for legion guests at a Miami hotel tonight. The speech will be broadcast over a nationwide radio hookup.

Anti-Communist Demonstration For Soviet Visitors

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP) — About 100 Ukrainian Americans greeted 10 housing experts from Soviet Russia with an anti-communist desmontration at Baer Airfield Sunday night.

The Russians, arriving from New York for a two-day tour of the Fort Wayne area, ignored the placards. Instead delegation leader I. K. Kozuila said, "' feel sure we will receive the same warm welcome here we have gotten in other American cities."

Earlier, the Fort Wayne area veterans council had issued a statement saying it "resented" the Russians visit. It demanded that all Soviet tours of the United States be cancelled until Russian leaders change their policies.

The Russians were scheduled to spend today touring Fort Wayne residential areas and plants construction pre - fabricated homes. They leave Tuesday.

ate only for employes of all four plants.

Craig said he declared martial law because "this conference developed that there is no common ground upon which a settlement can be predicted at this time."

"The history of this controversy and the events that have transpired during its duration prove conclusively the situation cannot be trusted and that, if permitted to continue without the abatement of potential force, it can destroy life and propery."

About 600 National Guardsmen already were on duty at New Castle. Another 100 or so placed previously on a four-hour alert, were sent to Richmond immediately.

Craig paved the way for the plant to reopen. He said "there is no law against an employer operating his plant if he can and that right will be preserved by the military. Labor may use its economic force. They both will do it now without further violence."

Supreme Court To Decide Fate Of 300 Appeals

At First Business Session Of New Term

WASHINGTON (UP) —The Supreme Court is scheduled to decide the fate of about 300 legal appeals at its first business session of the new term today.

Heading the list is the government's two billion dollar anti-trust suit against the General Motors and DuPont Corporations. The gorenment seesk to strip DuPont of its 23 percent holding in GM, valued at two-billion dollars, according t othe Justice Departmen.t

Ike, Steadily Mending, Slates Conference With Dulles Today

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer

DENVER (UP) —Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived at Fitzsimons Army Hospital today for a bedside visit with President Eisenhower preparatory to the Big Four foreign ministers conference at Geneva.

Dulles, who flew here Monday night after a speech in Miami, Fla., talked with Presidential Asst. Sherman Adams at the temporary White House headquarters at Lowry Air Force Base before going to see Mr. Eisenhower.

The secretary of state was expected to review with Mr. Eisenhower the U.S. position for the forthcoming Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva.

In their 7 a.m. MST (8 a.m. CST) bulletin his doctors reported:

"The President slept soundly last night for eight hours. He feels refreshed and cheerful this morning. His condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications."

Rested on Terrace

The President appeared to be steadily on the mend from his Sept. 24 attack. He turned out a sizeable spurt of work in a brief bedside session late Monday. And he was greatly enjoying the long-awaited privilege of leaving his hospital bed for getting some sunshine and fresh air on the hospital's eighth floor terrace.

Mr. Eisenhower was wheeled from his hospital room for the first time Monday for a 30-minute rest in his bed on an eighth-floor sun

Russia Housing Experts Like The American Prefab

Want To Take One Home With Them

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UP)—Ten housing experts from Russia were so excited by American pre-fabricated homes today that they asked permission to take one home to Moscow.

The Russians, who left by air today for Chicago, said they would like to buy an American pre-fab and reconstruct it, complete with American furniture and appliances in Moscow.

They made the request to William Hall, head of a local prefab firm, who said he would have to check export sales regulations before giving the delegation a reply.

The Soviets, however, got the green light for the transaction from their own officials.

Victor Zegal, second secretary of the Russian Embassy in Washington, said there would be no objections to buying the home.

Delegation leader I.K. Kozuila said Russia had similar prefab projects, "larger than American."

But, he added, "I've been very much impressed."

Senator McCarthy Gets Threat On Life Before Testifying

BOSTON (UP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis), guarded by two detectives because of a reported threat on his life, went into Federal Court today as chief witness in the trial of a former Harvard psychologist.

The two detectives were assigned to guard the senator after an anonymous telephone caller told police late Monday that a man with a gun was waiting for McCarthy in his hotel. A squad of police investigated but found no one.

McCarthy, scheduled to testify at the trial of Leon J. Kamin charged with contempt of the Senate, laughed off the death threat as the work of "crackpots and screwballs."

Kamin, a research associate at McGill university in Montreal, is charged with refusing to name his former Communist associates at a hearing in Boston, Jan. 15, 1954, conducted by a Senate subcommittee headed by McCarthy.

Deny Post Office Officials Removed Due To Politics

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Post Office Department today branded as "totally incorrect" a senator's charge that postmasters in eight states have been removed illegally for political purposes.

Chairman Olin D. Johnston of the Senate Post Office Committee announced Monday night that his group is conducting investigations in the eight states to determine whether postal jobs are being sold "to replenish the coffers of the local Republican committees."

Johnston said the committee has information indicating that postmaster and postal employes jobs in Texas and some other states "have been sold to the highest bidder."

"There is also much evidence indicating that the sale of rural mail carrier jobs in many areas is being used as a device to replenish the coffers of the local Republican committees, he said.

Norman R. Abrams, assistant postmaster general, disputed the need for a committee investigation. He said that if Johnston "has any information of the type alleged in his statement given to the press," the department itself would be glad to investigate, and would see that "any guilty persons" are prosecuted.

Besides Texas, the committee inquiry will cover Michigan, California, Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and North Carolina. Johnston said hearings will be held in some local communities.

Donors' Names To Be Inscribed On 4-H Plaque

Pledges Must Be Paid This Week

Names of contributing families, organizations and business concerns will be included on the commemoration plaque at the 4-H Center if received on or before October 15th, reminds Robert Pontzius, president of the 4-H Clubs. The original 4-H development plans provided that all investors of $100.00 or more would be permanently commemorized. The directors are about to carry out the plan by installing an appropriate bronze plaque.

Several hundred family names have qualified for inscription. Ten families, organiations, and businesses are in the $1000.00 panel of the plaque, sixteen are in the $500.00 section, seventeen in the $250.00 group and the remainder in the $100.00 list. Some have advanced from one category to the next higher. Others desiring to increase their investment have until the 15th to get it done. Invesments by persons or firms not previously solicited will be similarly accepted.

Investors of amounts under one hundred dollars may have their names placed on the plaque by paying the difference this week, Pontzius explains. All such money received will be applied on the corporation debt. The value of the commemoration will increase with time, the official points out. This is the last call in the hope that no one interested will be missed.

Freed German Prisoners Say 5 Americans Held

Being Held In Soviet Labor Camps

BERLIN (UP) —German political prisoners freed today by the Soviets reported they had met five Americans in Soviet slave labor camps including an Army run away who now wants to return to the United States and accept his punishment.

The five Americans were listed as George Green of Los Angeles Vladimir Goltwruski of San Francisco, Jack Gorolski Bud Goldsman and Pvt. Sydney Sparks of Tenille Ga. who fled to East Berlin from an Army stockade in Berlin in 1951.

Sparks reported held in the slave labor camp at Potma, a camp from which prisoners are usually taken before their release escaped from the Berlin guard house Dec. 4 1951, while awaiting trial on charges he attacked and robbed a German taxi driver.

Since then the Army has accused him of being absent without leave and breaking arrest. The East German Communists reported on Dec. 28 1951, that Sparks had asked for political asylum in East Germany.

A prisoner who talked with Sparks said the Georgia soldier had received a 25year sentence on espionage charges. Now he said, Sparks told him, "I want o return to the United States no matter what punishment I get."

The German Red Cross said the latest transport of prisoners totalled 527 persons including 110 women and 11 children. Of these, 58 women, 5 children and 132 men were repatriated to West Germany the remainder to East Germany.

The women were dressed in rags and tatters but had made a pathetic effort to improve their appearances with lipstick and cosmetics sent them in gift packages. The children, born in slave camps to unwed mothers, were brought up by the Russians and spoke only that language. The children were returned to their mothers

St. Louis Area Streetcar, Bus Drivers Strike

Million And Half Without Transportation

By PAUL DIX
United Press Staff Correspondent

ST. LOUIS (UP)—A strike of AFL bus drivers halted all public transportation here today despite state seizure of the St. Louis Public Service Co.

Automobile and truck traffic piled up for blocks at intersections and crawled in low gear when it was able to move during the morning rush hour.

All traffic police were called out to speed the flow of cars and restrictions on parking, where it could be found, were relaxed.

The bus and street car operators walked out Monday night after rejecting a recommendation for a 12 cents an hour increase made by an arbitration panel.

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly ordered the utility seized by the state under Missouri's King - Thompson Act at 6 a.m. CST. He ordered officers and members of the union, the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, Local 788, to resume operations.

Call Union Meeting

By mid-morning, however, the strike still was in effect. The union's executive committee, however, met to consider the seizure order and a meeting of the membership was called.

The King-Thompson Act provides a $10,000 fine per day against any union which fails to comply with the back-to-work order. It further provides a fine of a flat $1,000 against any union officer who fails to comply.

In effect, the invocation of the act provides merely that union members return to work as employes of the state rather than the company pending arbitration of their dispute by the State Mediation Board.

The sudden walkout of the strikers has cut off public transportation for 1½ million persons in the St. Louis area.

The strike was called late Monday night at a mass meeting of employes of the Public Service of St. Louis. It went into effect immediately and bus and streetcar transportation came to a dead halt within a few hours.

Drivers and operators were allowed to complete their runs and a few bus drivers even insisted

Tipping Mail Boxes Lands 2 Boys In Court

Juvenile And 20-Year-Old Face Trespass Charges

Investigation of reports from 11 irate rural residents that their mail boxes had been tipped over and supporting posts broken off has led to the arrest of a juvenile and a 20-year-old youth, allegedly his companion in the mail-box tipping.

Ed Strack, 20, resident north of Arcola in Allen county, has indicated that he will plead guilty. He and his juvenile companion were questioned by Judge Lowell Pefley and charges of malicious trespass were prepared by Prosecutor Edward J. Meyers.

They are to appear in court Saturday.

Strack is specifically charged with knocking over the mail box at the J. R. Messner farm, Union township, on October 9. Approximately ten others were knocked over by the youths, according to the sheriff, Galen Adair, who had received reports from residents in the central portion of Union township and in the region south of Collins.

The youths are reported to have rammed the mail boxes, breaking their supporting posts, with the front bumper of the juvenile's car.

Will Re-Open Perfect Circle Plant Wednesday

Further Violence Is Anticipated

NEW CASTLE, Ind. (UP) — Thirty supervisory employes, protected by 1,000 National Guardsmen and full martial law, entered the violence-torn Perfect Circle Corp. foundry today and prepared it for re-opening.

The troopers turned the small, three-story foundry into a fortress to prevent any demonstrations by striking CIO United Auto Workers and their sympathizers. The returning workers have to pass tanks and machine gun nests to get to their jobs.

The plant has been closed since last Wednesday, when nine persons were wounded, eight of them shot, in a pitched gun battle between 1,200 surging demonstrators and 100 non-strikers.

Plant To Re-Open

But it will be re-opened for limited production Wednesday under an order issued by Gov. George N. Craig Monday.

Craig, who has taken personal command in the crisis, imposed full martial law on New Castle and a surrounding two-county area containing 50,000 persons.

"There is no law against an employer operating his plant if he can and that right will be preserved by the military," Craig said. "Labor may use its economic force. They both will do it now without further violence."

New Crisis Expected

UAW leaders have warned that a new crisis may boil up Wednesday when about 100 non-strikers go back to work here. Union members throughout Indiana are boiling mad, they said, and the union said it cannot be responsible for what happens if the plant re-opens.

The UAW also refused to join federal mediators in a negotiating session, saying they could not bargain "with bayonets and Sherman

Death Of Martin Borman, Last Of High Nazi Leaders, Confirmed By Released Prisoner

By CHARLES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

The myth that Martin Bormann, deputy chief of the Nazi Party, was still alive has died at last. But it was a long time dying.

The fate of other high Nazi leaders had long been known.

It had been established beyond possibility of doubt that Adolf Hitler shot himself, even though there was no eye-witness account of his death until last week end.

Heinrich Himmler, "Hangman Himmler," chief of the gestapo, disposed of himself by biting on a cyanide capsule hidden in his mouth after his capture by the British, in northwestern Germany.

Hermann Goering, air force chief, killed himself in his cell in Nuernberg a few minutes before his scheduled hanging. He, too, had managed to conceal a suicide capsule.

Paul Joseph Goebbels, the twisted little propaganda minister, poisoned himself, his wife and their three children in a room of the Berlin Reichschancellery air raid shelter in which Hitler died.

Remained With Hitler

Bormann, too, had remained with Hitler until the last.

It had been established that after Hitler's suicide Bormann tried to escape from Berlin while the Russians shot their way toward the chancellery.

There were reports that he had been killed. But there was nothing definite.

For years, Bormann was reported alive. He was reported to be living in disguise as a peasant in Germany. He was reported living in Spain. He was reported living in Buenos Aires, and in the remote sheep ranching country of southern Argentina.

Because his death could not be established, Bormann was sentenced to death in his absence by the Nuernberg war crimes tribunal which also condemned Goering and other high Nazis.

It was not until Hitler's valet Hans Linge was freed by the Russians during the week end that the death of Bormann was confirmed.

Saw Bormann Die

Linge told how he saw Bormann get into a tank, saw the tank hit by an anti-tank shell, saw it burn until those in it were incinerated.

Thus the record of the Nazi leaders is complete at last.

Bormann was one of the Nazi big four, along with Hitler, Goering and Himmler.

But he was almost unknown outside Germany. He liked to work under cover and almost never spoke in public.

He was an army private during World War I, took part in Nazi-like terrorist organizations after the war, and was an early member of the Nazi Party. He was its press chief for a while. But he was named to the commanding staff of the Nazi storm troopers and helped to betray his chief Ernst Roehmin the "blood purge" of 1934.

Hitler made him deputy fuehrer in the Nazi Party June 5, 1941, after Rudolph Hess flew to Scotland in an insane attempt to induce Britain to surrender. The news that he is really dead is welcome.

Local BBB Manager Warns Against 'Quick' Plumbing, Heating

Residents of Columbia City were warned today of a possible influx of heating and plumbing firms seeking "quick" jobs. The warning came from Woodfin B. Jones, manager of the Better Business Bureau.

The plumbing and heating firms may move into Columbia City to take advantage of the expected large number of business houses in the downtown area which will b installing new heating systems during next spring and summer.

Jones estimated that more than 20 firms will install new heating units to replace the city steam facilities now in use at business establishments. The city's steam system will be discontinued after June, 1956.

"Other cities have had unfortunate experiences with the outside firms," Jones said.

The outside firms have moved into other cities when central steam heating facilities were discontinued. The result was that unsatisfactory work was done and business places found difficulty in getting proper guarantees on the work. Reliable firms will provide a bond guaranteeing their work, Jones explained.

The manager of the Better Business Bureau suggested that local plumbing and heating firms be contracted for the installation of the heating units in individual buildings.

Robert Q. Lewis No Longer Relief Man, Has Own Top Show

NEW YORK (UP)—Robert Q. Lewis, Tv's number one pinch-hitter, can be pardoned for a gloat or two — he has finally managed to notch a permanent spot in the video lineup.

Over the years, the bespectacled former disk jockey has stepped in as relief man for such performers as Arthur Godfrey, Ed Sullivan, Faye Emerson and Jackie Gleason. On one occasion, he even dropped in for a caper with Kukla and Ollie, working as a substitute for Frank Allison.

But that's all past now. Lewis, nearing the end of his second year with his five-a-week daytime variety show, is almost as firmly entrenched on CBS-TV as the seeing-eye station break.

Lewis' daytime program is a curious pot-pourri of audience and cast participation. "The only permanent ingredients on the show," says Lewis, "are the performers. I try to avoid getting into a steady pattern."

Dancing Bear Interview

As evidence of the heady gamut he has run, Lewis pointed to the use of such diverse episodes as a Charleston contest among the elderly ladies of his audience, an interview with a dancing bear, a musical interlude with flutist and former Miss America, Bess Meyerson, and the administration of a lie-detector test to an erring husband plucked ripe from a studio seat.

"The important thing to remember about a daytime show," said Lewis, "is that the audience is different from a nighttime one. The witching hour for TV is around 8:00 p.m. After that time, the viewing audience expects a more formal, polished show.

Lewis, who works well with an audience, frankly confesses that in some instances TV has treated its visiting fans rather shabbily.

Human Dignity Precious

"I object violently to a show that exploits human beings," he said. "Human dignity is a kind of precious thing. That's why we'll never use stunts that make people look ridiculous. When we pick anyone from our audience we tell them 15 minutes before the show starts what we're going to do. If they object for any reason at all, that gives them a chance to bow out."

Despite Lewis, affection for his daylight slot, he admits to a kind of hankering for an evening show as well. "I would like to do a nighttime variety show," he said.

"But my present daytime format fits me fine. It's almost a form of annuity in a business where there doesn't seem to be anything of that kind. I don't want to be the biggest star in the world. What I do want, I have now—the chance to relax and be myself."

The will bequeaths all household goods to the daughter, Mrs. Ruth M. Richards Hanes of South Milford. Argerbright, and the third share to be held in trust by the executor, income and increment from it to be devoted to the support and care of the daughter, Mrs. Hanes. Molotov May Be On Way Out Of Triumvirate

Apology Latest Step In Behind-Scenes Battle For Power

By DONALD J. GONZAES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—U.S. diplomats believe Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov may be on the way out as one of the triumvirate that has been regarded as wielding the most power in Russia in recent months.

Diplomatic sources said Sunday that a new struggle for Russia's top leadership may be under way.

They interpreted Molotov's dramatic public "apology" as the latest step in a behind-the-scenes battle to succeed the late Josef Stalin as Russia's No. 1 boss.

Molotov's "sin" was to say that Russia had built only "the foundation of a Socialistic system instead of following Communist dogma that this goal already has been achieved. This could be a fatal error in Russia.

"Top Dog" Contest

This new move could mean that a contest is under way between Communist Party boss Nikita M. Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin for the "top dog" role that has remained unfilled since Stalin's death in 1953.

When former Premier Georgi M. Malenkov was demoted last February, Khrushchev appeared to some Western experts to emerge as the top figure.

But when West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer went to Moscow last month, he is known to have gotten the distict impression that Bulganin was moving ahead.

Molotov's apparent decline was not generally expected to have major effect on the Big Four foreign ministers conference slated to begin Oct. 27 at Geneva, Switzerland.

Carefully Laid Plans

Soviet policy at Geneva is expected to follow carefully laid-down lines agreed on in advance.

The extent and timing of Molotov's apparent decline are uncertain. The "self-criticism" method has been used repeatedly in Russia to mark the downfall of officials the ruling power wanted out. In Stalin's day this frequently meant swift death before a firing squad.

Molotov, the tough, crusty old Bolshevik, has had his ups and downs in the Kremlin hierarchy before and could possibly survive his apparent new fall from favor. His formal demotion if it comes, could take place at the Communist Party congress next February or sooner.

on taking their vehicles out of the barns after the strike order. But the walkout became 100 per cent effective during the early morning hours.

Washington Crippled Earlier

St. Louis thus became the second major city in the nation to be crippled by a transit strike this year. Earlier, a marathon transit strike created a monumental traffic jam at Washington D.C.

St. Louis office workers made hurried plans to cope with the strike. Car pools were arranged among some while others planned to stand on streetcorners in hopes that a kindly motorist would give them a lift. Many more faced the prospect of walking to work.

All traffic policemen were called to duty early today to handle an expected bumper-to-bumper tide of cars flowing into the downtown area.

3,000 Walk Out

The walkout involved about 3000 bus drivers street car operators nonoperating personnel and followed the union's refusal to accept a wage offer proposed by a state mediation panel.

The contract between the union's local 788 and the company a subsidiary of National City Lines Inc. expired last March 1. The union members, who make an average of $1.87 per hour demanded a 26 cent hourly pay boost. The company made no counteroffer and the state mediation board appointed a panel to hold hearings and make recommendations.

The threeman panel announced its decision at the state capital at Jefferson City Monday night.

Highway authorities say the motorist has to be at his most alert on hree-lane highways.

Paraguay Preparing To Intern Ousted Dictator Juan Peron

ASUNCION, Paraguay (UP) — Paraguay was reported preparing today to intern ousted Argentine Dictator Juan D. Peron immediately.

An official source said the government had not yet received Argentina's request to intern Peron but that this would be done as soon as the request reaches the Foreign Office.

Argentina asked Paraguay Monday to intern Peron at a "considerable distance from the border" between the two countries. The request was made in an official note made public in Buenos Aires.

Internment is provided in international agreements signed by both Paraguay and Argentina when a refugee is liable to "disturb the public order of his country of origin."

Peron, a political refugee in Paraguay since Oct. 2, is living in the Paraguayan capital of Asuncion, just across the Paraguay River from Argentina.

terrace at Fitzsimons Army Hospital. His doctors have endorsed such outings whenever the weather permits.

But the first sun session touched off a furore in the temporary White House when a roaring helicopter, chartered by a Columbia Broadcasting System television news crew, circled the hospital noisily in an attempt to film the President from the sun deck. Mr. Eisenhower, however, had been wheeled inside before the helicopter arrived.

White House Press Secretary James G. Hagerty, angered by the attempt at a "sneak photograph," vehemently denounced the action in a statement to reporters. He said pictures will be permitted of the President when his doctors approve.

No Action Contemplated

Hagerty charged that the helicopter incident could have threatened the President's recovery and disturbed hundreds of other patients in the big military hospital. But Hagerty said no action would be taken against the pilot or CBS. CBS said it regretted the incident.

In a 15-minute session with Adams, Mr. Eisenhower put his signature on seven official documents.

Earlier, the temporary White House announced that Vice President Richard M. Nixon's scheduled Near East trip next month has been indefinitely postponed so Nixon can remain in Washington until the President recovers. The vice president will continue to preside at meetings of the cabinet and the National Security Council.

More Complete Rest

The President, well into his third week of recovery, still faces several more days of complete rest. But by next week, his doctors hope he may be able to sit up at least part of the day.

There will be no attempts, however, to speed up his recovery and he is not expected to leave the hospital until early November. A further period of convalescence will follow, probably at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm, before he returns to the White House to resume his full duties.

Michigan's 26-2 Win Over Army Soothes 10 Years Of Frustration, Rated Nation's Best

By NORMAN MILLER
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Michigan, which soothed 10 long years of frustration by beating Army for the first time last weekend supplanted Maryland as the No. 1 college football team today in the ratings of the United Press Board of Coaches.

Coach Bennie Oosterbaan's wolverines were the top choice this week of 20 of the 35 leading coaches who comprise the United Press rating board. Their 326point total was 66 more than Maryland, which slipped to second after leading the first two weeks of the season.

Oklahoma and Notre Dame each moved up one notch to occupy the third and fourth rankings ahead of Georgia Tech. Navy and Duke were this week's newcmers among the top 10 teams moving up to No. 9 and 10, respectively. Texas Christian UCLA and Wisconsin filled the rankings from sixth to eighth each advancing one place over the previous week.

Army Only Blot

In all its long and impressive football history dating back to 1879 Michigan had one blot on its record. The Wolverines had not beaten Army in five previous meetings dating back to the Blanchard Davis team of 1945. Michigan avenged that with a 262 romp at Ann Arbor last Saturday. The Wolverines, who earlier had defeated Missouri and Michigan State now return to a Big Ten schedule that pits them against Northwestern Minnesota, Iowa Illinois Indiana and Ohio State.

Maryland which breezed to its fourth straight victory by whipping Wake Forest 287, attracted seven firstplace votesv and a total of 260 points. Notre Dame was the No. 1 choice of three coaches Navy had two firstplace votes, and Oklahoma Georgia Tech and Wisconsin one each.

Oklahoma Rates Third

With points awarded on a 10-9-8 7-6-5-4-3-2-1 for votes from first to 10th place here is how the teams were aligned in the top 10 after Maryland: Oklahoma 236, Notre Dame 227 Georgia Tech 184 TCU 150 UCLA 140 Wisconsin 133 Navy 105 and Duke 51.

Every team in the top 10 is undefeated and untied except UCLA Navy and Duke moved into the select group this week at the expense of Army and Southern California.

Michigan State headed the second 10 group with 34 points, one more than the Washington Huskies. Army and Rice came next in that order followed by a tie for 15th between West Virginia and Purdue and another tie for 17th place between Ohio State and Auburn, Mississippi Miami (Fla.), Southern California and Colorado were tied for 19th.

Fraley Gives Choice For Most Valuable Player Awards

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Brooklyn's Roy Campanella and Detroit's Al Kaline look like good bets today to win baseball's most valuable player awards, but in this corner the nod would go to the Phillies' Robin Roberts and Cleveland's Al Smith.

Don't be surprised that one of the American League champion New York Yankees may not take the trophy in their circuit. They simply didn't have a solid stickout and their votes figure to be split among as many as six performers.

Campanella on a bounce back season in which he led the Brooks to their first world championship, probably will get the winning total in the National League.

It'spart of Roberts' hard luck although you also can make a case for such as Duke Snider and 20 game winner Don Newcombe of the Dodgers, National League batting champion Richie Ashburn of the Phillies and Willie Maye of the Giants with his 51 home runs.

But you'll have to look long and hard to find a player with more right to the most valuable award than Roberts. He has been absolutely amazing with what, through most of the last six years, has been a mediocre ball club.

A 20Game Winner

Last season was Roberts' sixth straight as a 20game winner and his third straight as a winner of 23 games. Before that he won 28 and in the two years before that captured 21 and 20.

The most valuable player award is voted in each league by 24 writers three from each major league city. This voting is supposed to be completed before the World Series but usually isn't. Thus Newcombe off his disappointing series work probably will get a very small vote. Snider tailed off at the end of the season and was outhit by the workhorse Campanella. There also is a general feeling that as Campy goes so go the Dodgers. This makes him the big choice.

In the last three years the American League most valuable player in the last three years the American League most valuable player has not been from the circuit's pennant winner. The reason has been that the votes for the winners have been split too much.

Yogi Berra won it last season when the Cleveland vote was scattered. Al Rosen of the Indians copped it in 1953 when the vote for the winning Yankees was well distributed and Bobby Shantz of the A's took the honors in 1952 when the same thing happened.

That Way Again

It could work that way again with arguments as to whether Berra, Hank Bauer, Whitey Ford, Mickey Mantle, Tommy Byrne or even Gil McDougald was the team's most valuable player.

Kaline thus well could win the coveted award and it wouldn't exactly be a case of sneaking in because the Detroit outfielder did lead the American League in hitting with a .340 batting average. It was a fine performance but Smith's looks even better here.

The Cleveland utility man was a oneman bench — although he never had time to sit on the bench. He was the only Indian to play in all 154 games playing third base as well as all outfield positions, and rated high in every department. He did much to keep them up there as long as they were.

But if my guys Smith and Roberts, don't win it they'll have a lot of high class company. As example Babe Ruth didn't get it the year he hit his record 60 home runs. Which makes you wonder how wrong the voters can get.

Russian Thinks There Is A Man Who Can Beat Marciano

LONDON (UP) — Russia's top boxing coach said today "somewhere there's a boxer who can beat Rocky Marciano."

Is he in Russia?

"Who knows?" smiled chunky Nixiforov Denisov, who is here coaching a visiting Russian team that will meet Britain in an amateur boxing tournament Wednesday. "He may be anywhere."

Denisov admitted he'd never seen the American champion in action, in the flesh or even in the movies.

"But from what I hear Marciano's a fighter pure and simple," he said. "And somewhere there is a boxer who can beat him.

"Boxers always beat fighters in the long run."

Unbeaten Navy Is Looking Ahead To Meeting Notre Dame

By NORMAN L. BBRAUN
United Press Sports Writer

ANNAPOLIS, Md. UP)—Navy's unbeaten midshipmen have a football date with Penn State next weekend but you can't blame them for looking ahead a few weeks to Notre Dame.

It has been 11 long years since Navy last beat the fighting Irish, who undoubtedly rate second only to Army as the Middies' big objective opponent. But Coach Eddie Erdelatz realizes the folly of looking past both Penn State and Pennsylvania if the academy is to achieve a perfect season and high national ranking.

"I don't have to tell the boys that shrugging off Penn State and Pennsylvania in anticipation of the game with Notre Dame would be suicide" Erdelatz said today. "They know it. They must take each game in stride—the way a good team always does."

Peak Not Reached

Erdelatz whose teams have been beaten by Notre Dame in every one of his five years as head coach at Annapolis, believes this year's squad has not yet reached its peak despite last Saturday's impressive 21-0 triumph over Pittsburg.

Erdelatz is reluctant to single out any players chiefly responsible for Navy's success but it is impossible to overlook the work of quarterback George Welsh and end Ron Beagle.

Welsh, a 164-pound split-T master from Coaldale Pa. calls plays with the instinct of a professional gambler and passes with the nonchalance of a man flicking away a cigarette. In three games he has clicked on 25 out of 41 passes for 350 yards and three touchdowns.

Beagle, a 186pound heavyduty end from Covington Ky. is rated one of the best defensive linemen in college football as well as being a standout blocker and pass catcher. He is the anchor of the left side of Navy's study line.

A Superb Defense

Against a Pitt team that had averaged three touchdowns per game versus California, Syracuse and Oklahoma Navy demonstrated a superb defense. The Panthers made only four first downs gained only 59 yards on the ground and no net yardage passing. So far, the Middies are unscored upon.

The Irish are good the Middies concede but so far Welsh Beagle & Co. And they'd like to show who's better at South Bend, Ind. Oct. 29.

In addition to the Navy Penn State game this weekend the East's schedule includes: Syracuse at Army, Rutgers at Brown Harvard at Columbia Lafayette at Dartmouth Colgate at Princeton Cornell at Yale and Temple at Bucknell. In intersectional games, Boston College is host to Detroit Boston University to Drake Penn to George Washington Pitt to Nebraska and Holy Cross to Quantico Marines. Villanova is at Indiana.

Ed Stanky Predicts Leo Durocher Will Return To Baseball

KNOXVILLE, TENN. (UP)— Leo Durocher's eventual return to baseball was predicted today by Eddie Stanky, new manager of the New York Giants' Minneapolis farm team of the American Association.

"I played for Leo for six years and I think he is a great individual," said Stanky. "He has contributed a lot to baseball and I think he'll be back in some capacity after a good vacation and an opportunity to be with his family."

Durocher recently retired from baseball after 7½ years as manager of the Giants. Bill Rigney, who managed Minneapolis last season, has replaced Durocher as Giant manager. Stanky, released in midseason this year as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, will succeed Rigney in Minneapolis.

Jim Guinnup Wins Indiana PGS Title

INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—Big Jim Guinnup of Lafayette had his first major golf title today—the Indiana PGA crown—and on his first try, too.

The long-hitting Tippecanoe County pro defeated Ken White, Crawfordsville, 3 and 2, in their scheduled 36-hole match at Highland Monday. It was also White's first state PGA event.

The new champion, succeeding Bill Heinlein of Indianapolis, was one over par for the 34 holes. He took the lead on the eighth hole of the morning round with a birdie deuce and stayed ahead.

The finel round, originally scheduled for last Friday, was postponed due to heavy rains.

St. John's Schedules Tough Cage Foes

NEW YORK (UP) — The St. John's University basketball team will play 21 games this season in addition to competing in the Holiday Festival Torunament at Madison Square Garden. Included among the Redmen rivals are UCLA, St. Louis, Cincinnati, West Virginia and North Carolina State.

Redlegs Release Two Pitchers Today

CINCINNATI (UP) — Pitchers Fred Baczewski and Cliff Ross of the Cincinnati Redlegs today were released outright to Seattle of the Pacific Cost League.

Terry Brennan's "Gambling" Has Paid Off Well To Date

CHICAGO (UP)—Even in Nevada, Terry Brennan probably couldn't find a better payoff than he's getting this year with his "gamble" on Notre Dame's defense.

Before beginning the season with one of the smallest and most inexperience Irish teams in years, Brennan announced that due to what he didn't have he would concentrate on offense and "gamble defensively."

So far his team hasn't been scored upon the first time an Irish team has held three consecutive opponents scoreless since the national championship season of 1947.

The club made goal line stands inside the 10 against Southern Methodist, twice against Indiana and Friday night it stopped Miami on the 13 the 11 the 10 and the 2½ yard lines.

"It's good old fashioned desire by the kids more than anything else" Brennan said. "They've just got plenty of scrap. And for holding Miami, you've got to give them all the credit. I was happier about the play of the line reserves than any other single thing."

Two of the biggest helps have been Pat Bisceglia and sophomore Bob Gaydos at the guards.

Bisceglia a reserve last year, set up an Irish touchdown against Indiana when he "shot the gap" against Gene Cichowski the Hoosier quarterback, inside the Indiana 5 and hit him so hard he fumbled. Gaydos recovered and Notre Dame scored.

Against Miami Bisceglia and Gaydos turned the same trick with the veteran ramming through against quarterback Marion Bonofiglio and Gaydos standing by to recover the bobble.

Despite the brilliant play of the line, Brennan has one complaint defensively pass defense. Bonofiglio and his substitute Gene Reeves connected on 12 of 13 aerials Friday.

"We weren't giving them the short ones and taking the long ones away" Brennan said. "It's not that easy. We've just got to improve."

The last Notre Dame team to shut out four straight opponents was the 1946 team, against Navy Northwestern Army and Tulane.

This week Notre Dame faces Michigan State tough offensively and defensively and Brennan wouldn't make any predictions about equalling the 1946 mark.

Purdue Met Too Good A Team Too Soon Says Holcomb

CHICAGO (UP) —Purdue "met too good a team too soon," Coach Stu Holcomb told the "wailing wall" today to explain the Boilermaker loss to Wisconsin.

"We met an awful good team," he said, "but I'd like to play them again. Like next week. Our boys did as well as you could expect, and they're getting better.

"But (Len) Dawson wasn't quite ready. He didn't throw at all last week. We had rain three of our four practice days and he needs a lot of work. But we met an awful good football team."

Ivy Williamson of Wisconsin classed Purdue as "well drilled and well coached and tough," but he said his own team played "its best defensive game of the season."

"It was a good one to win, and a good football game by both teams, both offensively and defensively. Purdue is awfully hard to move when the chips are down."

Single Wing Wins

Forrest Evashevski had his Iowa team "throw the single wing" at Indiana and "that's what threw them off."

"We didn't ease up in the second half," he said, "but we went back to the T and split-T, not to take any chances. After all, we fumbled five times. But our kids did a pretty good job, particularly in the line. Indiana was funny—they looked like they would go all the way at any time, and they didn't."

The Hoosiers' Bernie Crimmins admitted himself "baffled" by it all.

"Our pass defense wasn't good, but we just didn't go out there with the right idea," he said. "Iowa played a more spirited game. We let up, but there were no signs of it at all during the week. Our kids were real, real hungry, but something happened. I think maybe they'll come out of it pretty soon."

Ohio State developed the ability to strike back, Coach Woody Hayes said.

"We got one touchdown on a pass and they got none. We'll never be a great passing team, but I'll settle for one passing touchdown a game."

Illinois Too Green

Ray Eliot blamed Illinois' defeat by the Buckeyes on "greenness. It was our youngsters who made mistakes, both offensively and defensively. We knew it would happen, but we could have made it a much tougher game."

Only the water boy missed participating in Michigan State's win over Stanford, and Duffy Daugherty said that even the fifth team got in some work.

"Our first team played the first quarter and made 20 points, and about four minutes of the second half and made seven. But we were mad at ourselves. And I hope the first team can do as well this week."

Lou Saban's Northwestern team finally got ahead against Minnesota, but "in two minutes we gave up 12 points. I have no complaints, our passing was good, our running good. I'm looking forward to more improvement."

But Minnesota's schedule "runs uphill," Murray Warmath said, "and while we improved, we've got to improve more to win."

Manchester College Symphony Will Open 17th Season

NORTH MANCHESTER, — The Manchester College String and North Manchester Civic Symphony orchestra will open its 17th season Sunday, November 6 at 3:00 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Now in his tenth year with the symphony, Prof. Vernon H. Stinebaugh, assistant professor in violin and theory, is beginning his third season as conductor of this organization. He formerly served as concertmaster for several years and then doubled as associate conductor from 1949 to 1953. Professor Stinebaugh was appointed conductor and musical director during the summer of 1953, upon the resignation of Dr. S. L. Flueckiger.

Robert E. Cocherolle of Fort Wayne, will be featured in a selection of songs from the light opera, "Finian's Rainbow", in this year's initial symphony performance. He sang the leading role in this production last summer in the Fort Wayne Concert-in-the-Park series.

The orchestra, said to be the only one of its kind in a town the size of North Manchester, numbers over 70 members this year, 43 being college students or faculty members, and the remainder coming from the community. Hugo Fox, South Whitley, plays a bassoon with the organization.

Succeeding programs of the symphony are scheduled for February 18 and May 6, 1956.

Reds Make Bid To Get Foothold In Arab States

Two Weeks Prior To Big Four Conference

By K. C. THALER
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP) — Western diplomats warned today that Soviet overtures to the Arab states marked the start of a major diplomatic offensive against the West just two weeks before start of the Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva.

At the same time, Soviet propaganda organs were spreading the theme that the Geneva "acid test" conference may be a failure and that only the West would be to blame. The official Communist Party organ Pravda accused the United States of trying to "bury the spirit of Geneva."

The Kremlin diplomatic offensive was tied to a sweeping offer of economic and technical aid to the Arab nations, a determined bid to gain a foothold in the strategic area from which it has so far been excluded.

Agents Also Promised

The offer of economic and technical aid carried with it the promise to send in agents to see that the aid was carried out properly. It followed offers of actual arms to Egypt and other Arab states and sharp Moscow rejection of Anglo - American protests against beginning an arms race in the troubled area.

American and Soviet diplomats were giving the closest study to the economic and technical aid offer, made by Soviet Ambassador Daniel Solod in Cairo. They said a first appraisal showed it was a calculated Soviet step toward penetration of the Middle East.

The latest development coincided with reports of a Syrian-Lebanese joint defense plan for an all-Arab pact. This could provide for an Arab military force armed from Communist sources.

Specter Of Rival Alliance

Poised opposite this was the specter of a rival alliance of Arab nations within the four-power defense pact linking Turkey, Iraq and Pakistan with Britain. Iran may also be added shortly as a fifth member.

A defense pact between Turkey and Iraq has accused strong Egyptian opposition and has threatened to split the Arab world because of continued resentment from Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Syria—the targets of the new Soviet offer.

The West was believed considering possible counter-moves, but thus far there have been no concrete steps. Western policy was laid down as determination to avert a Middle East arms race. But with Russian insistence on arming Egypt, a solution appeared remote.

Israel has warned that it will not sit by and watch the Arab nations arm.

tanks at our backs."

Craig issued his order after failing to arrange a truce in the almost three-month dispute at the automobile piston ring company. About 250 UAW members went on strike at New Castle last July, and negotiations stalled and bitterness mounted over the union's closed union shop demand.

HAGERSTOWN, Ind. (UP)—Officials of the strikebound Perfect Circle Corp. charged today a statement atributed to Labor Secretary James Mitchell about them as "utterly incredible" and a "gratuitous slur" on the company.

Mitchell was quoted at Rock Island, Ill., last week as saying officials of the Perfect Circle and Kohler plants where strikes occurred were "not typical of American management."

William B. Prosser, vice president of Perfect Circle, said he sent Mitchell a telegram today demanding an apology and "more restraint and plain fair play."

Prosser said the "indictment is unwarranted, ill-founded and based solely on propaganda of the union." He said Mitchell's remarks "cast ridicule upon this company" and may have inflamed public opinion "already roused by lawlessness, vandalism and rioting inspired and directed by the CIO United Auto Workers."

Prosser told newsmen at a conference that 14 per cent of the New Castle foundry work force returned to work this morning. Between 66 and 69 per cent of the employes of the firm's three other plants were on duty at Hagerstown and Richmond.

Prosser said when the strike started last July 25 over a union shop clause in a new contract, the company knew through a union dues checkoff system that only 45 to 50 per cent of employes of the Richmond and Hagerstown plants were union members. He said the percentage is down to about 35 now.

New Gas Line Explodes, Three Workers Killed

More Injured In Monday Explosion

ORLEANS, Ind. (UP) —A gas pipeline explosion and fire claimed its third life today when Lester Harrington, Cloverdale, Ky., died in a hospital.

The blast killed two other persons and injured three Monday afternoon.

The blast occurred Monday when the new 16-inch line was cleaned, the last step before gas is piped.

Killed were Ralph E. Menser, 34, Owensboro, Ky., an employe of the Texas Gas Transmission Co. which laid the pipeline, and Steven W. Crawford, 35, Nashville, Tenn., a construction worker.

James L. Lawhorn, 30, Columbus, Ind., was blown over a building by the force of the explosion. He was hospitalized at nearby Paoli, Ind., with severe burns.

West Lines Up Against Indian Demand In U. N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. UP)—The West lined up today against an Indian demand for open United Nations debate on formation of a U.S.-proposed international atomic energy agency.

Canada was expected to add its voice to the Western stand in an address this afternoon in the U.N. Political Committee's discussion of the atoms for peace program first proposed by President Eisenhower.

The United States and Britain were firmly on record against a public debate of steps to establish the international agency which would govern the distribution and control of fissionable materials for peaceful use of atomic energy in various countries.

Syria, Indonesia, Burma and Yugoslavia lined up with India in opposition to secret negotiations on the agency.

Col. Howard S. Wilcox commanding 1,000 Indiana National Guardsmen from 10 communities set up day and night patrols to carry out Craig's proclamation.

Atty. Gen. Edwin Steers said arrests if any, will be made by the military who probably will utilize civil courts as agents to mete out punishment.

Reaction to martial law was mixed.

One person commented "thank God." Another called it a "raw deal."

" It's a shame such a friendly town as this couldn't solve the differences among ourselves," one woman said.

Meanwhile Perfect Circle vice president William Prosser said his company "deeply regrets the inconvenience caused the communities in which our plants are located."

"But we feel sure," he added "that most of the citizens uphold our position that our employes should have the right to work without intimidation and mob violence."

Meanwhile, Col. Howard Wilcox, commander of the guardsmen, strengthened the Ne wCastle contingent by recalling to New Castle troopers previously sent to Hagersaown and Richmond. The 400 troopers who went to Richmond yesterday when Craig declared martial law then split up and some went to Hagerstown.

Wilcox relaxed a rule on assembly by allowing church and school groups to hold meetings and movies to stay open.

He also granted a request of UAW representatives to hold a regular weekly meeting of Local 370 members at their downtown New Castle headquarters tonight but said guardsmen would be on duty there. Union spokesmen promised "orderliness" and told Wilcox "we're going to respect you."

William Caldwell, UAW international service representative, promised the UAW's full support of the strike.

"We've got 25 million dollars in strike money and we'll spend every dime of it if we have to win this strike," Cadwell said.

Purdue Unveils Farm Outlook, Less Net Cash

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UP) —Indiana farmers will get more than five to seven per cent less net cash income in 1956 than they did in 1955, agricultural experts forecast today.

Purdue University economists unveiling their 1956 outlook for Hoosier farmers at a Tippecanoe County farm meeting Monday night, first in a series of 88 county meetings scheduled for the next three weeks.

The economists forecast a continuance of the "current high level of economic activity" next year, with "personal incomes rising, total consumer expenditures likely to continue a moderate increase."

However, for agriculture, continued heavy crop production, large carry-over crops, lower government price supports on major crops, and larger livestock marketings will "result in lower prices."
